BIDS TOP APPROPIATION

Proposed School Cannot Be Built As Planned for $90,000.

NEED OVER $10,000 MORE

Deemed False Economy to Modify Plans, and The Increase Will Be Sought.

If the proposed Darrow avenue school is to be built to meet the conditions for which it is designed, the city will have to appropriate more money. Bids were received by the Board of Education, last night, and the figures removed the idea that the school could be erected for the $90,000 appropriated. Unless the plans are modified, which is said to be an unwise idea, the structure will cost between $10,000 and $15,000 more than has been appropriated.

The lowest bids on the general contract were filed by John Abbott, of this city, and it is figured that the cost of plumbing, heating, wiring and etceteras added to his estimate will bring the total to more than $100,000. The financial problem facing the Board has been brought about by the advance in price of labor and materials since the contracts for the new high school were let. The cost of the high school was the basis on which the estimates of the consulting architect were based. Ten per cent. was added to the figures first produced by that calculation, and the architect and the Board thought they had made ample provision for all contingencies. But prices soared without regard to such things as calculations, and the city finds itself facing the necessity of a readjustment of ideas.

Three kinds of bids were called for in the general contract. One was for an all-fireproof building, a second for a structure with a certain amount of woodwork not found in the most strictly fireproof buildings, and the third for a building not altogether fireproof. The general contract bids were as follows, the figures on the three kinds appearing in the order cited: John Abbott, Plainfield, $88,931, $85,975, $82,474; Ira West, Plainfield, $98,525, $92,144, $84,615; Alex. Milne, Plainfield, $108,000, $105,000, $97,400; W. H. & F. W. Cane, Newark, $93,270; $90,970, $88,440; J. H. Parker, New York, $97,000, $94,978, $92,626.

In the steam heating bidding a Plainfielder, George J. Tobin, competing with two big New York concerns, was low. He bid $10,997, against $14,420 by the New York Steamfitting Co., and $11,043 by G. A. Suter.

Mr. Tobin submitted the only bid on plumbing, $2,771. Allen B. Laing, of this city, bid $1,030 on the telephone and clock work, and $1,463 on general wiring.

No official action, beyond filing, was taken on the bids, but the Board discussed the situation informally. Mayor Fisk was present, and joined in the discussion. Of the two courses open to the Board, the increase in the appropriation is felt to be the wisest. The building has been planned only to meet the actual needs of the school department. The room has been figured simply to provide accommodation for the pupils of the Washington School, which has been sold to St. Mary's parish, and the overflow from the Irving School.

Mayor Fisk is in favor of the increased appropriation. It is believed that the Council will see the wisdom of giving the Board the increase necessary, and that the building will be erected as originally planned.

Before an increase can be secured the Board of Estimate will have to meet and present its recommendation, whatever it may be, to the council, which is the final authority on appropriations. It is probable that the board will meet tomorrow, and the Council will have an opportunity to act on the question at its regular meeting next Monday night.

"For my part," said Mayor Fisk this morning, "I am in favor of the increase. It certainly would seem like false economy to me to build a frame structure when a fireproof building can be erected for about $6,000 more."

United States Senator Frank O. Briggs, who was chairman of the State Republican committee until former Governor Franklin Murphy took the office as the choice of Gubernatorial Candidate John Franklin Fort, has been named by his successor as chairman of the executive committee in place of United States Senator John Kean, who retains his membership.

The committee consists of nine members, six of whom are reappointed. Briggs is substituted for Murphy, who was a member. Robert Williams, of Passaic, is dropped, and in his place and the vacancy left by the resignation of Thomas N. McCarter, Senator Joseph Frelinghuysen, of Somerset, and County Clerk Joseph McDermott, of Monmouth, are named. The reappointed members, in addition to Mr. Kean, are: Daniel S. Voorhees, of Morris; John J. Gardner, of Atlantic; Samuel D. Dickinson, of Hudson; C. B. Breckenridge, of Bergen, and David Baird, of Camden.

Quartermaster General C. Edward Murray, of Mercer, who was suggested by the nominee as a member of the committee, will be chairman of the finance committee instead and among his associates will be Sheriff Frank H. Sommer and Senator Samuel K. Robbins, the newly appointed members-at-large of the State committee. The other three men on this committee are William M. Johnson, of Bergen; Joseph W. Congdon, of Passaic, and James A. McGraw, of Morris.

Malcolm MacLear, who was forced off the regular Republican list of Assembly nominees by the naming of William R. Martin, has been named as secretary of the committee to succeed the late J. Herbert Potts. Edward W. Gray is slated for charge of the publicity bureau and Wilbur A. Mott will be in direct charge of the assignment of speakers and the itinerary of Candidate Fort.

Furniture has been ordered and carpenters will start Monday morning to get the State headquarters in the county Republican committee rooms at Halsey and Academy streets in shape for the work of the campaign.

ROOSEVELT SPEAKS AT M'KINLEY TOMB

DISCOURAGES HOSPITALITY TOWARD HONEST MEN OF MEANS.

The nation paid homage yesterday to the memory of William McKinley when the splendid monument which marks his last resting place was unveiled in the presence of an assembled throng such as Canton, O., never saw before, and with the President of the United States as the principal speaker. It was the tribute of a grateful nation, both in word and deed, to "A Good Citizen, a Brave Soldier, a Wise Executive."

More than 50,000 persons, representing all walks of life and every part of the country, participated in the ceremonies dedicating the monument, the loving gift of a million Americans whose contributions, aggregating $600,000, provided the splendid tomb in which rest the bodies of the third of the martyred Presidents, his wife and their two children.

Distinguished men from all parts of the country and many representatives of foreign countries made the pilgrimage here to participate in the dedication of the mausoleum, and made the event a notable one.

Changes in Janitorship.

Little business of importance was considered at the regular business meeting of the North Plainfield Board of Education last night. The resignation of J. S. Lunger as janitor of the Watchung school was accepted, and the appointment of Erick Sohl as his successor was confirmed. Charles Huff was also appointed assistant janitor of the Somerset street school. The rest of the evening was devoted to passing bills and ordering warrants drawn for the same.

CLEAR UP SEWER MUDDLE

City to Take Charge of Work Abandoned in Turn by Two Contractors.

WILBUR'S NOVEL PLAN

Contractor Quits Job Alleging That An Underground Lake Has Retarded His Work.

Notice having been served on City Engineer A. J. Gavett, by D. W. Wilbur, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., of his refusal to complete the Southside sanitary sewer work, according to the terms of the contract violated by Peter Morgan, a special meeting of the Common Council was held last night to take the necessary steps toward completing the work. Engineer Gavett was authorized to finish the job according to the terms by employing such men and purchasing such materials as will be necessary and to charge the same to Mr. Wilbur.

Another resolution was adopted providing for the serving of a notice on Mr. Wilbur to produce satisfactory evidence that he has paid for all materials used by him and discharged all claims for labor. This action was taken to protect the city from having further claims made against it.

In his notice, served on Mr. Gavett, Mr. Wilbur stated that by reason of the failure of the city to notify him of the existence of a large subterranean lake or deposit of water under the line of the sewer proposed to be built under the contract with Peter Morgan, of which the city is alleged to have full knowledge, that he would refuse to proceed further with the construction of the sewer unless the municipality should agree to indemnify him as a contractor from any expense or cost made necessary by the existence of the dopsit of water. Mr. Wilbur added that he would complete the contract if the city would indemnify him as requested, but unless such agreement were made he would abandon the work. This he did on September 27, and it was necessary that action be taken at once so that no time be lost in doing the work.

The meeting last night was called to receive the report from Engineer Gavett on the non-completion of the work under the original contract with Peter Morgan, the engagement of D. W. Wilbur to complete the work, the notice from Mr. Wilbur to Mr. Gavett.

For the purpose of giving a clear idea of the situation, Mayor Charles J. Fisk was asked to explain the matter. He reviewed the sewer work from the time the contract was given to Peter Morgan, taking occasion to refer to the action of Thomas J. Cusack, who was acting attorney for Mr. Morgan, and who, as he said, took Mr. Morgan's money and left the city.

Notice was then served on the Metropolitan Surety Company and other interested parties. In the meantime the Warren Foundry Company and others secured attachments on materials furnished by them for the work. Later with the consent of the surety company, the pipes were purchased from the Warren Foundry Company and arrangements were made with D. W. Wilbur to complete the contract. He placed John Sutcliff, of Poughkeepsie, in charge of the work. Recently it appeared that Mr. Sutcliff was running short of funds, and Mr. Fisk explained that on a technical point, claiming that there was a subterranean lake at the point of excavation, he refused to go on with the work unless the city would indemnify him against loss.

It was further stated by Mr. Fisk that notice was served on the city last Thursday by Mr. Wilbur that he refused to go on with the work under the present circumstances. Then Mr. Gavett took the matter up with Corporation Counsel Marsh. As a result all of the necessary legal notices were served on teh interested parties. This was done yesterday, and at the suggestion of Mr. Marsh it was decided to have the city complete the contract.

Mr. Fisk added that there is but one thing for the city to do and that is do the work itself. He explained that with the amount of the bond furnished by the Metropolitan Surety Company, which is $5,000, and the balance appropriated for the work, it is believed that the sewer contract can be finished without added expense. Peter Morgan, it has been learned, left a number of unpaid claims, but it is thought that the 10 per cent. held back on the contract price will go a long way toward satisfying them. It is said that Mr. Wilbur is willing that the sewer work shall proceed under the city's direction as authorized last night. As matters stand now he will probably lose $5,000, the amount he indemnified Peter Morgan for to the Metropolitan Surety Company. Mr. Sutcliff is expected back today, and Mr. Gavett will probably engage him to superintend the completion of the

PRESBYTERY IN SESSION

Rev. Dr. Chas. E. Herring, the Moderator, Preaches the Sermon.

REPORTS ARE READ

Resolutions Passed On Death of Ralph Voorhees—Members Visit Warren's New Chapel.

The seventy-ninth stated meeting of the presbytery of Elizabeth convened at the First Presbyterian church this morning at 10 o'clock with a large representation from the churches in the presbytery. The morning session opened with devotional services and the sermon by the moderator, Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, concluding with a prayer which constituted the presbytery meeting.

After the roll call, Rev. C. J. Culp, of Bound Brook, and Rev. L. D. Calkins, of Nassau, were invited to sit as corresponding members. There was a pleasant reference by Rev. W. I. Steans, of Westfield, to the fact that the degree of doctor of philosophy had been conferred on Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring by the New York University.

Rev. J. T. Kerr, of Elizabeth, presented a report of exceptional interest on church extension and synodical home missions, showing that a great deal has been accomplished during the past year. He laid especial emphasis on the work at Garwood, where a new chapel was erected, and the mission work has been carried on there with much success. The report showed that the gifts from the churches to the presbytery for extension and synodical home missions amounted to nearly $15,000. In nearly every case each church contributed its quota to this work.

The report carried with it a resolution on the death of Ralph Voorhees, of Clinton, who was a generous contributor to the home mission work, he having given nearly $5,000. A copy of the resolutions was directed sent to the widow.

Rev. W. I. Steans, of Westfield, presented a report on foreign missions, and he stated that more than $17,000 had been contributed to the work during the year, a net gain of $252.

Arrangements were made for auditing the books of the treasurer and other accounts of the presbytery, and at 12:45 adjournment was taken for dinner, which was served in the chapel by the women of the church.

Upon the invitation of Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel, many of the members of the presbytery visited the new chapel on Watchung avenue after dinner and before the afternoon session was called at 2:30 o'clock, when reports from all the different departments of work were received.

PLAN HEGEMAN MEMORIAL

Designs for the $20,000 Laundry Gift to Muhlenberg Hospital Accepted.

MODERN EQUIPMENT

One-story Fireproof Structure—H. L. Hall to Superintend Construction.

Plans for the finely-appointed laundry building to be erected on the Muhlenberg Hospital grounds, adjoining that institution and to be known as the "Hegeman Memorial," have been approved by the Hegeman Estate, which is giving the building in memory of Mrs. Eleanor Hegeman, and the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital. The plans, which are elaborate and very complete as to details, were drawn by Marsh & Gette. The estimated cost of the memorial is $20,000, and announcement of the gift follows the settlement of the Hegeman estate.

Prior to the settlement it was impossible to follow out the provisions of Mrs. Hegeman's will, owing to the somewhat peculiar manner in which the property was left. Recognizing the fact that Mrs. Hegeman desired to remember the hospital, the heirs have taken this very practical way of giving the institution something that is greatly needed and will be appreciated.

The building will be one story high with a basement. In the basement will eventually be located the entire electric power plant to run the institution, it being the proposed plan to light the hospital by electricity and operate the elevator and laundry all by electricity. The new structure will be about 40x60 and the material will conform to that of which the hospital is built. It will contain every modern convenience known in up-to-date launderies established in connection with hospitals and similar institutions.

All good intended for the laundry will be received in what will be known as the "disinfecting and receiving room," where they will pass through a sterilizer. From there they will pass into a room to be devoted exclusively to washing. This work will be performed by a modern machine. This room is also provided with wash tubs and lavatory. The other part of the room will be set apart for ironing tables, drying racks, a steam mangle and delivery table.

So far as possible the building will be fire-proof. The floor will be constructed of cement and the walls will be of white enameled brick, permitting extreme cleanliness and no possibility for the collection of dirt.

Now that the plans have been approved, it is expected that the work of construction will begin within a short time. It was particularly fortunate that in planning for the building it was possible to provide a basement where the power plant can be located. This will have no connection with the laundry building, except to furnish electricity for the various processes made necessary by the washing and ironing. As chairman of the committee on grounds and buildings, Henry L. Hall, has been quite active in helping to plan for the new building.

COMMISSIONERS MEET.

Hear Arguments On Sanitary Sewer.

James E. Martine, J. Williams Crane and William H. Howard, the commissioners appointed by Judge Swayze to make an equitable assessment for the installation of the sanitary sewers at Westfield, held an adjourned meeting in the town hall, Westfield, yesterday, affording all interested parties an opportunity to be heard. A large number of people who are affected by the improvement, which covers a good portion of Westfield, attended the meeting and expressed their views.

After listening to all present, the commission decided to adjourn subject to the call of the chairman. It is possible that the commissioners will hold another public meeting before making their final report.

Italian Case Goes Over.

The hearing in the case of Saverio Vallorano, who took $29 from Luigi Pavone, on Sunday in an alleged effort to restore money said to have been stolen from a crippled waterboy of one of the Italian construction gangs, was again laid over by Judge Runyon for a day this mornin. Pavone was in court, but Vallorano failed to put in an appearance. If he is in the city the police will see to it that he appears tomorrow.

Miss Hughes In Charge.

Miss Josephine Hughes, of the Post-Graduate Hospital, New York, entered upon her duties today as superintendent of Muhlenberg Hospital, succeeding Miss Harriette Wildey, who has resigned.

JEFFERSONS SUCCEED FINELY IN "THE RIVALS"

THEY SHOW MORE THAN MARK OF GENIUS IN THEIR ART.

Of all the professions, none demand so much personality as that of acting. It consists entirely in individuality. Without a magnetic personality, an author is doomed to mediocrity. A successful actor understands men. He understands life. He understands himself. He knows what he can do. He develops his accomplishments. He realizes what he is incapable of doing. He avoids attempting something beyond him. His art is within him. It is his individuality in its most advanced state. It is his individuality alone that carries him to success.

That they are distinguished examples of the value of irresistible personalities and artistics souls, Joseph and William W. Jefferson proved at the theatre last night in "The Rivals." In the case of each, their respective methods of procedure were entirely different, neither of them work alike,—yet alike, they are both successful.

Both of the young men have a wonderful schooling in the technique of their art. Their father was the one great unquestioned authority on the art of acting. From infancy, they have basked in an artistic atmosphere. As boys, they were drilled and schooled by the father. Their teacher did not instruct them to blindly do as he said. He believed in personality. He encouraged their individuality. He only developed their artistic possibilities. The result is that the sons have absorbed the father's wonderful understanding of the theories of acting. This is utilized by the young men in conpunction with their natural inborn understanding. Their performances are exquisite specimens of detail work. Every characterization given them fairly bubbles with their own individuality.

Both of the young Jeffersons have strong characteristic traits and both are equally successful, although their methods are as different as day and night. Their performance last night proved a source of rare enjoyment to the audience. Of Sheridan's master work one can say nothing at this day. Here it is enough to say that the Jeffersons do it full justice, and in it meet the requirements of their art.

MARTINE TO WELCOME NOMINEE KATZENBACH

"I'M NO SORE HEAD" SAYS THE FARMER-ORATOR.

James E. Martine, the victim of a party's ingratitude, will be on hand Saturday to extend a welcome to his successful rival, for the Democratic gubernatorial nominee, Frank Katzenbach, when the latter pays a visit to Plainfield. No one else has volunteered to do the honors and therefore Martine, whose valuable services to his party have been appreciated by everyone except those in that organization, will meet the Trenton man at the station and entertain him during his stay here.

"I don't know anything about Mr. Katzenbach's proposed visit on Saturday except what I saw in The Daily Press," said the farmer-orator this morning. "If the candidate of my party honors us by a visit, you may be sure that I will be present to give him a hearty welcome. I hope he will be my guest during his stay here. Yes, I feel my defeat, but Mr. Katzenbach is a fine fellow and deserves well at the hands of the people of New Jersey. 'Im no sorehead, and I'll be on the spot when our candidate reaches town."

Sunday School Teachers Meet.

The first fall meeting of the Sunday School Teachers' Union was held at the Y. M. C. A. last night. Walter Irving, of Westfield, gave a talk on "Teacher Training." He spoke of the recent beginning of the New Jersey Reading Circle, to which it is hoped that every Sunday school teacher in the State will belong, either through a circle being formed in his respective school or by reporting individually to headquarters at Newark. Copies of these books might be had by communicating with Mr. Irving. The attendance at the first meeting was encouraging and the prospects for the season are bright.

CHARGE ON MAN'S DEATH

Justice Swayze Brings Weeks Killing to Grand Jury's Attention.

AS TO P. S. C. LIABILITY

If Gross Negligence Be Found to Have Been Present, Individuals As Well As Corporation May Be Indicted.

In his charge to the grand jury at the opening of the fall term of the Union County courts at Elizabeth, this morning, Supreme Court Justice Francis J. Swayze, made a strong statement in reference to the liability of the Public Service Corporation for the death of Clarence Weeks, of Netherwood, who was killed by a broken electric light wire.

He said that he understood that the verdict of the coroner's jury held the Public Service Corporation liable for Mr. Weeks' death, but that the same degree of negligence which would hold the company in a civil suit for damages was not the same as would be required to hold the company criminally. To justify the indictment of the company it should be shown that there was a reckless disregard for human life on the part of the company. The length of time the wire was allowed to be in the street should be ascertained, and the question of the insulation should also be looked into. All the facts surrounding the matter should be carefully inquired into by the grand jury. If the jury found the company had been grossly negligent, the corporation officers directly in charge of the department controlling the wire could be indicted individually, as well as the company as a whole.

The Weeks case was the only matter of special character requiring attention from the justice. The charge was brief.

The Plainfielders on the jury are Elmer E. Runyon, F. A. Pope, Augustus G. Jenkins and William A. Woodruff.

There are seventy-eight cases on the Supreme and Circuit Courts list, four of which come from Plainfield. Judge Vail will commence the trial of cases on October 14.

Concrete Mixer Arrives.

Faster work on the concrete part of the street paving may be looked for after tomorrow. A big steam concrete mixer was brought to the job this morning, and it is expected to start tomorrow. Contractor Meeker said this noon that he couldn't promise any great increase in speed on account of the mixer's presence, because he didn't know just how it would work. It would be worked to its limit, and whatever there was in it would be brought out. Mr. Meeker has not been sure that a mixer would speed the work at all.

One of our clients owed $48 between four people. His salary is $14 weekly; rent $12 monthly. GOTHAM'S AMSUEMENTS

Klaw & Erlanger's production of Edmund Day's drama, "The Round Up," which now holds the stage at the New Amsterdam theatre in New York, is proving the greatest popular success ever presented at this house. The scenes of the play are laid in Southwestern Arizona and the production of every aspect most graphically represents this locale. The story is told in four acts, the scenes representing Jim Allen's ranch on the Sweetwater, the living room at Payson's ranch, a canyon in the bad lands on the borders of Mexico and the round up on the Sweetwater range. "The Round Up" is drawing the largest audiences in the history of the New Amsterdam theatre and will continue the attraction at this house for several weeks to come. Matinee performances are presented Wednesday and Saturday afternoons.

Klaw & Erlanger produced Henry Arthur Jones' new play, "The Galilean's Victory," at the Knickerbocker theatre last evening, after preliminary engagements in Rochester and Buffalo. This is one of the most important productions of the year and is presented by a great cast headed by Howard Kyle, W. H. Crompton, Edgar Baume, Charles Fulton, Conway Tearle, Cecil Rose, Ivan F. Simpson, W. J. Constantine, Charles W. Butler, Fred Thorne, Frederick Powell, Dorothy Thomas, Edith Taliaferro, Minnie Terry, Maggie Holloway Fisher, Mrs. Felix Morris, Willette Kershaw, Davenport Seymour and Gertrude Augarde.

Mrs. Amzi Strong, of Chicago, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Harwood Frost, of Woodland avenue.

Rev. L. R. Howard, pastor of Hope chapel, who has been spending some time in the west in the hope of regaining his health, is expected home this week.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

All entries closed yesterday at the secretary's office for the women's championship of the United States Golf Association. Alarmists in the west have expressed fears that the feminine golfing zeal is waning, but the entries have been coming in as fast as usual, two or three in each mail for a week, and when Secretary Morgan gives out the list it will probably be up to the average in numbers. A Chicago girl, Miss Bessie Anthony, was the winner when the women held their last championship in the west and Miss Harriot S. Curtis, of Boston, is the present champion.

The champion and her sister, Miss Margaret, have entered. Other early Boston entrants are Miss Pauline Mackay, Miss M. Adams, Miss Louisa Wells and Miss Phelps. Miss F. C. Griscom and Mrs. C. F. Fox are Philadelphians already entered. Miss Georgianna Bishop, the 1904 titleholder, is in Europe, while the runner up that year, Mrs. E. F. Sanford, will also be an absentee on account of ill health. Her place as captain of the Women's Eastern Golf Association team will be filled by the vice president, Miss Maude K. Wetmore.

FOOTBALL.

Preliminary drill on the gridiron is over, and the college football season enters on its second stage, the schedule stage. The latter stage lasts until the season is over, but the more important games do not come until November, when the perfecting period arrives. The two weeks just passed have been given over to sizing up material, instruction in rudiments and consultations on the policy of development. These things will continue, but from now on the playing of games with teams other than the scrub eleven will furnish tests that no amount of preliminary work can furnish.

Much has been heard of the forward pass both in the practise scrimmage and in the few games that have been played, but little as to how it is working or likely to work under the 1907 modification. It remains to be proved whether the new rule providing a distance penalty instead of loss of the ball was a wise change or not. A forward pass that struck the ground before being caught was penalized last year, the first year of the forward pass, by loss of the ball. This year it is penalized by loss of distance on the first and second downs. Only in the third down does failure of the pass to work forfeit possession of the ball.

The original measure was in use only one season and therefore hardly received the test it was entitled to. It worked exceedingly well in improving the game without further tinkering. The rules committee has done so well in its revision of the playing code that there is no occasion to criticise it for not leaving the forward pass as it was, but whether the modification will bring additional improvement is a point yet to be demonstrated.

Since the penalty for forward passes that fail of their object is not as harsh as last year, it is logical to assume that the forward pass will be tried oftener. Will it be overdone? That is the point. A team that is within thirty yards or thereabouts of its opponents' goal will not object greatly to going back fifteen yards and then having another try at the forward pass. So the question presents itself, Will not the encouragement put on the forward pass tend to promote a reckless and indiscriminate hurling of the ball around? By the stronger and better organized elevens, where the elements of skill and chance are more nicely adjusted, this is not as likely to be the case as with smaller teams, which have all to gain and nothing to lose.

Meanwhile the onside kick, which contains fully as many possibilities as the forward pass, is less prominent in the early season reports of the practise. It is not being overlooked, however. Astute coaches are doing as much figuring on how to work it to the best advantage and how to thwart it as they are on the best means and times to use the forward pass and on the best way to block it when it is used by opponents.

There are other kinds of posses besides forward ones that may be used to splendid advantage in football, passes across the field in rugby style, which may be used to the heart's content so long as they do not go forward. More of this could be used in the American game to its improvement as a spectacle, but this passing while on the run can easily become monotonous. One point among others in which the American game is better than rugby is that it contains a greater variety of tactics. With the wrinkles that have come in with the new game there still remain ground gaining by carrying the ball—end running, rushing back of kicks and boring through the line—plays that call for nerve, judgment, speed, skill, endurance and other qualities to be encouraged.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

A play of unusual merit and somewhat outside the beaten track is "Girl of Eagle Ranch," which will be given at the New Plainfield theatre next Friday night, October 4, for the first time in this city, under the direction of W. H. Gracey. "Girl of Eagle Ranch" is a four-act melodrama, and is denominated as of the sensational class, but its sensation is not overdone and its excitement is sane and judiciously improvised. The comedy spirit predominates and there is little of the lachrymose to be found.

Everyone, whether a confirmed amusement lover or not, is more or less conversant with the reputation of those engaged in catering to the patrons of theatres and assemblys, and are therefore able to discriminate between the bad and the good.

Such names as William A. Brady and Joseph R. Grismer carry with them an assurance of merit in their production which the public has learned to respect and patronize.

While the prestige of a name is much in theatricals, in order to retain its value the manager must live up to it at all times, the public is a beneficiary as well.

The constant demand for something new in theatricals is the bane of all managers, and forces them to make strenuous efforts to provide it often to their financial disadvantage, since such new offerings must be subject to his judgment alone until the public is invited to pass judgment thereon. Not until such judgment has been rendered, and that favorably, does the managerial head lie easy. With a success such as "Way Down East" there is no immediate need to think of a successor. This is the eleventh consecutive season for the play, and there is not the least evidence of waning popularity. "Way Down East" will come here Thursday, matinee and night.

"Buster Brown," the most delightful philosopher of modern stage craft, has an engagement to meet a lot of amusement lovers at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow afternoon and night. He will have Tige, Mary Jane and full two score others along with him to assist in the reception, which will be characterized by clever songs, bright music and enough mischief making to make it in all a rare entertainment.

Mix Figman, in the New York comedy success, "The Man on the Box," will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre Saturday afternoon and night. It is doubtful if there is another light comedian on the American stage who can get any more laughs out of an audience in any given 180 minutes than Max Figman. His art is clear cut, distinct, refined and appealing. "The Man on the Box" is a happy vehicle for his exceptional talents, and is one of those wholesome comedies that will be a favorite with theatre-goers for years.

The coming of Mr. Robert Mantell tonight in "King Lear" calls to mind the fact that this play has been selected for his engagement in the New Plainfield theatre from the most imposing list of great works that has made up the repertoire of any actor on our stage since the prime of Edwin Booth. Mr. Mantell's roles are as follows: Hamlet, Macbeth, King Lear, Othello, King Richard III., King Richard II., King John, Brutus in "Julius Caesar," Iago in "Othello" and Shylock in "The Merchant of Venice." Besides these he frequently appears as Richelieu, is preparing a revival of Charles Macklin's "The Man of the World" in order that he may play Sir Pertinax Macsycophant, and will next season make the first English production of Ibsen's great philosophical tragedy of "Brand."

The curtain will rise at 8 o'clock tonight, to give time for the full production of "King Lear" as Mr. Mantell presents it.

BAPTISTS' ANNIVERSARIES

Denomination's Annual Meeting's Will Be Held at Camden.

PROGRAM IN DETAIL

Membership In New Jersey 61,324; 352 Churches; $5,183,400 In Property Value.

The New Jersey State Baptist anniversaries will be held in Trinity church, Camden, October 28, 29 and 30. The first session, Monday afternoon, October 28, will be the annual ministers' conference, the program for which is in charge of Rev. Judson Conklin, pastor of the Clinton Avenue church, Trenton. Monday night will be given over to a rally of the Baptist Young People's Missionary Society, of which Rev. William W. Barker, of the Baptist church, Bergen Point, is chairman.

Tuesday will be the important day, when the seventy-eighth annual meeting of the New Jersey Baptist convention will be held. The morning will be taken up with the reading of reports. One of the first will be the necrological. Among the Baptist ministers who have died during the year were Rev. George A. Sowell, of Palmyra, and Rev. Henry C. Cordo, of Haddonfield. Rev. Delavan DeWolf, corresponding secretary of the convention, whose office is at 8 Academy street, Newark, will give his report, as will David G. Garrabrant, of Bloomfield, the treasurer. Rev. W. T. Sherman Lumbar, of the Mt. Pleasant church, Newark, chairman of the committee on denominational interests, will read a paper on "Denominational Interests in the State."

In the afternoon there will be three addresses, each of which will be followed by a discussion. Rev. Charles J. Keevil, of the First church, Trenton, will speak on "The Macedonian Call of the Home Foreigners;" Rev. J. O'B. Lowry, of the First church, Atlantic City, will treat the topic, "Our Greatest Missionary Problem—Finances," and Rev. Dr. Thomas J. Villers, of the Peddie Memorial Baptist church, Newark, will give a discourse on "Our Greatest Work—Winning Men." A Baptist clergyman of national reputation will address the night session, and there will be short talks by pastors of some of the fifty-six churches and missions in the State that are receiving aid from the convention.

The New Jersey Baptist Educational Society will be in session Wednesday and Rev. Dr. O. P. Eaches, of Hightstown, the president, is arranging the program. There will be reports by the treasurer, Rev. Dr. L. B Hartman, of Trenton; by the secretary, Rev. Frank A. Smith, of Haddonfield. There are a number of questions to come up regarding the future of the two Baptist educational institutions in the State—the Peddie Institute, which, through the peculations of Samuel B. Hulse, former treasurer of the endowment fund, has suffered a heavy financial loss, and the South Jersey Institute, at Bridgeton, which had closed up altogether. After having been in operation thirty-seven years, this school had such a small attendance and ran so far short of meeting expenses, that it was decided to had outlived its usefulness.

The closing function will be held Wednesday night, and it will be the annual banquet of the Baptist Social Union. Francis W. Ayer, president of the union, is making the arrangements. There will be a prominent speaker at the dinner, to be announced later. Officers will be elected for each of the associations.

The total church membership in the Baptist denomination in this State, according to the last official report is 61,324, which is an increase of 1,894 over the previous year. There are 352 churches, an increase of twelve. The church property is valued at $5,183,400, which is $226,250 more than the year before. These buildings have a seating capacity of 138,860. There are 44,384 pupils in the Sunday-schools, being a gain of 2,759. The number of Sunday-schools is 339, and the number of officers and teachers 5,674, this being 105 more than the previous year.

Fatal Accident at Fair.

Walter Whitlock, 23 years old, was unloading some exhibits for the Inter-State Fair in Trenton yesterday, when he slipped and fell across a railroad track. A freight train cut off both legs, and he died in a few minutes. Nearly all the exhibits have been installed. The principal interest of the day was in the automobile races. Today 15,000 school children will be admitted free, and on Thursday both candidates for the Gubernatorial office will be the guests of the fair management.

Negroes Hurt by a Train.

Elizabeth, Oct. 1.—William McFarland, John Brown and James Bowie, negroes, were injured Saturday night at Colonia, west of Rahway, by being run down by a freight train. They are truckmen, and had just delivered a load of furniture from Brooklyn to Colonia. They were on their way home when the accident happened. None of the men was seriously hurt. The van was smashed, but the horses escaped unhurt.

Freeman Wins Primary Suit.

A decision of the Supreme Court was filed by Justice Swayze at Trenton yesterday, holding that the primary election act was never meant to intrust to an election board the power to determine without a hearing to what party a man belongs. The case arose out of the determination of the election board to reject ballots honestly cast for Dr. Charles M. Freeman, the husband of the novelist, Mary E. Wilkins-Freeman, at the last primary eeletion, when Freeman ran for the independent nomination as Mayor of Metuchen.

The stress of the defense was that Freeman was a Republican, and because of that fact no Democrat could vote for him as the Democratic nominee. The justice says that, assuming that Freeman was a Republican, he can find nothing in the primary act to prevent Democrats from voting for Freeman at their own primaries.

AGED MAN MISSING.

Left New York to Go to Work in Summit.

After an unsuccessful search, which has been conducted by the friends of aged Thomas Malen during the past week, the police authorities of New York have been asked to aid in finding the old man, who has been missing from New York since September 3. Malen, who is over 70 years of age, is a shoemaker, and had been employed by Bartholomew O'Brien in Summit for some years. He lived with an only sister, who is five years his senior, at Fiftieth street and Tenth avenue, New York, where he spent Labor Day. On the morning following he left his sister's home to go to his work at Summit, and nothing has been seen or heard of him since.

When he failed to put in an appearance and no word had been received by Mr. O'Brien up to last week, he decided his employe was ill, and went to New York to see him. He found the aged sister almost overcome from worry. When she learned that he had not arrived in Summit she collapsed and has been in a serious condition. Mr. O'Brien has searched hospitals and police stations, but could find no trace of the old man, and as a last resort, the police of New York were asked today to send out a general inquiry.

Denied Protection Against Suitor.

Denied protection or redress by Police Justice Joseph B. Bray, of Orange, Miss Katherine Palmier, of No. 75 Central place, in that city, is virtually in a state of siege through the alleged attentions of Mariani Pastore, who, she declares, has threatened to do her bodily harm unless she consents to marry him. Justice Bray told the girl that if she were going about the streets she had better get an escort, and if there was any further trouble to report it. Pastore used to work for a barber near the girl's home, but the girl says their acquaintance was limited to a salutation as they passed each other on the street every day.

Strike On State Work.

Nearly 150 workmen employed in the construction of the new State Normal School, which is being erected in Montclair Heights, went on a strike yesterday, and work is entirely suspended. The trouble is due to the fact that a force of iron workers from the Hay Foundry Company, of Newark, began work on the school yesterday. They are non-union men, it is alleged, and as soon as the masons and bricklayers became aware of this fact, they demanded the discharge of the iron workers. The demand was met with a refusal, and just before noon the masons and bricklayers quit.

The society expects to parade with more than 200 strong, and will be equipped with long white dusters, high hats, canes and badges. They will be headed by an excellent band of twenty pieces, and will march eight abreast, with large letters on their sleeves, so that the whole will spell "Young Men's Father Mathew Total Abstinence Benevolent Society."

Odd Bequest.

Strongly objecting to the semi-professionalism which enters athletic sports at colleges, Miss Anna T. Jeanes, a Quakeress of Philadelphia, willed a large portion of her $5,000,000 estate to Swarthmore College on condition that "the management abandon all participation in intercollegiate sports and games." Miss Jeanes died last week, and the will was filed for probate yesterday.

PLAINFIELD LIBRARY NOTES

Recent Additions In Demand at the Library.

Benson, A. C.—Beside still waters.

"Ony of the many new books from the hand of the noted English essayist. It is in the form of a biography and deals with the life of a young man who has come into the possession of a legacy left him by an uncle. Besides the money left him by his relative, the young man had managed to save part of his earnings, all of which enable him to go to the country and live a peaceful life and devote his time to writing and meditation." New York Times, Saturday Review, June 15, '07.

Butler, E. P.—Confessions of a daddy.

"Mr. Ellis Parker Butler, with the able assistance of Miss Fanny Y. Cory, who makes the pictures, undertakes to show how a world that was upside down was set right side up by the arrival of a little stranger. ....Father and mother are converted to the belief that a child is a really admirable creature to have about, and establish their claim to be included in a class of desirable citizens." New York Times, Saturday Review, June 15, '07.

Clemens, S. L.—Christian science.

"The controversial and historical phases of the humorist's mind, in addition to the author's long-familiar gift of irony and sarcasm, have been lately employed in a serious study, earnest, painstaking, and impartial, of Mrs. Eddy's cult of Christian Science. The book is said to be the result of years of careful investigation—of an honest effort to answer those questions which occur to every one who has heard of the term 'Christian Science' and the alleged cures of disease, the tranquillity of mind, and the material successes wrought by an observance of its dogmas. Of course Mark Twain is vigorous; of course he is uncompromising in his condemnation of what, parading in the name of 'science,' attempts to spread and fix its influence through superstition and psychological phenomena." New York Times, Saturday Review, June 15, '07.

De Morgan, William.—Alice-for-short.

"Alice-for-short, six years old and timid, bravely plods through a London fog with a jug of beer. She breaks the jug, which accident brings her a side protector, who, a little later, when the drunk-sodden parents die, rescues her from the basement of an old house in Soho and places her in the care of his sister. The chief interest of the tale lies in the development of the child in intimate portrayal, the simple life—likeness of characters, and the sure though delayed consummation of the romance." Book Review Digest, June, 07.

Duncan, Norman.—Cruise of the "Shining Light."

"There is a fascination about the very name of this tale, which should of course be a story of the sea, but it is not a story of the sea. It concerns the strange fortunes and the mystery of a boy called Danny, quaintly brought up by an old personage of a highly fantastical turn. He orders Dannie's education after the ornate rules of that admirable nobleman, the Earl of Chesterfield." New York Times, Saturday Review, June 15, '07.

Howells, W. D.—Through the eye of the needle.

"A sociological study of a traveler from Autruria who falls in love with, and marries an American woman, and returns with her to this land of no money, no master and servant, where one earns what he has by service. The contrast of his ideas with hers concerning Altrurian ways and world ways forms the chief interest of the book." A. S. A. Booklist, May, '07.

La Pasture, Mrs. Henry.—Lonely lady of Grosvenor Square.

"The lonely lady is a pretty country bred girl of twenty five who comes to Grosvenor Square as the guest of a great-aunt and stays there after her aunt's death to watch over the estate which is an inheritance of her twin brother who s in active service in Africa. The account of how she tries to do honor to her name and position by following the social code of her country rector's wife, and how from the dull loneliness of London state and formality she is rescued by her distant cousin the Duke, forms a pretty old fashioned love story." Book Review Digest, May, 1907.

Mason, A. E. W.—Running water.

"The tale is magnetically associated with the ice fields of the Alps above Chamonix. A brave-hearted girl who took her lesson of life from the Alpine guides, tired of her mother's vain life, hunts up her father, whom she has never seen, and tries to operate the law she had learned by saving a soul from the net which her dissolute father had drawn about it. The tale is one of her failures and successes." Book Review Digest, May, 1907.

Moody, W. S.—Pickwick ladle.

"Sketches of two hardened bric-a-brac hunters. Each story breaths an agreeable leisure, and the thread of the Wyckoffs' adventures among the antique dealers is enriched by a shrewd characterization of the dealers themselves." Nation, June, '07.

Porter, Sydney.—Trimmed lamp.

"Shopgirls and bartenders and pseudo-Bohemians and 'that sad company of mariners known as Jersey commuters'—such types are hit off with immense cleverness." Review of Reviews, June, '07.

Pryor, Mrs. Roger A.—Birth of the nation: Jamestown, 1607.

"The history of the settlement at Jamestown and of the events which follow it is extraordinarily rich in color and movement, and its central figure, John Smith, born nation builder and leader of men, has that sort of strength and large simplicity about him which holds captive the imagination of the ages." New York Times, Saturday Review, June 15, '07.

Roberts, C. G. D.—Haunters of the silences.

"It contains stories of over twenty animals, fish, and birds by the well-known nature writer, for which Charles Livingston Bull has made a large number of drawings, some of them being reproduced in full color." New York Times, Saturday Review, June 15, '07.

BOB HAMPTON of PLACER

COPYRIGHT 1906 BY A.C. McCLURG & CO.

"Unsling carbines—load!"

Weir, the veteran soldier, glanced down that steady line of ready troopers, and then back to Brant's face. "Do you mean it? Are you going up those bluffs? Good Heavens, man, it will mean a courtmartial."

"Custer commands the Seventh. I command the pack-train," said Brant. "His orders are to bring up the packs. Perhaps I can't get through alone, but I'll try. Better a courtmartial than to fail those men out there. Going? Of course I'm going. Into line—take intervals—forward!"

"Attention, D troop!" It was Weir's voice, eager and determined now. Like an undammed current his orders rang out above the uproar, and in a moment the gallant troopers of N and D, some on foot, some in saddle, were rushing up the face of the bluff, their officers leading, the precious ammunition packs at the center, all alike scrambling for the summit, in spite of the crackling of Indian rifles from every side. Panting, breathless from the hard climb, their carbines spitting fire while the rapidly massing savages began circling their exposed position, the little band fought their way forward a hundred yards. Then they halted, blocked by the numbers barring their path, glancing back anxiously in hope that their effort would encourage others to join them. They could do it; they could do it if only the rest of the boys would come. They poured in their volleys and waited. But Reno made no move. Weir and Brant, determined to hold every inch thus gained, threw the dismounted men on their faces behind every projection of earth, and encircled the ridge with flame. If they could not advance, they would not be driven back. Messenger after messenger, taking life in hand, was sent skurrying down the bluff, to beg reinforcements to push on for the rescue, swearing it was possible. But it was after five o'clock before Reno moved. Then cautiously he advanced his column toward where N and D troops yet held desperately to the exposed ridge. He came too late. That distant firing had ceased, and all need for further advance had ended. Scarcely had reinforcements attained the summit before the torrent of savagery burst screeching on their front.

From point to point the grim struggle raged, till nightfall wrought partial cessation. The wearied troopers stretched out their lines so as to protect the packs and the field hospital, threw themselves on the ground, digging rifle-pits with knives and tin pans. Not until nine o'clock did the Indian fire slacken, and then the village became a scene of savage revel, the wild yelling plainly audible to the soldiers above.

CHAPTER XXXIII.
The Old Regiment.

By the time Hampton swung up the coulee, he had dismissed from his attention everything but the business that had brought him there. He experienced no fear, no premonition of coming disaster, yet the reawakened plainsman in him kept him sufficiently wary and cautious. He possessed a soldier's proud confidence in his regiment—the supposition that the old fighting Seventh could be defeated was impossible; the Indian did not ride those uplands who could do the deed! Then there came to him a nameless dread, that instinctive shrinking which a proud, sensitive man must ever feel at having to face his old companions with the shadow of a crime between. In his memory he saw once more a low-ceilinged room, having a table extending down the center, with grave-faced men, dressed in the full uniform of the service, looking at him amid a silence like unto death; and at the head sat a man with long fair hair and mustache, his proud eyes never to be forgotten. Now, after silent years, he was going to look into those accusing eyes again. He pressed his hand against his forehead, his body trembled; then he braced himself for the interview, and the shuddering coward in him shrank back.

Away to the left something was moving, a dim, shapeless dash of color. It might be Benteen, but of Reno's columns he could perceive nothing, nor anything of Custer's excepting that broad track across the prairies marked by his horses' hoofs. This track Hampton followed, pressing his fresh mount to increased speed, confident that no Indian spies would be loitering so closely in the rear of that body of cavalry, and becoming fearful lest the attack should occur before he could arrive.

He dipped over a sharp ridge and came suddenly upon the rear guard. They were a little squad of dusty, brown-faced troopers, who instantly wheeled into line at sound of approaching hoofs, the barrels of their lowered carbines glistening in the sun. With a swing of the hand and a hoarse shout of "Dispatches!" he was beyond them, bending low over his saddle pommel, his eyes on the dust cloud of the moving column. The extended line of horsemen, riding in columns of four, came to a sudden halt, and he raced on. A little squad of officers, several of their number dismounted, were out in front, standing grouped just beyond the summit of a slight elevation, apparently looking off into the valley through some cleft in the bluff beyond. Standing among these, Hampton perceived the long fair hair, and the erect figure clad in the well-known frontier costume, of the man he sought—the proud, dashing leader of light cavalry, that beau ideal of the sabreur, the one he dreaded most, the one he loved best—Custer. The commander stood, field-glasses in hand, pointing down into the valley, and the dispatch bearer, reigning in his horse, his lips white but resolute, trotted straight up the slope toward him. Custer wheeled, annoyed at the interruption, and Hampton swung down from the saddle, his rein flung across his arm, took a single step forward, lifting his hand in salute, and held forth the sealed packet.

"Dispatches, sir," he said, simply, standing motionless as a statue.

The commander, barely glancing toward him, instantly tore open the long official envelope and ran his eyes over the dispatch amid a hush in the conversation.

"Gentlemen," he commented to the little group gathered about him, yet without glancing up from the paper in his hand, "Crook was defeated over on the Rosebud the 17th, and forced to retire. That will account for the unexpected number of hostiles fronting us up here. Cook; but the greater the task, the greater the glory. Ah, I thought as much. I am advised by the department to keep in close touch with Terry and Gibbons, and to hold off from making a direct attack until infantry can arrive in support. Rather late in the day, I take it, when we are already within easy rifle-shot. I see nothing in these orders to interfere with our present plans, nor any military necessity for playing hide and seek all summer in these hills. That looks like a big village down yonder, but I have led the dandy Seventh into others just as large."

He stopped speaking, and glanced up inquiringly into the face of the silent messenger, apparently mistaking him for one of his own men.

"Where did you get this?"

"Cheyenne, sir."

"What! Do you mean to say you brought it through from there?"

"Silent Murphy carried it as far as the Powder river. He went crazy there, and I was compelled to strap him. I brought it the rest of the way."

"Where is Murphy?"

"Back with the pack train, sir. I got him through alive, but entirely gone in the head."

"Run across many hostiles in that region?"

"They were thick this side the Rosebud; all bucks and traveling north."

"Sioux?"

"Mostly, sir; but I saw one band wearing Cheyenne war bonnets."

A puzzled look slowly crept into the strong face of the abrupt questioner, his stern, commanding eyes studying the man standing motionless before him, with freshly awakened interest. The gaze of the other faltered, then came back courageously.

"I recognize you now," Custer said, quietly. "Am I to understand you are again in the service?"

"My presence here is purely accidental, Gen. Custer. The opportunity came to me to do this work, and I very gladly accepted the privilege."

The commander hesitated, scarcely knowing what he might be justified in saying to this man.

"It's a brave deed, well performed," he said at last, with soldierly cordiality, "although I can hardly offer you a fitting reward."

"There is little I desire," he replied, slowly, "and that is to be permitted to ride once more into action in the ranks of the Seventh."

The true-hearted, impulsive, manly soldier fronting him reddened to the roots of his fair hair, his proud eyes softening.

"Spoken like a true soldier," he exclaimed, a new warmth in his voice. "You shall have your wish. Take position in Calhoun's troop yonder."

Hampton turned quietly away, leading his horse, yet had scarcely advanced three yards before Custer halted him.

"I shall be pleased to talk with you again after the fight," he said, briefly, as though half doubting the propriety of such words.

The other bowed, his face instantly brightening. "I thank you sincerely."

The perplexed commander stood motionless, gazing after the receding figure, his face grown grave and thoughtful. Then he turned to the wondering adjutant beside him.

"You never knew him, did you, Cook?"

"I think not, sir; who is he?"

"Capt Nolan—you have heard the story."

"Is that so?" he exclaimed, in evident surprise. "He has a manly face."

"Ay, and he was as fine a soldier as ever fought under a flag," declared Custer, frankly. "Poor devil. The hardest service I was ever called upon to perform was the day we broke him. I wonder if Calhoun will recognize the face; they were good friends once."

He stopped speaking, and for a time his field-glasses were fastened upon a small section of the Indian village nestled in the green valley.

"I doubt if many warriors are there," he commented at last. "They may have gone up the river to intercept Reno's advance, and if so, this should be our time to strike. Return to your commands, gentlemen, and with the order of march see personally that your men move quietly. We must strike quick and hard, driving the wedge home with a single blow. That will be all at present, gentlemen; you will require no further instructions until we deploy. Capt. Calhoun, just a word."

The captain thus directly addressed, a handsome, stalwart man of middle age, reined in his horse and waited.

"Captain, the messenger who has just brought us dispatches from Cheyenne is a civilian, but has requested permission to have a share in this coming fight. I have assigned him to your troop."

Calhoun bowed.

"I thought to spare you any possible embarrassment by saying that the man is not entirely unknown to you."

"May I ask his name?"

"Robert Nolan."

The strong, lion-like face flushed under its tan, then quickly lit up with a smile. "I thank you. Capt. Nolan will not suffer at my hands."

He rode straight toward his troop, his eyes searching the ranks until they rested upon the averted face of Hampton. He pressed forward, and leaned from the saddle, extending a gauntleted hand. "Nolan, old man welcome back to the Seventh!"

For an instant their eyes met, those of the officer filled with manly sympathy, the other's moistened and dim, his face like marble. Then the two hands clasped and clung, in a grip more eloquent than words. It was Calhoun who spoke.

"I mean it all, Nolan. From that day to this I have believed in you—have held you friend."

For a moment the man reeled; then, as though inspired by a new-born hope, he sat firmly erect, and lifted his hand in salute. "Those are words I have longed to hear spoken for 15 years. They are more than life to me. May God help me to be worthy of them. Oh, Calhoun, Calhoun!"

For a brief space the two remained still and silent, their faces reflecting repressed feeling. Then the voice of command sounded out in front; Calhoun gently withdrew his hand from the other's grasp, and with bowed head rode slowly to the front of his troops.

In columns of four, silent, with not a canteen rattling, with scabbards thrust under their stirrup leathers, each man sitting in his saddle like a statue, ready carbine flung forward across the pommel, those sunburnt troopers moved steadily down the broad coulee. The troopers riding at either side of Hampton wondering still at their captain's peculiar words and actions, glanced curiously at the new comrade, marveling at his tightly pressed lips, his moistened eyes. Yet in all the glorious column, no heart lighter than his, or happier, pressed forward to meet a warrior's death.

CHAPTER XXXIV.
The Last Stand.

It was shortly after two o'clock in the afternoon when that compact column of cavalrymen moved silently forward down the concealing coulee toward the more open ground beyond. Custer's plan was surprise, the sudden smiting of that village in the valley from the rear by the quick charge of his horsemen. From man to man the whispered purpose travelled down the ranks, the eager troopers greeting the welcome message with kindling eyes. It was the old way of the Seventh, and they knew it well.

With Custer riding at the head of the column; and only a little to the rear of the advance scouts, his adjutant Cook, together with a volunteer aide, beside him, the five depleted troops filed resolutely forward, dreaming not of possible defeat. Suddenly distant shots were heard far off to their left and rear, and deepening into a rumble, evidencing a warm engagement. The interested troopers lifted their heads, listening intently, while eager whispers ran from man to man along the closed files.

"Reno is going in, boys; it will be our turn next."

"Close up! Quiet there, lads, quiet," officer after officer passed the word of command.

Yet there were those among them who felt a strange dread—that firing sounded so far up the stream from where Reno should have been by that time. Still it might be that those overhanging bluffs would muffle and deflect the reports. All about them hovered death in dreadful guise. None among them saw those cruel, spying eyes watching from distant ridges, peering at them from concealed ravines; none marked the rapidly massing hordes, hideous in war-paint, crowded into near-by coulees and behind protecting hills.

It burst upon them with wild yells. The gloomy ridges blazed into their startled faces, the dark ravines hurled at them skurrying horsemen, while, wherever their eyes turned, they beheld savage forms leaping forth from hill and coulee, gulch and rock shadow. Horses fell, or ran about neighing; men flung up their hands and died in that first awful minute of consternation, and the little column seemed to shrivel away as if consumed by the flame which struck it, front and flank and rear. It was as if those men had ridden into the mouth of hell.

Yet it was scarcely for more than a minute. Men trained, strong, clear of brain, were in those stricken lines—men who had seen Indian battle before. The recoil came swift as had been the surprise. Voice after voice rang out old familiar orders, steadying instantly the startled nerves; discipline conquered disorder, and the shattered column rolled out, as if by magic, into the semblance of a battle line.

It was magnificently done. Custer and his troop commanders brought their sorely smitten men into a position of defense, even hurled them cheering forward in short, swift charges, so as to clear the front and gain room in which to deploy. Out of confusion emerged discipline, confidence, esprit de corps.

Safe beyond the range of the troopers' light carbines, the Indians, with their heavier rifles, kept hurling a constant storm of lead, hugging the gullies, and spreading out until there was no rear toward which the harassed cavalrymen could turn for safety. One by one, continually under a heavy fire, the scattered troops were formed into something more nearly resembling a battle line—Calhoun on the left, then Keogh, Smith and Yates, with Tom Custer holding the extreme right. Thus they waited grimly for the next assault.

Nor was it long delayed. Scarcely had the troopers recovered, refilled their depleted cartridge belts from those of their dead comrades, when the onslaught came. The soldiers waited their coming. The short, brown-barrelled carbines gleamed at the level in the sunlight, and then belched forth their message of flame into the very faces of those reckless horsemen. It was not in flesh and blood to bear such a blow. With screams of rage, the red braves swerved to left and right, leaving many a dark, war-bedecked figure lying dead behind them, and many a riderless pony skurrying over the prairie. Exultant over their seemingly successful repulse, the men flung themselves again upon the earth, their cheers ringing out above the tread of retreating hoofs.

"We can hold them here, boys, until Reno comes," they shouted to each other.

The skulking red riflemen crept ever closer behind the ridges, driving their deadly missiles into those ranks exposed in the open. To the command of the bugle they discharged two roaring volleys from their carbines, hopeful that the combined sound might reach the ears of the lagging Reno. They were hopeful yet, although one troop had only a sergeant left in command, and the dead bodies of their comrades strewed the plain.

It was four o'clock. For two long

Naturally you hesitate to spend anything on it for tuning and Repairing; you can use it but very little, if at all, and as time passes on it goes from bad to worse.
Why not put in its place a new, modern instrument that will add to the beauty and happiness of your home?
We will give you a liberal exchange valuation on your old piano. The balance you can pay in payments of from $5 to $10 monthly.
In the purchase price of each instrument we include a stool, scarf or cover, one year's tuning and free delivery to your parlor.

GOLF.

The Women's Canadian Golf Association will send a team of twelve or fourteen to Midlothian, and the usual courtesy of playing for the title will no doubt be accorded them. They have arranged a match with the Women's Western Golf Association for Thursday, and wish also to play the Eastern women on Friday. On account of the short notice the latter match may not be played, for the annual Eastern and Western match is fixed for October 5. The championship will be at the Midlothian Country Club October 7-12.

Myopia's annual invitation tournament will bring together many present and past champions this week, beginning Thursday at the course near Boston. There will be an invitation tournament at the Montclair, N. J., Golf Club on October 10 and 11. This is the home course of Amateur Champion Travers, and some of the best golfers in the East propose to tackle him on his own heath. October 18 and 19 the Baltusrol Golf Club will be the tournament scene.

The women members of the Dunwoodie Country Club will play an eighteen hole qualifying round on Friday for a cup presented by Mrs. Will Ringwood Moon. Eight will qualify for match play on October 11, 20 and 27. On Saturday the men qualify for the vide president's cup, gift of Edward K. Martin, and a second sixteen cup presented by Edwin W. Andrews. There will be a mixed foursome handicap at Dunwoodie on October 9 and weekly handicaps each Saturday during October. Walter W. Lee donates the mixed foursome prizes.

Dyker Meadow Golf Club members will hold their seventh monthly handicap on Saturday. It will be the last opportunity to qualify for the club championship.

Under the auspices of the German Lutheran church an entertainment will be held in the church tomorrow night. No admission will be charged, but a silver offering will be received.

A union service of the churches of Somerville will be held in the Second Reformed church there on Sunday evening, October 20, when Rev. Dr. Edward Griffen Read, the pastor, will celebrate his twenty-fifth anniversary in that charge. A reception will follow in the chapel.

OLD HOME WEEK PROGRAM

Celebration at Elizabeth Starting Next Sunday Promises to Be a Big Affair.

WILL COST $100,000

General Collins Will Be Marshal of Grand Parade—The Carnival Queen Is Selected.

Miss Catherine Cullinan was declared the winner in the Elizabeth Old Home Week queen of the carnival contest, which closed last night, by a majority of over 50,000 votes.

On Sunday next the first day of the celebration will be ushered in by the firing of salutes by Battery B. Then will follow special services in all the churches, incuding organ recitas in St. Patrick's. There will be a parade of all the Catholic societies of the city and county.

The following program has been mapped out for the balance of the week:

October 7—Opening of carnival grounds, 9 a. m.; crowning of the queen at 1:30 p. m.; military and civic parade, including local clubs and many floats, allegorical and commercial; professional game of ball between celebrated teams on grounds of Atlantic League club, 2 p. m.

October 8—Professional baseball game, same grounds, at 2 p. m.; convention of Catholic National Young Men's Union, represented by delegates from twenty States, at hall of Y. M. C. A. Lyceum.

October 9—Parade of delegates to Catholic National Young Men's Union; songfest and entertainment of Liederkranz Mannerchor and Turn Verein societies on the carnival grounds at 3 p. m.; professional baseball at 2 p. m.; union meeting of all uptown churches in First Presbyterian church in the evening.

October 10—Ball game at 2 p. m. at Atlantic League club's grounds; water carnival and parade of many elegantly decorated craft on Staten Island Sound at 7 p. m. under the marshalship of Captain W. T. Cox, concluding with costly exhibition of pyrotechnics from a barge anchored in middle of stream.

October 11—Mardi Gras carnival at 7 p. m.

October 12—Field sports in which a number of record holders will compete for valuable prizes and national honors; parade of automobiles at 7 p. m., and the ringing of bells and firing of a salute at sunset.

It is expected that the week's jollity will cost $100,000, defrayed by public subscriptions and sale of concessions. General D. F. Collins will be marshal of the military parade.

SELECT JUDGE MAHON AS HOLY NAME MARSHAL.

He Will Head Union County Societies Parade at Elizabeth on October 13.

At a meeting held yesterday afternoon in the Court Street Lyceum, at Elizabeth, Judge Owen P. Mahon was appointed marshal for the procession of the Holy Name societies of Union county to be held in Elizabeth Sunday, October 13. His aides were appointed as follows: Thomas Higgins, Secred Heart parish; A. A. Stein, St. Michael's parish; Robert Sheehan, Holy Rosary parish; Dominick Brazinski, St. Peter and St. Paul parish. The aide to represent St. Patrick's parish has not yet been appointed. Father B. M. Bogan, rector of St. Mary's church, this city, will superintend the affair, having been appointed by Bishop O'Connor.

After forming at the corner of Second and Court streets, the procession will rest on the east end of Jackson Park, then proceed west on Court, to Third, to East Jersey, to Broad, to the grounds of the St. Elizabeth Hospital. There the marchers will be addressed by Father Chadwick, formerly chaplain of the ill-fated Maine, and who now is pastor of a parish in New York city. The assemblage will also be addressed by a layman. The speaking will be followed by benediction.

It is expected that fully 2,000 members of the society from all over Union county will be in line.

THE WORLD'S HEAVIEST HORSE AT STATE FAIR.

"Hiram," Largest in the World, Weighing 3,065 Pounds, and Stands 21 Hands High.

One of the best attractions at Trenton on the midway at the Interstate Fair is the horse show, where some of the rarest horses in the world are on exhibition, and well worth the time and price of admission. This show comes there direct from Coney Island, where it has been up to the time of the recent fire, which wiped out part of the amusement district.

There you will see "Hiram," the largest horse in the world, weighing 3,065 pounds, and standing twenty-one hands high. It takes thirty-six inches of iron to make one shore for this monster, and he wears a thirty-eight collar. Little Prince, the smallest full grown horse in the world, is also there. He is only twenty-six inches high. Another freak of horsedom is "Blue Bell," the hairless wonder, born without even an eyelash. This animal is one of the best built horses in the world. The Barnum and Bailey show recently offered $25,000 for him. Two small Siberian stallions are also on exhibition. They are only twenty-eight inches high and weigh sixty-five pounds each. Also, Jessie, the cow with the human skin, one of the greatest curiosities in the world. Ten cents is the price of admission to see these freaks of horseflesh, and every visitor to the fair should by all means take time to see them.

WORK AT THE LIBRARY

Miss Adams Tells of the System Used in Interesting Statement.

METHOD EVERYWHERE

Staff Always Ready to Help Those In Need or Desirous of Advice As to Reading Matter.

Interesting facts as to the work of carrying on the public library form part of the detailed statement submitted to the board of directors by Miss Emma L. Adams, who resigned as librarian yesterday. In part Miss Adams' statement is as follows:

"One test of a library's efficiency is the availability of its resources. That not only every book, but all such miscellaneous material as periodicals, bound and unbound, pamphlets, maps, music, pictures, etc., may be instantly accessible presupposes organization and method. Records are necessary; accession, catalogue circulation, magazine, bindery, etc.

"Books are locally arranged as follows: Commonly used reference books and bound volumes of more popular magazines, in main building at right, overflow in second and third stories of stack. Children's books in main room, opposite delivery desk. Stack (first story), bulk of circulation, books, general and Babcock; (second story) restricted, overflow reference and less used circulating books; (third story) least used government and reference books, folios, files of newspapers (bound and unbound), files of unbound periodicals, music, photographs, maps.

"Classification throughout is by the Dewey decimal system, modified slightly. The card catalogue is in dictionary form, i. e., entry is made under author, title and subject, and all these entries are arranged in strict alphabetical order; large subjects are subdivided, and complete system of cross reference brings out related matter. For many years Cutter's rules and the Albany State Library school rules have been followed in cataloguing new and recataloguing old books.

"The more important pamphlets are treated as books, i. e., accessioned, catalogued, etc. Others are uncatalogued, but classed.

"Periodicals awaiting binding are kept in the periodical reference cases in the reading room until completion of the volumes, others are tied up in volumes and era kept in the third story. Maps are listed on slips, ready for cataloguing, while photographs are catalogued and plans devised for indefinite future growth. Clippings of bibliographical matter are classes, catalogued and kept in manilla envelopes, as are also the library's reading lists after removal from the public tables. All these are indexed for reference, and to prevent duplication of work. A scheme for the care of music, including classification, cataloguing and method of circulating has been worked out, and only awaits time of the cataloguer.

"The following lists have been published: Fiction, history and travel, biography, supplemental fiction; periodicals, the revised A. L. A. Juvenile list, bought in quantity, is kept on sale at the desk. A revised list of periodicals supplements the annual report just published, which is the second published report of the library directors. Bulletins, which chiefly take the form of reading lists, are published weekly in the local papers, and I take this opportunity of thanking the Daily Press and Courier-News. Exhibits as a means of extension of knowledge of the library's resources have been given from time to time. This system I have described fully in the Library Journal of August, 1902.

Deposit stations form and must continue to form as the library occupies its present location, the most effective method—in proportion to expense—of reaching the people at a distance, especially those who stand in greatest need of books. It is thoroughly organized in schools and factory, and it should be extended until it takes in every responsible organization which can provide necessary facilities, dotting the poorer sections with these little centres of influence. Between library and schools, effective co-operation exists here; public, private and parochial schools bear witness to the library's helpfulness, and the library gladly acknowledges the substantial aid of a goodly number of devoted principals and teachers.

"While the library stands ready to assist all clubs, its most definite work is done with the Monday Afternoon Club, which annually publishes a list, prepared by the librarian, of the library's books on subjects of club study. Cordial relations also exist between the Mothers' Club, the Sesame Club and others.

"The class formed last year for the blind brought much pleasure to a number of these unfortunates, and greater independence to several who

ARREST ITALIAN LABORER AS A MURDER SUSPECT

MAN ON STREET PAVING JOB ANSWERS DESCRIPTION OF FUGITIVE.

The police received a circular from Niagara Falls yesterday, describing an escaped murderer. The man "wanted" is Giacomo Fanella, an Italian laborer, accused of shooting Mrs. Mary Tallery to death in Niagara Falls.

Sergeant Overbaugh read the description over carefully last night, as is his wont with such papers. This morning his attention was attracted b one of the laborers at work in the street paving gang on Park avenue. He answered the description of the fugitive in almost every way, and Overbaugh placed him under arrest.

In every item of the description cited, Mike Marasciano, the name given by the prisoner, answers completely, excepting in height. He is a trifle under the height as described.

Salvi Velardi, the Italian foreman of the gang, is sure the police have the wrong man. He says the prisoner has worked for him since last spring, and has not been out of the city long enough to have done what is charged. The police say the man has been to New York several times, and they will hold the suspect until it is certain he is not the man wanted. Word will be sent to the Niagara Falls police as soon as Chief Kiely returns this afternoon.

PLEADED GUILTY TO FIRING FATHER'S HOME

JOHN SPRAGUE REMANDED UNTIL FRIDAY FOR SENTENCE.

Before Judge Atwater in the Court of Common Pleas, at Elizabeth, this morning, John Sprague, of this city, pleaded guilty to the charge of setting fire to his father's home on West Front street last July. A statement was made in his behalf by Lawyer V. W. Nash, Jr., and he was remanded until Friday for sentence.

Sprague is a well known local young man, and his arrest was brought about by Chief Kiely, just after he had turned in an alarm for a slight blaze, in his father's house. His actions appeared suspicious to the police officer and he was taken to headquarters, confessing within a short time that he had started the baze in order to "get square" with his parent for a fancied grievance. It was thought at first that several other incendiary fires might have been caused by him, but a thorough investigation disproved the fact.

Sprague's case was to have been taken up by the present grand jury, but he waived indictment in order to receive quick disposition.

PORTRAYING "KING LEAR" MANTELL IS AT HIS BEST

Mansfield's Successor Seen in Shakespearian Play Here Last Night.

Robert Mantell, who has been hailed as America's foremost actor since the death of Mansfield, appeared at the New Plainfield theatre last night in "King Lear." With a company of unusual strength the play was presented with great satisfaction to a large and critical audience and Mr. Mantell's portrayal of the crook-back tyrant was a triumph of histrionic art. The actor is no stranger to local playgoers as he was seen at Music Hall several times during its career.

Mr. Mantell's repertoire includes six Shakespearian roles but his greatest success has always been with "Lear." In this character he leaped to fame in a single night in New York and wherever he has presented it since his standing as an actor has been established in the first rank. His first great hits were made twenty years ago as Jack Herne in "The Romany Rye" and Loris Ipanoff in "Fedora."

The supporting cast included several of the best known Shakespearian actors in the country.

Sanitary Experts Meet.

The thirty-third annual meeting of the New Jersey Sanitary Association opened at the Marlborough-Blenheim Hotel, Atlantic City, yesterday. Drs. V. BanD. Hedges and N. H. Probasco, and Health Officer Leon R. Thurlow, of this city, are at the gatherink. There was a symposium yesterday afternoon, on the ideal milk of the future, a subject in which the local health board is much interested.

Sesame Club Meeting.

The Sesame Club will meet at the home of Mrs. Tennant, 750 Kensington avenue, on Thursday, October 3. Vacation experiences will take the place of current events.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Shepard are back from the Adirondacks and will be at "The Gables" for the winter.

HOW PRICES HAVE RISEN

They Are Still Going Up; Particularly in Staple Lines.

GROCERIES ARE SOARING

Flour 'Way Up, Too, and Bread Will Will Be Increased, As Well As Cake and Pastry—Some Figures.

It is costing Plainfielders a good bit more to live than it did a year ago. There is really no need to tell housewives and householders that the cost of pretty nearly everything they have to buy has gone up steadily from ten to twenty per cent. for the most part, and even more in some cases, since last year, but probably the harried payers of bills haven't had time to take a comprehensive view of the situation, and do not know just how much more quickly the dollar melts in its passage back and forth over the counter.

To crown the general rise and mark the inexorable character of the advance, the increase is about to affect the price of bread. Bakers here say they must raise the price to seven cents a loaf or cut down the size of the loaf. Cake and fancy pastries will go up in some cases as much as twenty-five per cent.

According to bakers the necessity for the increased cost of bread is due to the higher prices demanded for flour, which they claim have advanced from twenty to thirty per cent.

A canvass of several large wholesale grocery establishments seemed to confirm their statement. Accordingto the information given at these establishments, flour has advanced from $5 and $5.25 per barrel in 1906 to $6.50 and $7 per barrel at the present time, a price unattained before. This is attributed to the high price of wheat, now selling at $1.02 a bushel, compared to eighty-eight cents last year.

Upon good authority it has been stated that in nearly every staple carried by wholesale grocers there has been a general increase of at least ten per cent., butter, for instance, selling at the present time at highest winter prices. Cheese and condensed milk have undergone a similar increase and even sugar shows the effect of the skyward flight of prices.

Canned vegetables have all advanced eight percent., and in many cases twenty. Potatoes are selling at $1.25 and $1.40, which is considered high in midwinter, owing, the wholesalers say, to the light crop throughout the country. Apples are hard to get even at the price, $3 and $4. Sweet potatoes are twenty per cent. higher than last year. The following schedule of gain prices was obtained from a local grocer:

Bran, per ton in 1906, $22 to $24, now selling at $28 to $30.

Feed, per ton in 1906, $26 to $28, now selling at $33 to $35.

Hay, per ton in 1906, $18 to $20, now selling at $22.50 per ton.

Wheat sold for 87 to 89 cents per bushel in 1906, now $1.02.

Corn sold for 60 cents per bushel in 1906, now 70.

Oats, in 1906, $1 per seventy-pound bag, now $1.40.

Within the past twelve months an increase of ten to fifteen per cent. has been charged on all suitings used by tailors, and a corresponding advance has been made in the cost of ready-made suits. According to clothiers in the city, a suit which would be purchased for $15 last year sells now for $17. The same condition prevails in regard to furnishings, such as handkerchiefs, shirts, undergarments and neckties. The price of the last named has not been advanced, but the quality of goods has deteriorated, according to a retailer.

The price of hats is ten per cent. higher this year than last, according to the statement of a dealer. The price to the consumer is about five per cent. higher, he said, as half of the increase was borne by the retailers.

The price of shoes is higher than last year, although the percentage of increase varies. The best grades of shoes sell for but little, if any, more than they did last year. The retailer pays more for them, however, and the manufacturers say that the advance is due to the increased cost of leather and wages. Most of the manufacturers are running overtime, however, and have orders for months ahead, so they are more or less independent. The cheap grades of shoes, however, have advanced in price from twenty-five to forty per cent.

The price of cotton goods has advanced from ten to forty per cent. Department and dry goods stores have to pay proportionately more to the manufacturer, according to the story told yesterday. Calicos have advanced over forty per cent., percales twenty-five per cent., and so on down to cheesecloth, which has gone up ten per cent. The increase is attributed to the manufacturers, but explained, it is said, by the prevailing high price of cotton, now selling around 12 cents per pound.

The cost of meat went up about a month ago 2 or 3 cents a pound for the most desirable cuts of steak and roast. Some cuts have gone up as much as forty per cent.

"As the price of lumber is much higher now than it was twelve, or even six, months ago," said a furniture dealer, "the price of furniture was forced up. This is especially so in the better grades of furniture, such as mahogany and walnut, the latter being practically unobtainable. Ten per cent. would be a conservative estimate of the increase."

"Our bills are at least ten per cent. more than they were last year," declared a druggist this morning. "Such articles as opium and camphor are just about twice as much as they were twelve months ago. The Japanese are paying their war debt with camphor," he explained, "and that, of course, answers for the increase. They own the entire supply. Opium is 150 per cent higher, as is laudanum. Glycerine is fifteen per cent. higher. I should say that ten per cent. has been added all along the line, if an average were made, although some articles have remained stationary while others have gone up.

"This same increase applies to druggists' sundries. Absorbent cotton, for instance, is a great deal higher than it used to be, and the amount a consumer gets for a nickel is about sixty per cent. of the amount he received in 1906."

And how about wages? Henry J. Gottlob, vice president of the New Jersey State Federation of Labor, says that wages have not been increased over one per cent. during the year, if that much.

"In only a few trades," says Mr. Gottlob, "have wages advanced at all. The greatest advances made during the year were to carpenters and plumbers, who received but little over five per cent. I do not know a single instance where wages in any line have been advanced as much as fifteen per cent. In fact, I do not know of ten per cent. general advance of wages in any line. Grocers' clerks, railway employers, clerical men, laborers, tinners and factory hands have remained at a standstill, just where they were twelve months ago, so far as wages are concerned. If an average were made I doubt very much if the wages paid workers in all lines today are even one per cent. higher than they were a year ago."

BOWERS WAS POSITIVE HE WASN'T OBSTRUCTING

BUT PERSONAL TESTIMONY OF JUDGE CHANGED HIS OPINION.

City Judge William N. Runyon was proceeding along Park avenue to his home at a late hour last night when his feet struck something soft and yielding in the shadow of a brick pile near East Fourth street. Striking a match to learn what it was, he discovered a man, stretched full length across the walk in a drunken stupor. The fellow was in such a position that he was apt to cause passersby to fall and hurt himself and the magistrate summoned the police.

In court, this morning, the stranger gave his name as Jacob Bowers, of Asbury, and stated that he had taken a run down to Plainfield to visit friends. He "'owed" that he might have been drunk all right but he was positive that he hadn't gotten in anybody's way.

"Are you quite certain that you weren't obstructing the walk?" Judge Runyon asked him.

"Just as positive as I know Hunterdon county had a good peach crop this year," was Bowers' reply, not having been told who it was that fell over him. He was informed the next moment by the magistrate himself and the look of amazement that spread across his face was a sight to behold.

"Caught with the goods" was all he said but as the court had personal knowledge of the quietness of his jag he got off with a suspended sentence and a warning to hike back to Asbury.

Advance Excise Fee.

Disagreeing with the grand jury, which recommended that liquor license fees be made $1,000 throughout the county, but deciding that some increase was necessary, Justice Swayze, Judge Atwater concurring, has decided that an addition of $50 to the old frees in places of over 3,000 inhabitants, where the court grants the license, be made. Hereafter licenses in such places in townships and boroughs will be $300. In issuing the order yesterday, Justice Swayze said the $1,000 would amount in some cases to prohibition, and he did not feel the court had any right to override the legislative action by such indirect means. Judge Atwater granted a number of renewals of inn and tavern licenses.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Force, of West Front street, are parents of a son, born to them on September 25.

MADE CANDIDATE PREACH

Presbytery Listened to Mr. Mark Half an Hour and Gave Him Certificate.

DR. ALISON'S ADDRESS

Secretary of National Temperance Society Gives Interesting Talk On Work In Which He Is Engaged.

One of the most important features of the afternoon session of the thirty-ninth stated meeting of the Elizabeth presbytery yesterday, was the examination of R. A. Mark, of Woodbridge, for admission to the ministry, so that he might accept the call to the Presbyterian church at that place.

Mr. Mark was graduated from the Princeton Theological Seminary last June, and immediately sailed for his home in the North of Ireland, where he was married. He had preached in the Woodbridge church for six months and his work was well known.

Mr. Mark was present with two elders from the Woodbridge church, ready for the examination. After considerable debate as to whether the time for the ordination should be fixed before the examination, it was finally decided to examine the candidate. Rev. J. O. McKelvey questioned Mr. Mark in theology, while Rev. J. T. Kerr examined him in church history. S. C. Parry, stated clerk, satisfied himself and the ministers as to the young man's knowledge of Greek, Hebrew and Latin.

This being concluded the question arose as to whether Mr. Mark should be asked to preach a sermon. Some of the ministers were inclined to excuse the candidate, believing that he was not prepared, while others thought he should be given a thorough examination, including the opportunity to preach. The question was put to vote and it was decided that Mr. Marak should deliver a sermon.

The candidate was conducted to the platform by the moderator, and for over a half hour he held the close attention of the assemblage while he delivered a sermon from Matthew 16-25. Before he concluded one of the ministers who had been so insistent on hearing the candidate, arose and said that the discourse was exceedingly interesting, but he would like to suggest that Mr. Mark bring it to a close, as the hour was getting late. The candidate complied with the request, after which he was admitted to the ministry and presented with the call from the Woodbridge church.

Later it was announced that the ordination of Mr. Mark would take place at Woodbridge on Thursday, October 10. The moderator will preside. Rev. William C. Rommel will preach the sermon. Rev. J. T. Kerr will deliver the charge to the people and Rev. Dr. Cobb will give the charge to the pastor, with Rev. Dr. J. G. Mason as alternate.

The afternoon was well occupied with reports of various departmests and transaction of general business. One of the interesting addresses was that of Rev. Dr. Alexander Alison, general secretary of the National Temperance Society and Publication House, New York. He spoke earnestly of the part the church should take in promoting temperance and set forth clearly that it is the duty of the church to lead. He declared that temperance teaching should begin with the children in the Sunday-school, and that if the churches and ministers should unite in advocating temperance, the newspapers would join in the movement. He decried the method of some temperance organizations, who seek to attack politicians in carrying their point. He also touched on local option and the opening of the saloon on Sunday, and said that he hoped the time would never come when these places will be found doing business on the Sabbath. He added that the practise had been found to be a course to London, where the saloons are open on certain hours on Sunday.

The question of the brotherhood among the Presbyterian churches was spoken of by Rev. Dr. Whittaker, of Elizabeth. He said that it is not a multiplicity of societies for men that is desired, but a method of awakening the latent power. In connection with this Rev. W. W. Casselberry, of Dunellen, presented a report showing that nearly every church in the presbytery has a brotherhood or men's association of some kind. Elder Samuel J. Berry, Jr., of Elizabeth, who has been particularly active in the brotherhood movement, made a few remarks, explaining its purpose.

Preceding a brief report by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, showing that $12,309 had been given to the presbytery for home missions during the past year, Rev. J. E. Stuchell, of Rahway, gave a stirring report on evangelistic work. He said that within the jurisdiction of the churches

MISSING DEED TIED UP A REALTY TRANSACTION

UNRECORDED TITLE FOUND AMONG MR. COWARD'S EFFECTS.

Through the purchase of a large tract of land situated between Tier's pond and the Watchung Silk Company's mill, in the borough, an unrecorded dee, dated 1847, has been found. The discovery came about through its purchase by a syndicate, composed of Eugene M. Laing, Henry Leifke, J. Worth Coddington, B. Donald.

The title could be traced back to the estate of the late Joseph B. Coward, but beyond that it was impossible to go. A futile search was made among the records at Newark, the deed having been made when Plainfield was a part of Essex county.

While H. H. Coward was searching among the effects of his father recently, however, he found the lost deed from the receivers of the old ...oses Beach private bank of this city. That institution failed in 1847. The deed was made out to Cornelius Boice, father-in-law of Joseph B. Coward, and in that way it came into the latter's possession and was concealed among many other effects for a great many years. The finding of the deed removed all obstacles and the title was passed yesterday.

It is the intention of the new owners to cut the property up into building lots.

It is possible that at the meeting of the Borough Council Friday night the question of making a park there will be introduced and that some action may be taken.

C. B. TYLER TAKES PLACE OF HIS FATHER

MAYOR APPOINTS HIM MEMBER OF HOSPITAL BOARD.

Cornelius Boardman Tyler, son of the late Col. Mason W. Tyler, was elected a member of the Board of Directors of the Plainfield Public Library and Reading Room, held last night. He will take his father's place as a member of the board. A letter was also received from Councilman W. S. Tyler in reference to the resolutions passed respecting the death of his father, expressing the appreciation of the family over such action.

Owing to the resignation of Miss Emma Adams, as librarian, the board appointed Miss Florence M. Bowman, the former assistant, as acting librarian, and an additional $15 a month was voted to her as salary. Miss Annis Kinsman was appointed assistant librarian, at a salary of $20 a month, from October 1.

MEN'S CLUB ELECTS.

New Officers of Congregational Organization—Meeting Night Changed.

Officers were elected by the Men's Club of the Congregational church, last night, at the annual meeting, the first session since the summer suspension. Dr. Frank T. Clawson was made president, Sidney Dunning vice president, Dr. H. V. Hubbard, secretary, and Charles Steiner, treasurer. The latter was re-elected.

The club discussed a project to hold two special Sunday night meetings during the year. The proposition was laid over until the next meeting, when a committee will probably be appointed to take up the matter.

The meeting night was changed from the first Tuesday night in the month to the second. At the next meeting, November 12, the new entertainment committee, which has not been appointed yet, will present a program. The club has forty members.

"La Celigne" Will Appear.

Under the auspices and for the benefit of Ebenezer Baptist church, a concert will be given at Reform Hall tomorrow night by the great "La Celigne." The program will be of exceptional merit. It will include a one-act playlet, written by Carlos de La Celigne, better known in Plainfield, which is his home, as Charles Smith. The play is entitled "A Case of Identity." There will also be impersonations of various theatrical stars, including Vesta Victoria, Anna Held and Joe Welch. The assisting artist will be Mlle. Rosario Fanchouette and a capable company. Among the patronesses for the affair are Mrs. E. T. Wilson, Mrs. Nelson Kenworthy, Mrs. William Murray, Mrs. A. B. Laing, Mrs. Henry Dunbar, Mrs. Harrison Coddington, Mrs. Allan Coddington, Mrs. W. H. Tier.

Missionary Rally.

A missionary rally will be held at the Young Women's Christian Association Thursday night. W. D. Murray will speak. All girls will be welcome.

FORT TO BE HERE OCT. 16

Republican's Gubernatorial Nominee With Colby and Sommer to Address Voters.

KATZENBACK EARLIER

Big Mass Meeting to Be Held In New Plainfield Theatre at Which All G. O. P. Nominees Will Be Present.

Although the Democratic nominee, Frank S. Katzenbach, will be "in our midst" on Saturday the real opening gun of the gubernatorial campaign will not be fired until Wednesday night, October 16, when the Republicans hold a big mass meeting at the New Plainfield theatre. Mr. Katzenbach's visit will be a purely informal one for the purpose of holding a heart-to-heart talk with his vanquished rival, James E. Martine, and other lights of Democracy in this vicinity. But when J. Franklin Fort comes to town his entry will be the signal for a harmony meeting of all factions of the much torn local Republican organization and the real work of converting voters will be begun.

A galaxy of leaders, including such men as State Senator Everett Colby, and Sheriff Frank Sommer, both of Essex county, will accompany the standard bearer.

At a meeting of the Republican city committee, last night, Chairman Winfield Scott Angleman appointed a committee to arrange for the reception of Fort, Colby and Sommer. Mayor Fisk, Judge Runyon, County Chairman Smith and others will figure in their entertainment. A brass band will be engaged for the mass meeting. The nominees for assembly, Messrs. Kirstein, Moxon and Pierce, and the candidate for surrogate, George Parrot, as well as the members of the local ticket, including those of councilmen-at-large, will occupy seats on the platform.

When James E. Martine was informed of the intended visit of Mr. Katzenbach on next Saturday, the farmer-orator expressed himself as highly pleased over the prospect of entertaining the Democratic candidate for governor. "His visit is news to me," said the farmer-orator, "but I assure you that I am no sorehead and however much I may keenly feel my unexpected and sudden defeat I have none but the best of feeling and highest regard for Mr. Katzenbach. If there is no one else to greet him, you may rest assured that Jim Martine will be on hand. Anything he may ask I will do."

While Mr. Martine hides his true feelings over his defeat, his close friends declare that nothing in his whole political career of forty years has effected him so much as his turndown for the gubernatorial nomination. When asked the direct question whether the treatment he had received at the hands of the convention delegates was not considered by him the worst blow he had ever felt, Mr. Martine frankly admitted that such was the case. "Yes," said he, "nothing in my whole life so disappointed me. I know that James Smith, Jr., and other good friends were loyal to the last but the work of Peter Egenolf and others was a hard blow for me to bear."

Board of Estimate Meeting.

To consider the question of adding to the sum fixed for the erection of the new school at Darrow avenue the Board of Estimate will meet at the Mayor's office this afternoon at 5:30 o'clock. The Council has not yet voted on the first recommendation of the board, and it is understood that it will be a simple matter, attended by only a few formalities, for the Council to increase the appropriation if the board so recommends and the city fathers desire to act on the recommendation.

Part on Court's Advice.

Peter Volsine was arrested at his home on South Second street yesterday afternoon on complaint of his wife, who charged him with abusing her. The testimony in the city court this morning disclosed the fact that they have lived unhappily for months, and that the breach is too wide to be bridged. Judge Runyon advised them to separate, and his advice was welcomed. They agreed to divide their possessions and part as soon as they returned home.

Meeting of College Club.

An interesting meeting of the Womens College Club was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Miss Jessie Munger, of Washington avenue, when plans were made for the winter's work and entertainment. Tea was served at the close of the meeting.

Missionary Meeting.

The Women's Association of the Congregational church held its first meeting of the fall yesterday afternoon. A new missionary barrel was started, and an informal tea was enjoyed. Letters from missionaries were read.

MAMMA FINDS MARRIAGE LINES.

And So Mr. and Mrs. Harned Will Now Go to Housekeeping.

New Brunswick, Oct. 2.—Miss Cornelia Van Hise and Isaac H. Harned, of this city, slipped away to Camden on July 14 last and were married by the Rev. Dr. Owens, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, of that city. When they came back to town they went to their respective homes and decided to keep the marriage a secret until they were ready to go to housekeeping. The bride stored the marriage certificate away in a bureau drawer and thought that the secret was safe.

Housecleaning began yesterday at the Van Hise home, and things were turned topsy turvy. Mrs. Van Hise was surprised to find a marriage certificate while straightening out things, and when she confronted her daughter with this prima facie evidence, there were explanations and a public announcement of the wedding. The couple will start housekeeping sooner than they had anticipated.

One of our clients owed $48 between four people. His salary is $14 weekly; rent $12 monthly. To have paid $2 weekly to each creditor, combined with rent, would have left only $3 per week to meet expenses, buy clothing, etc.—an impossibility you will agree. He borrowed $50, paid all his creditors, made his future credit good, if ever needed; pays his rent, the loan payments, and has $9 each week to use as his judgment dictates.

GOLF.

Fifty-six entries for the women's national golf championship at the Midlothian (Ill.) Country Club October 7-12 were booked by Secretary Morgan of the United States Golf Association at the closing of the lists last night. Belated entries may bring the total to sixty-four, the number when the championship was in the West in 1903, at Wheaton. The Western entries number thirty-one, including twenty-four from the Chicago clubs and three from California. The East has twenty-four entrants, thirteen of them from Massachusetts and seven from Pennsylvania. Mrs. A. E. Hedstrom, of Buffalo, is the only entry from New York State, and Mrs. W. Fellowes Morgan, of Baltusrol, who put out the titleholder, Miss Mackay, is the only entry from the Metropolitan Golf Association clubs. Fourteen of the thirty-two to qualify last year, when seventy-one started, have again entered. The early entries include Miss Harriot S. Curtis, the titleholder, and the former champions Miss F. C. Griscom and Miss Pauline Mackay.

Miss Pheppe is the only Canadian entry, but Secretary Morgan on Saturday notified the secretary of the Women's Canadian Golf Association that their members at Midlothian for the team match with the Women's Western Golf Association would have the right to enter.

At the Eastern Professional Golfers' Association meeting Monday in New York city it was decided to have the entries for the second annual championship at the Country Club, Brookline, October 29 and 30, close with the treasurer, David Hunter, at the Essex County Country Club, Orange, N. J., on Thursday, October 24. The championship will be on the first day at thirty-six holes of medal play. The players expressed a preference for a thirty-six hole four ball competition on the second day, if the plan would suit the Country Club. There was a unanimous vote in favor of remaining over for October 31, as suggested in a letter from the Country Club, for four ball matches in which amateurs would be paired with professionals.

A special committee reported that a rumor of irregular play by one of the professionals in the competition at Van Cortlandt Park last summer had been investigated and found to be utterly without truth. The player in question was declared exonerated from all suspicion by a unanimous vote. Three were dropped for nonpayment of dues and six new members elected—George Gordon, Poughkeepsie; Tom Gourlay, Forest Hill; John Gathcrum and Richard Clarkson, New York, and George Baldrick, Shelter Island.

Will Horton, the president, was in the chair, and those on hand were Charles Kirchner, Dave Hunter, Tom Chisholm, Isaac Mackie, Tom Anderson, Will Sime, Jack Hobens, George Strath, Robert Dow, Harry Simpson, Herbert Strong, Jack Hutchinson, Martin O'Loughlin, John Young, Joe L. Anson, John Pearson, Alec Finley, George Turnbull and George Low.

The Dyker Meadow Golf Club has issued its fall schedule, calling for competitions up to and including November 30. On Saturday next the seventh monthly handicap will be held. This contest will afford the last opportunity to qualify for the club championship. The sixteen players who shall have returned the lowest gross scores in the seven monthly handicaps of the year will qualify and will be drawn to play off at match play.

The annual Staten Island championship is to be held on October 10, 11 and 12 over the links of the Richmond County Country Club. According to the program, there will be an eighteen-hole medal play qualifying round, the first sixteen to continue on at match play for the title and the second sixteen for a trophy presented by the Fox Hills Golf Club.

Possession of Chapel October 13.

Unless plans miscarry it is expected that possession of the new Warren chapel will be taken on Sunday, October 13, when the first services will be held there. Rev. J. O. McKelvey, the pastor, is busy now completing the details for the initial service.

Want Additional Electric Lights.

At the October meeting of the Common Council Monday night, Councilman Buxton, of the Fourth Ward, will endeavor to secure additional electric lights for West Front street, between Plainfield avenue and Waynewood place. At present there are no lights between those points, yet it is one of the darkest streets in the city. Between Giraud and Grant avenues on the west there is but one light.

DIAMOND DUST.

There will be a warm time at Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon when the Clinton Avenues and Scotch Plains cross bats. Recently the locals defeated Rahway and the latter defeated the Plains team. The real test of ability will be on Saturday.

After battling for seventeen innings neither Detroit or the Philadelphia Athletics were able to win on Monday in the Quaker City. The contest was considered the best ever witnessed. The race in the American League is by all odds the most sensational in recent years.

McGill, the new pitcher of the St. Louis Browns, is studying for the ministry and won't play baseball on Sunday.

Griffith's list of pitching possibilities for next season includes: Arellanes, Tift, Lake, Manning, Mason, Keefe, Moore, Neuer, Tughes, Orth, Chesbro, Newton, Hogg, Doyle, Zellers, Castelton, Brockett and Griffith.

A professional ball player has won a Rhodes scholarship and is now on his way to Oxford. Keith, the pitcher of the Little Rock team, is the man. He was bought by the St. Louis Americans, but decided to go to the English university instead.

Speaking of the controversy among the adherents of Lajoie, Wagner and Chance as to which is the most valuable player, there is a young fellow in New York city who does not want to be overlooked when trying to pick the best. His name is Hal Chase. As an all around performer and heady player he has no superior.

Joe Clarke, the catcher of the Montreal team, is a Harlem product, playing formerly with the Bradhurst F. C. team. He is still in his teens and never played professional ball before this year. He did well, according to report.

Blue, the catcher of the Columbus team and rated as one of the best players in the minor leagues, was secured by the St. Louis Americans in rather an odd way. The major league club owners all seemed to be under the impression that Blue had been purchased by somebody else and it remained for Bob Hedges to discover that he had been neither purchased nor drafted. So Hedges promptly put in a draft and landed a player whom all hands were after. Now there is some wholesale gnashing of teeth among rivals for being caught asleep. The Columbus Club could have realized something like $5,000 for the sale of Blue.

YOUR TRUE COMMUTER.

He Must Be by Nature a Man Who Takes to Routine.

Your true commuter must be by nature a man who takes to routine. There are some who have commuted for a quarter century or more and yet have not acquired the trick and never will. They are the ones who write letters to the newspapers, airing their grievances against the heartless railroad corporations. They are not born commuters. They have had commutation thrust upon them. But many really enjoy the life of the commuter. They like the clocklike regularity. They like the pleasant social aspect of the early morning trip to town, the neighborly interest in one another's affairs, the ample time for reading the newspapers, which numerous city residents miss by not being obliged to get an early start. They look forward to the pleasant relaxation of the whist game on the way home, with head on one side to keep the smoke out of their eyes. Some of them even say that they enjoy being awakened early in the morning.

In time all who work in New York will come to it. Meanwhile, for the man with a family it appears to be in many ways a happy solution of a difficult problem. Undoubtedly it is a more wholesome existence physically, but mentally and spiritually it has the defects of its virtues when pursued all the year round. The commuter devotes the best part of the day to one narrow corner of the city. The rest of his time not consumed on the train is in still more narrowing atmosphere of the suburbs. He neither gets all the way into the life of the city nor clean out into the country. So his view of things has neither the perspective of robust rurality nor the sophistication of a man in the city and of it. His return to nature is only half way. His urbanity is suburbanity. Much of our literature, art and especially criticisms show the taint of the commuter's point of view.—Jesse Lynch Williams in Century.

Miss Bruun to Marry Dr. Reed, a Missionary in Korea.

Trenton, October 2.—Miss Emma Bruun, a trained nurse, will leave Trenton this week for San Francisco, from which port she will sail October 24 for Sondgo, Korea. At Kobe, Japan, she will be met and married by Dr. J. Wilson Reed, a medical missionary, who is now serving under the auspices of the Methodist Foreign Mission Board, South.

Their friendship developed into love and before they parted they had plighted their troth.

Dr. Reed was ordered to Korea to establish a mission hospital and Miss Bruun came to Trenton until such time as he might feel in position to support a wife at his new post of duty. A few weeks ago she received a letter asking her to come to him and she at once bagon planning for the trip. She will become his assistant in the hospital-missionary work.

The report that the much talked of cold storage plant is soon to be built near this city must have originated in the announcement that Mr. Katzenbach is scheduled to arrive here on Saturday.

SAYS THIRD RAIL IS BEST.

West Jersey Superintendent Before Railroad Commission.

At the meeting of the State Railroad Commission at Trenton yesterday Superintendent Lovell, of the West Jersey and Seashore Railroad, appeared and explained the third rail system as employed by his company. According to Mr. Lovell, the road was fully protected with safety devices, with signs at crossings and stations, and where the line goes through thickly settled areas overhead trolley is used. He estimated that to cover the rail for the entire distance of the road would cost, approximately, $150,000. He contended that direct current third rail method of operating electric roads was the best method, and that it should be adopted by all electric railways. He said he was opposed to the use of the trolley.

Commissioner Whiting and Inspector McKelvey were delegated to represent the commission at the national convention of railroad commissions, to be held in the Interstate Commerce Quarters at Washington on Tuesday of next week.

Peter M. Van Cleef, of Richmond terrace, is confined to his home by illness.

Miss Joan Gillies, of Brooklyn, formerly of Plainfield, has returned after a visit with Mrs. D. L. Hulick, of Grove street.

Mrs. Andrew Muir and sons, John and Robert, of Essex street, left last week for a month's visit with relatives at Woodstock and Golspie, Ontario, Canada.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

For this afternoon and tonight the New Plainfield theatre will offer "Buster Brown," a musical comedy that has withstood the crucial test of repeated presentation, throughout the country. No better known little chap than R. F. Outcault's Buster has ever been given the fun loving public. And yet all of the boy's popularity must not be attributed to his own personality for there is "Tige," the sharer of Buster's joys and sorrows, and as Buster has grown we have also "Mary Jane," a trio that has never been surpassed in the realms of the cartoon.

The one play which seems to possess unending popularity is the perennial favorite, "Way Down East." With its effective and always natural character sketches, its absorbing story, strong humanity, and highly realistic snow storm, "Way Down East" may well be counted one of the best, if not the best of all bucolic plays; a fact which explains perhaps its wonderful drawing power. The production is guaranteed to be the same in perfect deal, and the cast of the same superior excellence as of former seasons when it is presented at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow afternoon and night.

One of the big features of the season in theatricals will be the presentation of Miss Mamie Fleming in her great play of western life, "Girl of Eagle Ranch," on Friday evening, October 4, at the New Plainfield theatre. Miss Fleming appears in the part of the girl, an ignorant child of the west until the last act she is the refined and educated lady. Specialties of the highest class will be introduced by Miss Fleming, Valley Forge Quartette, Miss Dorothy Primrose, W. H. Gracey and others.

Max Figman has established himself the foremost comedian on the American stage by his admirable interpretation of Harold MacGrath's hero in "The Man On the Box," which will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre, Saturday afternoon and night. From the Atlantic to the Pacific coast and from Canada to Mexico nothing but praises have been spoken of Mr. Figman's art, the excellence of his company and the perfection of his scenic production. To achieve success in a character of which all readers have formed preconceived ideals is no mean task, and denotes the thorough actor and artist. Mr. Figman has always been considered one of the best actors of the modern stage and his performance of "The Man On the Box" dispels all question and places him in the front rank of American comedy stars.

The most successful of all productions, "Mr. Blue Beard," will be the offering at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night. No production of recent years has attained such immense popularity, and if genuine novelty of plot, ingenuity or treatment together with an acting, singing and dancing company of theatrical favorites count for anything in the make-up of a successful comedy production, no wonder "Mr. Blue Beard" has been so successful. The comedy is far superior to anything that has been seen here and contains an abundance of genuine wit and humor that is irresistable and contains more hearty laughs, pleasing surprises, song hits, captivating music than are usually found in comedy offerings.

It is many moons since so much interest has been taken in a coming theatrical event as is being shown in the appearance of Helen Grantly at the New Plainfield theatre next Tuesday night, in Clyde Fitch's latest and perhaps greatest play, "The Woman in the Case." In New York the play was seen for 300 nights and it comes here with the official stamp of metropolitan approval. The play has a third act which has become famous. Of this act, The New York Sun says: "It developed a situation the like of which has not been seen on our stage in respect of absorbing, of thrilling interest since the famous third act of 'The Gay Lord Quex.' Surge after surge of applause followed the curtain and made it evident that this particular woman will remain in this particular case as long as the present theatrical season holds." This prophecy of the New York Sun was literally carried out.

SUICIDE AT MORRISTOWN.

Body of Unknown Man Found Near Club Grounds.

The body of an unidentified man, dead from a bullet wound, evidently self-inflicted, with a 32-calibre revolver in his hand, was found shortly before noon yesterday by Nicholas Haley, a track walker of the D., L. & W., on the railroad embankment near the Whippany River Club grounds. Haley stopped a passing train pulling in for Morristown and notified the conductor, who in turn notified police headquarters as soon as it arrived in this city. Acting Coroner P. J. Howard and Special Officer Herbert Wiley went to the scene.

The man was dressed in a dark suit of clothes, light hat and new patent leather shoes. He wore a heavy beard and moustache and had light hair that had been recently cut. Sith & Holley, Morristown undertakers, were notified and the body was removed to their establishment to await identification.

Jacob Voehl, of Somerset street, is confined to his home by sickness.

in New Jersey are to be found; 107,268 foreigners. In presenting statistics he said that 3,000 foreigners are arriving daily in New York, an average of six a minute, or a new Plainfield every nine days. In Perth Amboy seventy inhabitants out of every 100 are foreigners. The speaker wanted to know what the churches proposed to do to bring the Gospel to these people. In his opinion they have been playing at home mission work. He advocated the employment of a field secretary and the use of the public schools for night classes and places of amusement, with a view to keeping men out of the saloons. These suggestions were embodied in resolutions, together with one urging that help be given to the Bloomfield Seminary and that an evangelist at large be engaged.

The afternoon session was concluded about 6 o'clock, when the assemblage adjourned to the chapel for supper. An hour later the presbytery reconvened and finished up the business. Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring and Rev. W. H. Corbin were re-elected trustees for five years, and the pulpit of the Madison Avenue church, Elizabeth, was declared vacant, the pastor, Rev. Herbert K. England, having accepted a call to a church in Brooklyn. After transacting some minor business the presbytery adjourned at 9 o'clock, to meet during the intervals of the synod, which will convene at Atlantic City during the week commencing Monday, October 21.

OCTOBER'S MAGAZINES

Some Good Stories Gleaned from the Editors' Advance Proofs.

Nuggets From "Success."

The ability to work one's woes up into fun is the art of arts. What a tremendous advantage one has who can do this —who can laugh at his misfortunes.

We grow into the likeness of the thing we habitually contemplate.

Find out what your employer least likes to do and do it for him.

Always try a man with triffes before you trust him with treasures.

Doing one's best at each moment is all there is of life.

Do not hang a dismal picture on your wall, and do not deal with sables and gloom in your conversation.

Rectitude is only the confirmed habit of doing what is right.

There are a hundred "successful" men for one that is contented.

Beware of looking at sin, for at each view it is apt to become better looking.

There is an expansive force in beauty which broadens and enriches life.

Other things equal, it is the noblest man or woman who puts the highest and noblest estimate upon others.

Mr. John Sharp Williams, recently chosen by the people of Mississippi for the United States Senate, is at last going to have his say on the negro question. Whatever Mr. Williams, with his love of fair play and his wide knowledge, cares to say on this question is necessarily important. After so much that has been hurriedly and unsatisfactorily written on the negro question, Mr. Williams' article will come as a positive and valuable contribution to one of our most vexing questions. He has spent a great deal of time in the preparation of this article, which is to appear in the November Metropolitan Magazin

The Pawn.

A story of rather an unusual sort appears in the Red Book Magazine for October. It is by George Bronson-Howard and bears the title "The Pawn." Its locale is the Philippines, and while the motif of the story is rather daring, one loses thought of that in the power of the narrative and "strength" of the situation in which the three chief characters find themselves. Another excellent story is "His Price," by Rem A. Johnston, while the tale that Elliott Flower tells in "When Love Rebelled" gives a new glimpse of labor unionism. Grace Startwell Mason contributes a story entitled "The Measure of a Man" that sounds a loud, clear note of optimism, quite delightful to hear in these pessimistic times.

About Authors.

Newspapers are offering abundant sympathy to an ex-member of the craft, Will Levington Comfort, who lies on a sick bed in Michigan, oblivious to the flood of praise coming his way because of his powerful novel in the October Lippincott's. This story, "The Whited Sepulchre," deals with the destruction of Saint Pierre, as did Bulwer's masterpiece, "The Last Days of Pompeii," with Vesuvius, with which it does not suffer by comparison.

Concerning Fishing.

Men who once meet with success in fly casting for small-mouthed black bass, especially in running water, are often forever afterward "spoiled" for other kind of fishing for these game fighters of the fresh water. And in consequence they mourn away many a good fishing day on which bait casting or even trolling would afford them good sport, when the bass will pay no attention to their feathered lures. The happy man is he who is not above laying his flyrod by on occasion and giving the bass what he wants or thinks he wants; which is a meal at a gulp.—October Recreation.

America's Factories.

In the extent of its manufactures the United States passed England in 1880, and it passed England in iron and steel production in 1895, and in coal output in 1900. And in every one of these fields the United States lead is rapidly lengthening. The wealth of the United States today is $120,000,000,000, or more than that of its two nearest competitors, Great Britain and France, combined. Every successive sunrise sees $10,000,000 added to the market value of the tangible property of the United States.—From "Why Prosperity Will Continue," by James W. Van Cleave, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, in The Circle for October.

Joseph Jefferson's Compliment.

One night, many years ago, when Weber and Fields were dressing after their turn in an East Side variety house, a card was brought to them bearing the name of Joseph Jefferson, and a moment later the most distinguished actor on the legitimate stage of America was ushered into the presence of the delighted young variety actors. He complimented them both on the superior quality of their work, told Fields how much he had enjoyed his comedy, and then turning to Weber, said: "You certainly have learned how to listen, and you look so serious while you are doing it that you double the value of your partner's work. That is acting, my boy."—From "'Listening' on the Stage," by James L. Ford in the October Scribner.

A "Human Bug."

William F. Ramshauer, of New York city, who calls himself "The Human Bug," entertained a great part of Cincinnati and inhabitants of the Kentucky hills with an acrobatic performance on a flag pole recently. Ramshauer stood on his head, balanced himself on his feet, swung himself like a flag and sat cross-legged like a Turk, reading a newspaper, on the gilded ball that surmounted the thirty-foot staff on the nine story building. Crowds gathered on the down town streets and on the hills on the other side of the river and watched the steeplejack work.

All the while the pole swayed, but the "Human Bug" wasn't nervous. It was the first time he wasn't nervous for a week. He says he is always nervous when he is down on the ground, and is at his ease near the clouds. Ramshauer smokes cigarettes, which are supposed to make people shaky. —October Technical World Magazine.

This is not an epic, and poems of fifty lines are now regarded as monsters preying on magazines. The September Atlantic, however, dares to print eleven consecutive pages of verse, under the title of "Mary Armistead," a story of a veteran cavalryman in the Civil War, by Edward William Thomson. The metre is the regular blank verse pentameter; it is a firm, compacted fibre suiting admirably the military tread and swing of tehnarrative. Some one has said that our great war will eventually become our heroic age, and that future American literature will develop a Homer for it. Mr. Thomson's poem without question points towards this result, being essentially monumental in its moulding of the principal figures. The dignity, the familiarity, the humor, the red grimness of war are masterfully expressed in this story of the incident of a wet night by Tunstall's Run.

The Meagre Life.

Perceval Gibbon has the art of finding adventure in the least likely places for the least promising types as adventurers. He has chosen for the hero of his new story, which begins in the October McClure's, that least heroic of men, the canvasser. In a sordid atmosphere, with few accessories, the author succeeds at once in arresting the reader's attention and holding it without a moment's wavering until the climax at the conclusion of the first instalment. It is in the piquancy of the meeting of Watson and Mary Lyall and the unfolding of an unusual romance with a pungent tang of adventure that the story commands attention. A London lodging house keeper, although sketched in a few sentences, is, like all of Mr. Gibbon's characters, a loving, breathing creation.

Henry James' Double.

In their passion for "walking on eggs" the pair adopt similar methods of complicating the subtlety of the psychological case. Marivaux's (1687-1763) main object, it has been said, is to show "the refraction of character through different media." He carries his Marianne and Jacques through many environments, and their surfaces are chameleonic as they ascend through the strata of society. James "goes one better" in his "international" novels. Not content to show the individual's response to different surroundings in his own country, he conveys him abroad, and analyzes the influence of a foreign atmosphere on the national particularization of the individually particularized character. He must ascertain how the New Englander, Chad, has "his features retouched, his eyes cleared, his color settled, his fine square teeth polished; a form, a surface, almost a design given to him"—by the atmosphere of the French capital.—W. A. Gill, in the October Atlantic.

Episcopal Church Constitution.

For the American Episcopal church the congregation of the parish is the unit of government, and, through its elected representatives, the church wardens and vestrymen, not only holds and manages the material property of the church, but further practically elects the pastor, by sending a call to some minister whose character and teaching have recommended him to the flock. And perhaps the most liberal thing in this most liberal church is the fact that membership in the congregation, and therefore the right to vote for its governing body, is determined by no doctrinal test. And, further, the bishops of the American Episcopal church are elected by diocesan conventions, at which clergy and laity are alike represented. Everywhere the sacred principle of the spiritual validity of the whole body of the faithful is safeguarded, not merely implicitly, as in the Church of England, but explicitly and expressly, in the constitution and canons of the church. The ultimate authority is the conscience, the spirtual consciousness, of the entire body of the faithful; this is recognized as the field of inspiration, of divine light and leading.—From "Three Hundred Years of the Episcopal Church in America," by Charles Johnston, in the American Review of Reviews for October.

Pie.

The old lady who distinguished her pies by marking them with a "T," signifying "'tis mince" and "'taint mince," has been outdone by the culinary expert of a little hotel among the Green mountains. The chance guest had finished the serious part of a wholesome dinner, when the cook, who was also waitress and landlady, asked him if he didn't want some pie.

"What sort of pie have you?" he asked expectantly.

"Well, we've got three kinds," said the hostess, "open-faced, cross-barred and kivered—all apple."—Woman's Home Companion for October.

In several rooms of the capitol at Harrisburg is a type of mahogany office table 8 feet long, 4 wide, 2½ high. The cost of each table to Sanderson, the contractor, was $40. He charged the State $1,472, a commission of 3,580 per cent. Still more remarkable are two rostrums, for which $2,060 were paid the builder, and for which the State paid Sanderson $90,748.80, a commission of 4,305 per cent. It appears that all this furniture, and much more, was sold to the State "by the foot," at $18.40 a foot. If we now take the dimension of the mahogany table, which originally cost $40, and compute its feet by multiplying its length by its width, and the result by its height thus: Four times 8 is 32; 2½ times 32 is 80, and then multiply $18.40 by 80; we reach the sum of $1,472, or the price of 80 cubic feet of table paid by Pennsylvania to Sanderson. This gentleman by similar multiplications found that there were 88 feet of blacking stand—and so reached the price of $1,619.20 for that article. The rostrums were dealt with in the same cubical way, as were the hundreds and thousands of other objects that you will find distributed through the five stories of the enormous building. We Pennsylvania taxpayers have paid for I don't know how many thousands of feet of clocks, of umbrella-tubs, of clothes-trees and of filing cases.—Owen Wister, in the October Everybody's.

NEW ROCHELLE RAFFLES ONCE NEWARK BURGLAR.

Operations of Gentleman Thief, Who Played Society Role and Then Robbed Homes of Hosts.

It was made certain yesterday that the Raffles in real life who posed in New Rochelle, N. Y., as a society man, physician, man of wealth and general bon vivant, to be finally arrested for burglary and to slip through the hands of the police like a greased eel, is no more nor less than one of the gang that played a similar game in Newark four years ago. He did not evade the police of that city, however, for standing to his discredit in the Railway Reformatory is two years' service.

No one was more amused when they read of "Dr." Samuel E. Bolin's escapades in the famous resort of famous actors and writers than Detective-Sergeant Thomas Corbally and George Fohs, of the Newark police force. They remembered with perfect clearness their experience with the dapper little Russian and his pals, and his job up in the "Forty-five Minutes from Broadway" town bore many of the telltale earmaks of his Newark venture. They are confident that when he came back and reported, after getting out of prison, he was insincere in saying that he was bound for New York and intended to lead an honest life. Even the manner of procedure, even the name used, pronounce the New Rochelle man he who is 1903 executed a series of burglaries in Newark and the Oranges, the like of which in skill and daring was never imagined by E. W. Hornung in his Raffles of fictfon.

The "doctor" is still among those absent from New Rochelle, having jumped the $1,000 bond given by Dr. George Schlereth, Sr., one of his recent neighbors.

hours they had been engaged in ceaseless struggle, and now barely a hundred men, smoke-begrimed, thirsty, bleeding, half their carbines empty, they still formed an impenetrable ring around their chief. The struggle was over, and they realized the fact. When that wave of savage horsemen swept forth again it would be to ride them down, to crush them under their horses' pounding hoofs.

Like a whirlwind those red demons came—howling wolves, now certain of their prey. On both flanks of the short, slender line struck Gall and Crazy Horse, while like a thunderbolt Crow-King and Rain-in-the-Face attacked the center. These three storms converged at the foot of the hill, crushing the little band of troopers. With ammunition gone, the helpless victims could meet that mighty onrushing torrent only with clubbed guns, for one instant of desperate struggle. Shoulder to shoulder, in ever-contracting circle, officers and men stood shielding their commander to the last. Twenty or 30 made a despairing dash, in a vain endeavor to burst through the red enveloping lines, only to be tomahawked or shot; but the most remained, a thin struggling ring, with Custer in its center. Then came the inevitable end. The red waves surged completely across the crest, no white man left alive upon the field. They had fought a good fight; they had kept the faith.

Two days later, having relieved Reno from his unpleasant predicament in the valley, Terry's and Gibbons's infantry tramped up the ravine, and emerged upon the stricken field. In lines of motionless dead they read the fearful story; and there they found that man we know. Lying upon a bed of emptied cartridge shells, his body riddled with shot and mutilated with knives, his clothing torn to rags, his hands grasped a smashed and twisted carbine, his lips smiling even in death, was that soldier whom the Seventh had disowned and cast out, but who had come back to defend its chief and to die for its honor—Robert Hampton Nolan.

CHAPTER XXXV.
The Curtain Falls.

Bronzed by months of scouting on those northern plains, a graver, older look upon his face, and the bars of a captain gracing the shoulders of his new cavalry jacket, Donald Brant trotted down the stage road bordering the Bear Water, his heart alternating between hope and dread.

The familiar yellow house at the cross-roads appeared so unattractive as to suggest the thought that Naida must have been inexpressibly lonely during those months of waiting. He knocked at the sun-warped door. Without delay it was flung open, and a vision of flushed face and snowy drapery confronted him.

"Why, Lieut. Brant! I was never more surprised in my life. Do, pray, come right in. Yes, Naida is here, and I will have her sent for at once. Oh, Howard, this is Lieut. Brant, just back from his awful Indian fighting. How very nice that he should happen to arrive just at this time, isn't it?"

The young officer silently accepted Mr. Wynkoop's extended hand, and found a convenient chair, as Miss Spencer hastened from the room to announce his arrival.

"Why 'just at this time?'" he questioned.

Mr. Wynkoop cleared his throat. "Why—why, you see, we are to be married this evening—Miss Spencer and myself. We shall be so delighted to have you witness the ceremony. It is to take place at the church, and my people insist upon making quite an affair out of the occasion—Phoebe is so popular, you know."

The lady again bustled in, her eyes glowing with enthusiasm. "Why, I think it is perfectly delightful. Don't you, Howard? Now Lieut. Brant and Naida can stand up with us. You will, won't you, Lieutenant?"

"That must be left entirely with Naida for decision," he replied, soberly.

There was a rustle at the inner door, and Naida stood there. Their eyes met, and the color mounted swiftly to the girl's cheeks. Then he stepped resolutely forward, forgetful of all other presence, and clasped her hand in both his own. Neither spoke a word, yet each understood something of what was in the heart of the other.

"Will you walk outside with me?" he asked, at last. "I have much to say which I am sure you would rather hear alone."

She bent her head, and with a brief word of explanation to the others, the young officer conducted her forth into the bright July sunshine. They walked in silence side by side along the bank of the little stream. Brant glanced furtively toward the sweet, girlish face. Then he spoke.

"Naida," he said, gravely, "I have come back, as I said I would, and surely I read welcome in your eyes?"

"Yes."

"And I have come to say that there is no longer any shadow of the dead between us."

She looked up quickly, her hands clasped, her cheeks flushing. "Are you sure? Perhaps you misunderstand; perhaps you mistake my meaning."

"I know it all," he answered, soberly, "from the lips of Hampton."

"You have seen him? Oh, Lieut. Brant, please tell me the whole truth. I have missed him so much, and since the day he rode away to Cheyenne not one word to explain his absence has come back to me. You cannot understand what this means, how much he has become to me through years of kindness."

"You have heard nothing?"

"Not a word."

Brant drew a long, deep breath. He had supposed she knew this. At last he said gravely: "Naida, the truth will prove the kindest message, I think. He died in that unbroken ring of defenders clustered about Gen. Custer on the bluffs of the Little Big Horn."

Her slight figure trembled so violently that he held her close within his arms.

"There was a smile upon his face when we found him. He performed his full duty, Naida, and died as became a soldier and a gentleman."

"But—but, this cannot be! I saw the published list; his name was not among them."

"The man who fell was Robert Nolan."

Gently he drew her down to a seat upon the soft turf of the bank. She looked up at him helplessly, her mind seemingly dazed, her eyes yet filled with doubt.

"Robert Nolan? My father?"

He bent over toward her, pressing his lips to her hair and stroking it tenderly with his hand.

"Yes, Naida, darling; it was truly Robert Hampton Nolan who died in battle, in the ranks of his old regiment—died as he would have chosen to die, thank God! completely cleared of every stain upon his honor. Sit up, little girl, and listen while I tell you. There is in the story no word which does not reflect nobility upon the soldier's daughter."

She uplifted her white face. "Tell me," she said, simply, "all you know."

He recounted to her slowly, carefully, the details of that desperate journey northward, of their providential meeting on the Little Big Horn, of the papers left in his charge, of

He Held Her Close Within His Arms.

Hampton's riding forward with dispatches, and of his death at Custer's side. While he spoke, the girl scarcely moved; her breath came in sobs and her hands clasped his.

"These are the papers, Naida. I opened the envelope as directed, and found deeds to certain properties, including the mine in the Black Range; a will, duly signed and attested, naming you as his sole heir, together with a carefully prepared letter, addressed to you, giving a full account of the crime of which he was convicted, as well as some other matters of a personal nature. That letter you must read alone as his last message, but the truth of all he says has since been proved."

She glanced up at him quickly. "By Murphy?"

"Yes, by Murphy, who is now lying in the hospital at Bethune, slowly recovering. His sworn deposition has been forwarded to the department at Washington, and will undoubtedly result in the honorable replacing of your father's name on the army list. I will tell you briefly the man's confession, together with the few additional facts necessary to make it clear.

"Your father and mine were for many years friends and army comrades. They saw service together during the great war, and afterward upon the plains in Indian campaigning. Unfortunately a slight misunderstanding arose between them. One night they openly quarreled when heated by wine, and exchanged blows. The following evening your father chancing to be officer of the guard and on duty, my father, whose wife had then been dead a year, was thoughtless enough to accompany Mrs. Nolan home at a late hour from a post ball. It was merely an act of ordinary courtesy; but gossips magnified the tale, and bore it to Nolan. Still smarting from the former quarrel, in which I fear my father was in the wrong, he left the guard house with the openly avowed intention of seeking immediate satisfaction. In the meanwhile Slavin, Murphy, and a trooper named Flynn, who had been to town without passes, and were half-drunk, stole through the guard lines and decided to make a midnight raid on the colonel's private office. Dodging along behind the powder house, they ran suddenly upon my father, then on the way to his own quarters. Whether they were recognized by him, or whether drink made them reckless of consequences, is unknown, but one of the men instantly fired. Then they ran, and succeeded in gaining the barracks unsuspected."

"Donald, I Love You."

She sat as if fascinated by his recital.

"Your father heard the shot, and sprang toward the sound, only to fall headlong across my father's lifeless body. As he came heavily down, his revolver was jarred out of its holster and dropped unnoticed in the grass. An instant later the guard came running up, and by morning Capt. Nolan was under arrest charged with murder. The circumstantial evidence was strong—his quarrel with the murdered man, his heated language a few moments previous, the revolver lying beside the body, having two chambers discharged, and his being found there alone with the man he had gone forth to seek. Slavin and Flynn both strengthened the case by positive testimony. As a result, a court-martial dismissed the prisoner in disgrace from the army, and a civil court sentenced him to ten years' imprisonment."

"And my mother?" The question was a trembling whisper from quivering lips.

"Your mother," he said regretfully, "was an exceedingly proud woman, belonging to a family of social prominence in the east. She felt deeply the causeless gossip connecting her name with the case, as well as the open disgrace of her husband's conviction. She refused to receive her former friends, and even failed in loyalty to your father in his time of trial. It is impossible now to fix the fault clearly, or to account for her actions. Capt. Nolan turned over all his property to her, and the moment she could do so she disappeared from the fort, taking you with her. From that hour none of her old acquaintances could learn anything regarding her whereabouts. She did not return to her family in the east, nor correspond with anyone in the army. Probably utterly broken-hearted, she sought seclusion in some city. How [illegible] obtained possession of you remains a mystery."

"Is that all?"

"Everything."

They kept silent for a long time, the slow tears dropping from her eyes, her hands clasped in her lap. His heart, heavy with sympathy, would not permit him to break in upon her deep sorrow with words of comfort.

"Naida," he whispered at last, "this may not be the time for me to speak such words, but you are all alone now. Will you go back to Bethune with me—back to the old regiment as my wife?"

A moment she bowed her head before him; then lifted it and held out her hands. "I will."

"Say to me again what you once said."

"Donald, I love you."

Gently he drew her down to him, and their lips met.

"I wish you to be very happy, Naida, dear," he whispered, drawing her head tenderly down until it found rest upon his shoulder.

"Yes, I feel you do, and I am; but it cannot come all at once, Donald, for I have lost so much—so much. I—I hope he knows."

TWO OIL PORTRAITS PRESENTED TO COUNTY

BOTH OF WILLIAMSON; ONE AS GOVERNOR, OTHER AS CHANCELLOR.

Prominent citizens from all parts of the county were present in the Court of Common Pleas, Elizabeth, this morning, when Mrs. Emily Williamson, of that city, presented to Union county two handsome oil paintings of her father, one showing him when he was Governor of the State and the other when he was a chancellor. Recently the old Williamson mansion in Elizabeth was sold to the government as a site for the new postoffice, and in arranging to remove the household effects, Mrs. Williamson decided to present the pictures of her father to the county.

The presentation was made by former Governor Foster M. Voorhees, on behalf of Mrs. Williamson. He gave a sketch of Governor Williamson's life, referring to many incidents touching upon his work as chief executive and as a jurist. He also took occasion to pay deserving tribute to Mrs. Williamson for the excellent work performed by her in the interest of the State.

The pictures were received for the county by Judge Edward S. Atwater, who expressed his great pleasure. He announced that the pictures would be hung in the Union county room of the court house. Both stand about three feet high and are heavily framed in gold.

Among those sitting on the bench during the ceremonies were Chancellor Magie and Justice Swayze. The Plainfielders present included Walter L. Hetfield, Sr., W. R. Coddington, F. H. Smith, V. W. Nash, Jr., Freeholder S. P. T. Wilbur, E. E. Runyon, Frank J. Hubbard, Joseph A. Hubbard and F. A. Pope.

Manfred Malkin to Give Performance at the Casino on Friday. Night.

Miss Hartridge has issued invitations for a recital, by Manfred Malkin, the Russian pianist, whom she has engaged as teacher of piano in the Hartridge school. The recital will take place Friday evening at 8:30 in the Casino.

Mr. Malkin is a pupil of the celebrated De Bariot and a graduate of the French conservatory, where he took first prize.

He will give the following program: Etude, romance, prelude, scherzo, Mendelssohn; nocturne, waltz, ballade, Chopin; gavotte, Bach; etincelles, Moskowski; perpetual motion, Weber; Hungarian rhapsody, Liszt.

Held All-Day Meeting.

The women's foreign and home missionary societies of the First M. E. church held an all-day meeting in Vincent chapel, yesterday. The foreign society met in the morning and at noon luncheon was served, Rev. A. C. McCrea and Rev. Dr. G. H. Whitney being present as guests. The home society met in the afternoon and held a short business meeting. Mrs. Matthew H. Ewart was elected recording secretary, in place of Mrs. J. Hervey Doane, who was chosen corresponding secretary, filling the office made vacant by the resignation of Mrs. Isabelle A. Miller, who moved to Westfield.

Mrs. Isaac L. Miller and Miss Miller, of Watchung avenue, are expected home on Friday from their summer and fall outing.

learned to read. By arousing interest of the clergy and social workers this work might reach a larger number.

"All formalities other than those necessary for safeguarding the books have been disregarded. The public have always had access to the mass of the books; guarantors are required only where applicants are minors or are unknown at the library. Hours have been extended to a daily all-day circulation, and one evening. Sunday afternoons have been added to the reading room hours, and this attendance shows steadily increasing use. The two-book system has been for years in successful operation. Students' cards are issued to adults following individual course of study, by which a number not exceeding six books may be taken at a time, with time extension to eight weeks. Teachers may borrow an extra number of books with time extension. North Plainfield residents have library privileges at a nominal sum—or, if Plainfield taxpayers, without charge. Persons leaving town in summer have time extended on books.

"Lists for clubs or individuals are prepared on request, and a large number of less formal suggestions made to those appearing to want help, while the regularly changed books on the recent and timely shelves offer silent suggestion to the large number who do not know what to read. All these aids, together with careful selection and the published lists above referred to, have combined to bring about the high grade of reading evidenced by our low circulation percentage of fiction. From a percentage of 85 plus per cent. (including fiction and juvenile fiction) issued in the library's first year of circulation, year ending May 31, 1887, the percentage has decreased to 61 plus (including adult and juvenile fiction), a gain of 24 per cent. for the more solid reading, or limiting the comparison to adult fiction alone as there were but few children's books provided in 1887—there are 30 per cent. less books of fiction loaned now than in 1887. While not in the least depreciating the value of good fiction, we may reasonably take pride in these figures, which show the growing appreciation and use of the educational opportunity the library has ever felt its highest duty to offer.

"Books are reserved on application. Renewals may be made by mailing the library card, postal or by telephone. The telephone is also used for reference work.

"Records are so kept that a book not on the shelves can be instantly located as out in circulation, at a deposit station, at bindery or in repair closet. Records of applicants, both by number and name are kept, overdue notices sent when a book is a week overtime, and a messenger sent if two weeks over time. Almost no books are lost in circulation. Dues, fines and subscriptions are recorded daily and monthly account rendered. Before replacement on shelves, each returned book is examined, and if out of condition is put aside for repair, rebinding or withdrawal as the case may be.

"Of the 221 periodicals regularly received, each is noted in the peridical register, marked and placed in its binder or file, and previous numbers filed. As volumes are complete they are tied up, and if belonging to bound sets, sent to the bindery with directions. Others are filed in the third floor. All periodicals, bound or unbound, are entered in the card catalogue. A list of current periodicals hangs in the reading room, and a list of Poole sets. The extent of this division of our reading room is shown by the length of the published periodical list.

"The children's department is a most important feature that has been close to my heart. If it had been permitted me to see a children's room such facilities as the modern library provides, I should feel that I could leave with less regret. But we have the essential feature, a fine collection of children's books. Co-operation with the schools, and with the Mothers' Club is established. When a new building becomes a possibility the needs of this department can be more fully met, and if a reading room in the business quarter is started by all means should there be a corner, at least, where children would be welcome. There is a great need of this, as may be seen from the large number of children—even here—who have no play ground but the street.

—Dr. Albert Pittis has resumed operations on his East Front street property for the purpose of improving the same.

WATCHUNG HUNT CLUB NAMES THREE STEWARDS

EDWIN S. HOOLEY, PETER HAUCK, JR. AND HARVEY FISK PICKED.

Plans for the coming season were discussed and stewards elected to fill vacancies, together with other business, engaged the attention of the board of stewards of the Watchung Hunt Club, at the Casino, last night. Owing to the fact that Dr. M. O'M. Knott is soon to move to Millbrook, Conn., and L. S. Treadwell and C. C. Marshall are also to move away, it was necessary to accept their resignations and elect others to fill the vacancies.

The new stewards elected to serve until the annual meeting of the club on October 15 are Edwin S. Hooley, Peter Hauck, Jr., of Harrison, and Harvey Fisk. Mr. Fisk will act as secretary and treasurer in place of Mr. Treadwell.

It was announced that the first hunt would be held on Saturday, starting from the Plainfield Country Club at 2:45 o'clock. Whenever weather will permit hunts will be held every Wednesday morning and Saturday afternoon. Christopher Comins, who was in charge of the kennels last season, has been reengaged for this year. Lewis E. Waring, as master of the hounds, will participate in the hunts.

The reports showed the club to be in excellent condition, financially and otherwise. It owns twenty-five hounds, secured from the Union County Drag Hunt at Orange, and they have been taken to the club's new kennels on Mayor C. J. Fisk's farm on Park avenue. The schedule of hunts will be announced within a week or so.

Was—Is—Will Be

IT WAS, only about a year ago, just a pretty farm.

IT IS to-day the finest building site in Plainfield, with broad avenues macadamized their entire width, concrete curb, sidewalks, trees, gas, electric light, in fact all improvements. Nearly $100,000 expended in new and handsome dwellings, now ready for the market.

WHAT IT WILL BE we hardly dare predict, with contracts out for even more extensive improvements and twelve more handsome residences.

Central Park is that beautifully situated tract bounded by Park, Prospect, Hillside and Thornton Avenues.

ASSEMBLYMEN HIT STOKES

His Message That Session Laws Awaited Their Action Stirs Up Trouble.

POLITICAL BUNCOMBE

Sullivan and Baker Sharply Arraign the Governor In Replying to Barber—Joke Over G. O. P. Platform.

Governor Stokes sent to both houses at Trenton yesterday a special message, which told the members that the session laws awaited on their action, counseled legislation along the pledges of both political platforms, and a sine die adjournment.

The Governor said: "The Legislature has now been in session since January with frequent recesses. Until a final day is fixed for the enactment of laws, the session laws cannot be printed, and the statutes are to that extent confused. I have recommended the enactment of measure of public importance. Some of these have already been passed by one branch of the Legislature. These measures have now been indorsed by the platforms of both parties, and there would seem to be, therefore, no further excuse for delay in their enactment.

"I again recommend the prompt passage of these measures and suggest that the Legislature fix a date for the termination of legislation."

In the House the members indulged in an acrimonious debate, during which Mr. Barber, of Mercer, told the Democrats that they had been playing politics and indulging in political buncombe.

Mr. Sullivan came back with the view that the message of Governor Stokes asking the Legislature to adjourn because the Session Laws had not been published was the "worst piece of political buncombe I have ever seen, when it is remembered that last year when the session of the Legislature was over in April the Governor did not complete signing the laws until late in November."

Mr. Baker, of Hudson, made an attack on the Governor, saying that the worst piece of political buncombe he had seen was "the convention of Republicans two weeks ago resolving in their platform that we 'indorse the wise administration of Edward Casper Stokes.'" A committee on final adjournment was finally named to meet a Senate committee on Oct. 11 and fix the date for final adjournment.

BASEBALL DINNER.

Covers Will Be Laid for Twenty-Five at Y. M. C. A. Affair.

All the plans for the dinner to be given by the Y. M. C. A. to its baseball nine Saturday night have been completed. The affair will be held in the main parlor. Covers will be laid for twenty-five, and among the guests expected are Manager Ernest Dortlinger and Captain Brit Martin of the pennant-winning Clinton Avenue nine. Brit wouldn't think of accepting the invitation until he was assured that a speech wouldn't required of him.

Speechmaking, however, there will be. President Gavett will make an address and Manager Listman will also speak. Captain Howard Craig is an accomplished orator, and he, too, will have to weave a few sentences for his faithful fellow-athletes.

For Y. M. C. A. State Orchestra.

A. boys, who have played in the Boys' Orchestra, or such as desire to play in the State Orchestra at the conference on Boys' Work, at Ridgewood, October 25-27, are invited to confer with Mr. Robbie as to how to arrange the matter. The State Orchestra will be made up from the twenty-two associations represented at the conference, and will play at all the sessions of the delegates. Special concerts will be given. M. A. Korff has been appointed conductor.

Mormon Missionaries.

The recent request of representatives of the Mormon church to conduct public meetings in Bloomfield has brought a protesting petition from Woman's Christian Temperance Union members here. The town council has been asked to refuse permission to the Mormon missionaries to meet here. If the town officials do not deny them the right to conduct meetings the women threaten to take the matter into their own hands.

BABY CAMP CARED FOR 1,050 CHILDREN

AND IN SEPT. ALONE DAY NURSERY HAD 199 LITTLE ONES.

Reports concerning the condition of the day nursery and the baby camp on the mountain were received this morning at an executive committee meeting of the City Union of the King's Daughters and the past season was considered most satisfactory.

It was reported that the Day Nursery building on West Third street has been painted, papered and the new bathtub and fixtures, donated by Mrs. Percy Stewart, installed. The nursery was reopened September 1, and during that month 199 children were cared for by the day. It was also stated that there is no furnace in the building and would be appreciated exceedingly.

There was also a report from the camp committee, which was very encouraging. The camp was open seven weeks, and during that time 1,050 children were cared for there, receiving substantial benefit. In all 3,150 meals were served. During September the nurse made sixty-two visits. The report of the treasurer showed a balance of $354.07. Contributions for either the camp or Day Nursery work are always acceptable.

TEETH DOCTORS PLAN LOCAL ORGANIZATION

DENTISTS TAKE STEPS TO GET TOGETHER HERE.

A movement is on foot among the dentists of the city and borough to form an organization similar to that of the local physicians. The first steps in this direction were taken at a meeting held recently at the home of Dr. Frank T. Clawson on Park avenue. At that time the advisability of forming such an organization was discussed and it was unanimously favored.

Another meeting is to be held soon to perfect the details. The objects of the association are to promote the interests of the members and to bring about a co-operation not existing at present. The members plan to meet once a month, and aside from the business interests to be considered there will be social features. There are twenty-three dentists in the city and borough and assurances that all will join the association have been received.

VETS DIME SOCIAL.

Musical songs, Miss Moffett; readings, Miss Harriet Gibbons; remarks, Comrades Naylor, Wagner and Townley; monologue, Comrade Henry Frazee; reading, Mrs. Henry Frazee; remarks, Comrade Augustus Runyon; song, Mr. Oakley, of Westfield.

Refreshments were served in conclusion and a half hour was spent socially.

Richard Scott, the colored chauffeur who was in the automobile that killed Marcus J. Jacobs, the theatrical man, a week ago in Newark, was released from the Essex County Jail yesterday, where he had been confined since Saturday. Dr. William F. McFarlane and F. E. Myers, other occupants of the car, are still at large. Dr. Walter H. Morris was at the wheel when the fatality occurred, according to the negro. The doctor is at liberty under bail on a charge of manslaughter.

Express Kills Man.

Servis, a section foreman, of Orange street, Newark, were struck by the Buffalo express from New York, on the Lackawanna Railroad in Harrison yesterday afternoon. Romalo was hurled twenty feet and killed. Servis escaped with a slight injury to his left leg.

COLBY RAPS THE SENATE

Regulars Defeat the Brady Bill and Reform Leader Speaks Plainly.

PLATFORM IS INSINCERE

In the House, Colby's Direct Primary Measure Is Also Beaten By Vote of 25 to 10.

When the State Senate met at Trenton yesterday Senator Colby introduced the direct primary act which does away with all conventions. The measure was referred to the committee on elections.

The Brady House bill for the expression of popular choice for United States Senator was taken taken up and lost, the Republican regulars holding that this act was the Oregon act and circumvented the constitution of the United States. Senator Colby attacked the regulars' position, saying that the act allowed the fullest expression of a popular will.

"If you do not want this act, then you do not the Republican platform declaration for the voice of the people in the selection of United States Senators. That is as true as Gospel," he said hotly.

Senator Hillery, the Republican leader, did not agree with him, saying that the Senate bill requiring 200 petitioners in each county was a simpler method, and was not in violation of either the United States or the State constitution.

In the House Mr. Klenert, Passaic, reported the Colby direct primary act. Mr. Hendrickson, Hudson, objected to the clause which would make the Governor and members of Congress come under the direct operation of the act, saying that the populous sections of the State would always get those nominations. But the Democrats voted down his amendment, which was to exempt those offices from the act. On the final vote the direct primary act was lost, 25 to 10.

ASSEMBLY CHOPS UP PUBLIC UTILITIES BILL

THEN PASSES SENATE MEASURE IN MUTILATED FORM.

The Assembly at Trenton yesterday, after amending the Senate public utilities bill, passed it on third reading under suspension of the rules by a vote of 34 to 6. The six negatives were Republicans—Drake, Lillagore, Potter, Ridgeway, Smalley and Taylor.

The measure as amended provides for an elective commission of three, abolishes the railroad commission, provides an additional penalty of $1,000 for failure to accept the rulings of the commission by a public utility or railroad, and allows the commission to fix rates, and gives full power to abolish grade crossings.

It is certain that the Senate will not agree to this measure, the elective feature being one which the Senators have determined would allow the railroads as well as a public utility to get into politics in order to elect the three men they wanted as commissioners.

FIRE AT UNION VILLAGE.

Former Mayor Lang's Barn and Contents Completely Destroyed.

A large barn on the property of former Mayor Lang, of Newark, located at Union Village, was totally destroyed by fire yesterday. The structure was filled to the roof with hay and grain and the first floor held a lot of farming implements, all of which were consumed. The damage is placed at $10,000, partly covered by insurance.

A threshing machine and its corps of men was on the premises yesterday, and it is thought some one started the blaze by dropping a match or cigar stump in the loose hay. The threshers did not discover the blaze until it was beyond control, and they had hardly enough time to save the live stock.

Fire at the Park Club.

The borough fire department was called out at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon for a slight blaze at the Park Club. Sparks from a defective chimney set fire to the roof and the flames were in a threatening mood when discovered. The chemical stream sufficed to end the trouble before any serious damage had resulted.

Forty-two New Shriners.

More than twenty-five Plainfield members of Salaam Temple, Ancient Arabic Order Nobles Mystic Shrine, attended the meeting held in Newark last night and witnessed the initiation of forty-two members. A banquet followed.

WANT $100,000 SCHOOL

Board of Estimate to Withdraw Its Request for $90,000 Building.

MAYOR FISK'S IDEA

Alteration In Plans Deemed False Economy—Action to be Taken at Once.

Realizing that it is practically impossible for the city to erect the proposed new primary school at Darrow avenue and Essex street for the original amount appropriated, $90,000, owing to the great advance in materials and labor, the Board of Education, following the reception of bids for the work of construction, asked the Board of School Estimate, which is to have returned the petition sent to the Common Council asking for the appropriation of $90,000, and to have another request for a larger amount framed.

The Board of School Estimate met yesterday afternoon in the office of Mayor Fisk, and it was then decided to send a communication to the Common Council at its meeting Monday night, asking that the petition in question be returned. After discussing the situation at some length the Board of School Estimate decided that about $10,000 additional would be needed for the purpose. This would give the city practically a fireproof building, which the new $125,000 High School is not.

The bids submitted Monday night for the new building, with the exception of those of John Abbott, were all above the $90,000 appropriation. On each one of his three bids Mr. Abbott was below those figures, but these do not include fees of architect.

Mayor Fisk is strongly impressed with the idea that the city should appropriate an addition sum to give the adequate school facilites, and he beleves that the Common Council will decide to give the extra amount needed. Another city official speaking of the matter said today that when it is considered that Plainfield's bonded indebtedness is only about $325,000 on a $22,000,000 valuation the city can be considered in a good financial condition and quite fortunate.

MADISON LINEMAN KILLED AT CRANFORD.

George Vonnell, Shocked When Telegraph and Telephone Wires Cross, Falls from Pole.

Cranford, Oct. 3.—George Vonnell, about thirty-five years old, a lineman, of Madison, was instantly killed while at work here yesterday. He fell from a high pole.

Vonnell, who was an employe of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company, had gone up the pole to repair a wire. He had been at work but a moment when he fell.

A telephone wire becoming crossed with a telegraph wire caused him to receive such a shock that he lost his hold. It is not known whether he was killed by the fall or by the volts of electricty which he received.

Vonnell leaves a widow.

New Buildings On Madison Avenue.

William Mills broke ground on Madison avenue, between Front and Second streets, this morning, for a one story cement block building which he will use as a tin shop. Permission to use the hollow cement blocks was granted at the last meeting of the Common Council. Directly opposite, Miss Stephenson, formerly of North avenue, will erect a one story building, to be used for her catering business. It will occupy a portion of the old Gillies property, which she recently purchased.

Goodrich and the attendance included fifty members of the Carpenters' Union. The pall-bearers, who were from the organization, were David Bodine, Herman Overland, A. V. Whitlock and Walter Harris. Burial was made at Rock Hill this morning.

ABUSED WIFE SAVED HIM

Scathing Rebuke and Stern Warning for Henry Donnelly in Court.

RUM HIS DOWNFALL

Sacrificed All In His Craving for Strong Drink—Judge Listens to His Noble Wife's Plea.

The wife he abused saved Henry Donnelly, 30 years old, from jail this morning. It was for her sake alone, and to save her from complete homelessness, that Judge Runyon refrained from giving Donnelly, who was arraigned in the city court on his wife's complaint, the heavy dose that is usually meted out to men brought before the magistrate on such complaints.

Donnelly has taken no sort of care of his wife and child for three years. Drink has been the only thing he cared for, and to it he sacrificed everything, including all their little store of furniture, until today wife and child are without anything that makes a home.

"Donnelly," said the judge in disposing of the case, "I am going to let you go only for the sake of your wife. I don't like you a bit; you are yellow all the way through. But you have promised snivellingly to do better, and because your wife would be left entirely helpless if I did anything else, I am going to give you a chance to keep your promise. She has promised to let me know the first time she detects in you any sign of liquor—whether it is one glass or twenty makes no difference—and you had beter not attempt to intimidate her to keep that report from me. I would learn of it sooner or later, and the dose coming to you would be measured accordingly. Now take your chance, and see if you can't make up for the rotten years that have passed."

MILK DEALERS HAVE NEW FACTOR TO CONSIDER

INCREASED PRICE HAS RESULTED IN DECREASED ORDERS IN MANY PLACES.

The milk dealers may not make as much as they figured when they put up the price of milk and cream. From what housewives say and observant folk have noticed, it is becoming certain that the advance will result in an appreciable decrease in the consumption of milk.

As soon as the advance was announced many of the housewives went through rapid calculations, and then decided that they could get along with less milk. In a good many families a quart was taken, more to insure a plentiful supply than because of actual necessity. More or less of the milk was thrown away each day to make room for the fresh supply. In these families the housewives have simply made up their minds to be a bit careful in using milk, and have cut down their order from a quart to a pint daily. In some of the houses, to be sure, the pint will be found to be just a mite too little, just as the quart was found to be a little too much, but in most of the households the pint will do all the everyday milk service required, and in those households the dealers will have lost three cents each day, instead of gaining one cent.

That the general reduction in milk consumption has begun was brought to the attention of one of the observers, mentioned in the foregoing, last night, on his way home from a meeting. In the New Madison flat block he counted eight pint bottles set out for the customers. They told eloquently, if silently, of changed orders. It is to be wondered if the dealers will not find the advance too hurtful to maintain.

Another thing is the fact that housewives can fall back on condensed milk as a substitute.

County Chairman's Anniversary.

County Chairman and Mrs. F. H. Smith, of West Fourth street, celebrated the tenth anniversary of their wedding Monday night, and in honor of the event they entertained the card club, of which they are members. The club remembered the celebrants by presenting them with a handsome copper tankard. The evening was spent playing cards, after which supper was served.

Weekly Dance a Success.

The weekly dance given at Saengerbund Hall last proved a success. It was largely attended, and the music of Prof. Charles M. Suhr's orchestra was a feature. Among the patrons were people from Dunellen and Bound Brook as well as from this city.

THOUGHT BRIDAL GIFTS WERE IN DANGER OF THEFT

BUT SUSPICIOUS CHARACTER TURNED OUT TO BE JUSTICE HAND.

Charles Burt, of 916 Putnam avenue, telephoned to police headquarters at 12:30 o'clock this morning that a man was trying to break into the house of Richard M. Boardman, next door. Miss Leese, sister of Mrs. Boardman, who lives with her, is to be married Saturday, and Mr. Burt suspected that the underworld was reaching out after the gifts, which are many and valuable.

The patron wagon, with Policemen O'Keefe and Saffron in it, was sent out in a hurry. The "burglar" welcomed them with cordiality. He was Justice of the Peace and District Court Officer Hezekiah Hand, acting temporarily as detective. He was on duty for Mr. Boardman, watchung the gifts that were supposed to have been in danger.

The justice-court-officer - detective was a bit put out over the suspicion directed at him, but admitted that he might have moved around in a way to upset a neighbor who didn't know the official position of the justice, etc. The policemen left 2the guardian of the gifts on the porch, and told Mr. Burt not to be suspicious any more.

BRICK PAVING WORK STARTED THIS MORNING

LARGE SECTION LAID ON PARK AVENUE BY NOON.

The work of placing the brick pavement over the concrete bed already in position, was commenced on Park avenue this morning. A gang of expert setters began operations at Front street and by noon had laid a large section, approximately 100 feet. The pavement is going down nicely and it is hoped to reach Second street by Saturday at the latest.

Foreman Quinn, who has had a wide experience in setting brick, declared the concrete foundation to be the best he has encountered in years and that the city has gotten more than its money's worth in the job. It is a common thing, he said, to find the "bed" made with an inferior quality of cement and little of it, at that, but no such remark can ever be passed about the one on Park avenue.

Contractor Meeker has been put to considerable inconvenience and expense by an order prohibiting him from mixing light and dark colored brick in one section of the pavement. When the material was unloaded on the walks, no attempt was made to separate the various shades and it was the intention to lay the brick just as they came to hand. City Engineer Gavett decreed, however, that only one color should be used in order to have the pavement uniform and this is being done. Only the dark-colored material is being put down and the others will be carted over to Somerset street. The order necessitated a new supply for Park avenue and is holding back the setting as the laborers have to carry the brick from Front street as the work progresses. They can only keep one setter busy on a line, whereas two can be on the job when the piles are near at hand.

The concrete mixer secured by Contractor Meeker two days ago went on its good behavior this morning and is shoving operations along at a swift pace. The foundation men will now be able to keep about a block ahead of the setters.

Police Save Clothiers' Signs.

Telephoning from his home on Duer street, J. Weinberger, of Weinberger & Co., clothiers, of West Front street, reported to the police at 6:30 o'clock this morning that he had just been told that a colored man was taking down the signs at his store. Policeman O'Keefe, sent to the place to investigate, found Oscar Hamilton removing the signs. Hamilton said Mrs. Weinberger, widow of a former proprietor of the business, had instructed him to do it. O'Keefe stopped him.

MURDER SUSPECT FREED

Alibi Developes for Michael Marasquiano, Who Was Arrested Yesterday.

HERE DAY OF KILLING

Almost Overcome With Joy When Released In Court This Morning—Ovation From Fellow-Laborers in Paving Gang.

Michael Marasquiano, the ruddy-haired laborer arrested while at work on the street paving job on Park avenue yesterday on suspicion of being Giacomo Fanella, "wanted" by the police of Niagara Falls, N. Y., for the killing of Mrs. Mary Tallery, regained his freedom this morning. Although he answered the description of the murderer in every detail, even to the length of time he has been in this country, one thing developed quickly after his arrest that freed him. The police learned that the shooting was done on September 27, and complete proof was produced to show that the suspect had been in this city, and hard at work, all that day.

Marasquiano, who had been frightened almost to the point of collapse by his arrest, was nearly overcome with joy when City Judge Runyon told him to go in court this morning. He forgot his hat and coat on the bench, and started to run out of the courtroom bareheaded. His fellow-laborers paused in their work to give him a little ovation when he returned to the gang. The men who came from the same village embraced him with Italian effusiveness, to the amazement of the people who had paused to watch the work.

Although Marasquiano does not know it, the police are not quite certain that his abili is as satisfactory as it might be. He will be kept under surveillance until all doubt of his innocence is removed.

SCHUYLER AGAIN REPRIVED.

Governor Puts Off His Execution Until November 1.

Trenton, Oct. 3.—Governor Stokes yesterday granted an additional reprive until November to John Schuyler, of Hunterdon county, who was convicted for the murder of Manning Riley at Califon, and was to hang next Friday at Flemington. Colonel Edward Fox, of the executive department, left yesterday afternoon with the reprieve for the condemned man. The Governor received a letter yesterady, signed by many prominent citizens of Hunterdon county, stating that they believed that Schuyler was innocent and requesting that he receive a reprieve.

This course was brought about yesterday, when former Judge Herr and H. L. Stout, who defended Schuyler, made application for a reprieve in order that they may obtain additional evidence, and Governor Stokes advised the counselors to secure the signatures of a number of people as to their views in the case.

"Way Down East," that old-time friend with recollections enshrined in laughter and sentiment is abroad in the land once again. This splendid play of the New England farm, with its happy folks and good strong plot, with a plentitude of stars in contrast to the peals of laughter, is so well known that it is absolutely unnecessary to attempt to elaborate the genial atmosphere that pervades from the rise to fall of the curtain. It is to be at the New Plainfield theatre this afternoon and tonight.

Miss Mamie Fleming, a big favorite, comes to the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night in a play new to local theatre-goers, entitled, "Girl of Eagle Ranch," which is a play dealing with life in the far West. Most of the scenes are laid in Montana, and the central character is that of a good hearted athletic young woman, who performs acts of heroism and is the pride of the hardy citizens. Then the scene shifts to Denver, showing the parlor of the Mountain House, which is said to be a remarkable bit of stage realism. A novel feature of the production will be the introduction of high class vaudeville by Miss Fleming, Valley Forge Quartette, Miss Primrose, W. H. Gracey and others. The company surrounding the little star is said to be uniformly excellent.

The most successful star and play on the road this season unquestionably is Max Figman in "The Man on the Box," which is announced for next Saturday afternoon and night at the New Plainfield theatre. From the Atlantic to the Pacific oceans and from Manitoba to Texas the testimony of the press and public has been that of unstinted praise. There has not been one dissenting voice among the critics, and from a monetary standpoint this attraction has been the envy of all competitors. "The Man on the Box" was dramatized from Harold MacGrath's book of the same name, and, contrary to the usual run of book plays, has not proven a disappointment to the readers. The salient features of the story are fully retained and framed in an environment of strong and brisk dramatic action expressed in brilliant and witty dialogue.

"Mr. Blue Beard," conceded by press and public to be the best and brightest comedy production now on tour, is to be the offering at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night. The comedy has been called a comedy cocktail, which seems a befitting description, as the performance is bright, lively, snappy and entrancing, and local theatre-goers who relish tuneful music and bright dialogue, presented by an excellent cast of players, together with magnificent scenery and gorgeous costumes, may look forward to a most satisfying entertainment. The story of "Mr. Blue Beard" is one of humorous complications, and the interest never lags, but holds the attention of the auditor to the final curtain. The novelty of plot, together with the in-

When public endorsement is made by a representative citizn of Plainfield the proof is positive. You must believe it. Read this testimony. Every backache sufferer, every man, woman or child with any kidney trouble will find profit in the reading.

Andrew Mattis, carpenter, of 127 West Fourth street, Plainfield, N. J. says: "I have been troubled for years with dull backache and pain in the back of my head, caused by kidney complaint. I was hurt severely some time ago by falling from a scaffold and the physicians thought my spine was injured. I think that fall injured my kidneys. As nothing else that I tried seemed to help my back or kidneys, I decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills and got a supply at Randolph's pharmacy. I have now taken nearly three boxes, and find that the backache and headaches have disappeared."

genuity of treatment and the bright dialogue are the magnets that possess the attributes that go to make this entertainment popular with theatre-goers.

Helen Grantly will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre October 8, in the great New York sensation, "The Woman in the Case," by Clyde Fitch, author of "The Climbers," "The Moth and the Flame," and numerous other well known plays. New York took kindly to Miss Grantly and to the pictures of the life and people as told by Mr. Fitch. The story of the play is that of a wife who must prove her husband innocent of a murder of which he has been wrongfully and vindictively charged. There is but one way to wring the truth from his accuser—a woman of the town. To do this she must win the woman's confidence, play upon her weakness, externally live her life; persuade her finally to tell the tale that will prove the so-called murder was suicide. The wife is all resolute devotion, the other woman all vindictiveness. There are two acts of preparation. The third shows the two face to face. There is a hint of the woman's repulsion toward all that her effort brings upon her, another of the chief resolutions that upbears her. Then the last battle begins. The tide ebbs and flows. The wife learns this, learns that, but the truth she seeks evades her. Then she begins to play upon the woman's vindictiveness. Inch by inch they near the confession. At last it comes. The wife springs upon her husband's traducer, half in triumph, half in wild relief from all that she has endured. There is no sparing of what it is the fashion to call "unpleasant details," but these details serve to bring the spectator into closer touch with living emotions in vital conflict. Of Miss Grantly's acting it is declared that she has never shown such finesse, pliancy, or even such intensity, although for the latter she has always been justly famed, as she displays in the role of Mrs. Rolfe. Miss Grantly will be supported by a splendid company of prominent players.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

FOOTBALL.

The Plainfield High School candidates are working out in good shape, and it is predicted that the school will have the strongest eleven in its history. The boys are out for practise every day and are doing good signal work.

The Daily Princetonian calls attention to the fact that every college generation at Princeton has witnessed at least one victory over Yale, and that unless there is to be a break in the rule Princeton must win from Yale this year. The last Princeton victory over Yale was in 1903—De Witt's team. However, whether Princeton wins or loses this year, the present generation will have seen one game in which the Tigers were not beaten. That would be a negative satisfaction which hardly would satisfy Nassau's sons, though things might be worse.

Teddy Roosevelt, Jr., has yielded to the call of the gridiron. It was announced a few days ago that young Roosevelt would not try for the team this year, but he has reported on Soldier's Field at Cambridge as a candidate for end. He played that position on the Harvard freshman team two years ago and stood up in the path of the onrushing Yale freshmen without a flinch until another youth was sent in to take his place. Theodore, Jr., is light and not likely to become varsity material, but like many another young fellow at college who has but slight chance of making the team, keeps on trying. Dill Starr apparently has gone back to quarter for good. Starr was a cracking good quarterback year before last. Also he played some good games at end last year, in the Indian contest especially, but did not show to especial advantage in the Yale scrap. However, his work at end was such that his return to the backfield means that there is promising end material on hand. It will be a pretty fight between him and Newhall for varsity quarter.

Leonard J. Clarkson, of the Norwich University team, who died in Hanover on Monday as a result of injuries sustained in the Dartmouth game last Saturday, had an attack of appendicitis last summer. He played football this fall against the advice of his team mates, and on Saturday last suffered a rupture of the intestines. His father, according to an account, says his son's death was the result not of the football game but of his impaired physical condition.

The New York University football team had a fast signal practise Tuesday in preparation for the opening game at Ohio Field on Saturday, when St. Stephen's College, of Annandale, will be played for the first time in six years. In addition to the signal work, Olcott, the coach, gave the men a long drill in catching punts, later sending the ends and linemen down the field under the punts. A good punter appeared in Rust, '09, who has solved scholarship difficulties, and is almost now to regain the position at quarterback he won in his freshman year. "Tom" Reilley, '05, captain of the 1904 team, was on the field to help in the coaching. A short practise game will be played with Webb.

COLBY MAY WITHDRAW FROM THE CAMPAIGN

REGULARS MUST LIVE UP TO PLATFROM HE SAYS.

Senator Everett J. Colby in Newark yesteday set at rest all doubts as to his position in the Republican party by joining forces to work for the election of John Franklin Fort and the Assembly candidates. He had intimated that he would "sit down" unless the Republican Senate passed suitable legislation.

"If the Republican Senate shows any inclination to dodge the spirit of the platform that the party adopted, I certainly will not work, and will sit down," he said. "I am willing and ready to work for the party," he added, "but, I repeat, I will not do so if, in my mind, there is any attempt to sidetrack legislation that has been advocated in the platform upon which we all agreed."

"We have no intention whatever of giving up our work," said a prominent New Idea leader yesterday. "While we have discontinued work in our own headquarters, practically, because we have joined with our former opponents, yet we have decided to have the rooms of our organization in readiness at any time to take up the work if we are of the opinion that the regulars are trying to swallow us and defeat our principles."

Franklin Council No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet tonight and complete details for the entertainment to be held at the Casino Thursday night, October 10.

Plainfield, N. J., October 3, 1907.

Judging by his remarks in the Senate yesterday, Mr. Colby like Mr. Ackerman believes that lawmakers should not play politics.

When Mr. Katzenbach is "in our midst" on Saturday, he's going to tell us just where he stands on the Bishops' bill. Isn't that so, Mr. Collins?

The New York Press' declaration that Frank S. Katzenbach is losing ground every day, brings up the question as what ground he ever held.

At first glance, it appeared like a newcomer but its newsy appearance showed that it was only the New Brunswick Times in a new suit of clothes. Middlesex is fortunate in having such a paper.

Don't fail to go and see the "Gathering of the Clans" at the Casino. They assemble at the playhouse on Thursday, October 17. The proceeds will go to the most worthy of all local charities, the hospital.

The good whole-souled ne'er to be down-hearted farmer-orator says that Mr. Katzenbach will be given a dinner when he invades Plainfield on Saturday. Of course that means that Jim will pay the freight as he always has. In the face of such rank and persistent ill-treatment at the hands of his friends, isn't our Democratic friend truly a political martyr?

Evidently Mr. Fort thinks better of Mr. "Sam" Dickinson than do the vast majority of his fellow Republicans since the man who unfortunately clings to the office of Secretary of State has been made a member of the State Republican executive committee. The gubernatorial nominee neglected a splendid opportunity when he did not demand that the Hudson county man be ousted from the position.

The Netherwood residents who are rightly complaining of poor mail service can best obtain satisfactory deliveries and collections by filing a protest with the postmaster who would, no doubt, immediately bring the condition of affairs to the attention of the authorities at Washington. Certainly something should be done to remedy the shabby service in that section and no better method could be devised than by registering a good solid "kick."

Mr. Roosevelt seems to think that the "Full Dinner Pail" dog has had his day. Though industrial enterprises all over the land continue to retrench and lay off hands, he keeps rapping away at the business interests.—Trenton True American.

In thus classifying criminal trusts among the business interests, the Trenton's so-called Democratic paper not only preaches an undemocratic idea but lives up to its reputation of filling its editorial columns with rot.

POLITICAL NOTES

The Warren County Democratic Convention at Belvidere yesterday renominated Joseph H. Firth, of Phillipsburg, for Assembly.

The Democratic city convention at Paterson by acclamation nominated Dr. Andrew McBride for Mayor. Dr. McBride has been county physician for a number of years. The Republican nominee for Mayor is Alvin Smith, now a member of the Board of Alderman.

Auto Notes.

Frank L. C. Martin and William Mazzocco returned yesterday from their trip west, where they have been for the past two weeks inspecting the 1908 models of the various makes of automobiles. They are very enthusiastic over the outlook for the cars their company will handle next year.

VOTING MACHINES ARE ASSIGNED FOR ELECTION.

Secretary of State Orders 361 Placed in as Many Districts.

Secretary of State Samuel D. Dickinson has assigned 361 voting machines to as many voting districts in New Jersey to be used at the coming election on November 5. The total number of machines is the same this year as last, but under the new assignment some new districts are named and some of the old ones are cut off the machine list.

The total number of changes in the assignment of machines is thirty-nine. In Hudson county eight machines are dropped, in Cape May one, in Gloucester three, in Morris three, in Middlesex one, in Burlington three, in Ocean seven, in Atlantic four and in Cumberland nine. In Ocean and Atlantic counties all of the machines used there last year are removed. In Cumberland county there were thirteen last year, and with the removal of nine this year but four remain.

In Passaic county but fifteen machines are added, six of which go to Passaic City and nine to Paterson. Eight machines are added in Sussex county, two in Bergen and four in Mercer. The added machines in Camden county go to Camden City, while the four new ones in Mercer go to Trenton.

Assistant Secretary of State Smith was still working on the report locating the voting machines when seen by a Press correspondent last night, and expressed much satisfaction at the number of requests for voting machines from several counties during the day. He said it had been the purpose of the department to comply as nearly as possibly with the requests of the different communities regarding the location of machines; that it had been its desire to take machines away from those places where they were not cared for and locate them in places where they were sought after.

The eighteen machines which had been marked for removal from the Eleventh and Fifteenth Wards of Newark were, upon consideration of Senator Colby and Chairman Dalrymple, retained.

NON-RESIDENT PUPILS CROWD DOVER SCHOOLS.

Wherefore an Additional Teacher Is to Be Engaged.

Dover, Oct. 3.—Supervising Principal J. Howard Hulsart, in his report to the Board of Education last night, called attention to the great pressure for the admission of non-resident pupils in the Dover schools. There are, he said, upward of ninety outside pupils already admitted. More than fifty of these are in the High School grades and most of the others are from Randolph township and are attending the Belmont avenue school, which is not crowded.

The extra High School pupils are accommodated with difficulty, Mr. Hulsart said, but it was thought best to admit them, as there will be plenty of room as soon as the new high school is finished.

MR. FORT'S ITINERARY IS NOW MAPPED OUT

FLYING TOUR OF GUBERNATORIAL CANDIDATE NEXT WEEK.

A partially prepared itinerary of the first week's campaign of John Franklin Fort, the Republican Gubernatorial candidate, was given out this morning by Assistant Prosecutor Wilbur A. Mott, who is in direct charge of the plans for the nominee's travels between now and election day. There are some little details yet to be completed, such as hearing from the county leaders as to just where and when they wish the candidate to appear, but Mr. Mott said it had been definitely decided what route Mr. Fort would take next week, anyhow.

The campaign will be considered as being formally opened Friday night, when Mr. Fort will be the principal speaker at a big meeting to be held in the Krueger Auditorium, at which place it is expected he will take up teh platform of the party and define his position on the different planks. He will spend today at his Spring Lake cottage preparing this speech, and today will quite possibly go to the Trenton Interstate Fair. Tonight he will be given a reception, or serenade, at his Spring Lake home by Monmouth county Republicans. Governor Stokes is expected to be present at this and will join with Mr. Fort in receiving the guests. Friday the candidate will return to his East Orange home with his family, and Saturday night expects to be in attendance at the Republican convention at Jersey City.

The real tour of the State will begin Monday, Mr. Mott said. Mr. Fort will that day appear in Somerset county, making a dozen or so speeches there, as he will every day thereafter until election. Just where the big meeting will be held in Somerset county Mr. Mott said he had not heard yet, but expects to get into communication with Senator Frelinghuysen this afternoon to ascertain his wishes in the matter.

From Somerset the candidate will go into Mercer county on Tuesday, and the night meeting will be held at Princeton. On Wednesday the western end of Burlington county will be visited, with the night meeting either at Mt. Holly or Burlington. This is Mr. Fort's native county, and it is understood he will spend a few hours with his father and sister during the stop at Mt. Holly. Thursday the candidate will go north again into Middlesex county, and it is supposed will speak that night in New Brunswick. The following day will be devoted to a tour of Passaic county, and on Saturday, October 12, Bergen county will be the field traversed, with a night meeting at Hackensack.

Just who the speakers will be who will accompany Mr. ort on next week's trip Mr. Mott was unable to say this morning. He did say, however, that the candidate's tour would be by automobile, and that flying trips would be made from town to town.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

There will be a social and reception at the Christian church tonight, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society. An informal program of music will be given, followed by refreshments.

The young people of the First Baptist church will meet in the lecture room of the church tomorrow night to hear the report of the committee on nomination and organization of the new society.

A series of four lessons on "The Crises of the Christ" will be given by Miss Emily Cramp Taylor, of Philadelphia, at the Young Women's Christian Association, on East Front street, on Tuesdays, October 15, 22 and 29 and November 5 at 3:30 o'clock. ELIZABETH GETS AFTER THE RECKLESS AUTOIST

TO HAVE ORDINANCE TO PREVENT HIGH SPEEDING.

Warned by the Jacobs fatality in Newark of the results which may follow a loose enforcement of the speed laws, and remembering that "a stitch in time saves nine," Mayor P. J. Ryan, in a communication to the Elizabeth Council Tuesday night, urged action looking towards the most effective police regulation possible of the automobile traffic. The law committee will frame an ordinance to carry out the Mayor's recommendations. Mayor Ryan's letter was as follows:

"I am prompted by the many accidents that occur outside of our city and the many narrow escapes that we have had here from reckless and fast driving of automobiles to call your atteption to the situation. Lying as our city does on the main thoroughfare between the large cities of New York and Philadelphia, there are many automobiles that are constantly passing through the city to both points named and to other places in New Jersey, that are driven at a reckless speed, and I am sure in violation of the State laws.

"This practise is not alone confined to non-residents, as I regret to say, from reports that I have received, that some of our citizens who can afford a conveyance of this kind are not respecters of the law as regards speed. Many serious accidents have occurred recently where an automobile, run at a rapid rate and at times getting beyond the control of the driver, has resulted in loss of limb, and what is worse, loss of life. Before any serious accident takes place in our city, as may happen at any time, I would urge your honorable body to refer this communication to the proper committee so that the same may be acted upon in a legal manner without delay and thereby, perhaps, avoid many accidents and give proper protection to our citizens.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 6.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Rally to the work!—Ex. xiv, 15; II Chron. xxxi, 20, 21. (Consecration meeting.)

The word "rally" is defined as "the act of bringing disordered troops to their ranks." This word in this sense is therefore very appropriate to express the significance of rally day in the modern church and its various organizations. In the summer season the ranks of Christian workers become disorganized. Many of the workers are away, some of them for a considerable time. In the heated season of the summer it is impossible to keep the ranks filled and active, and yet there is no question but that more Christian work could be effectually done than is.

No church should close its doors. Some one will always be present at the meetings, and the Master often preached to an audience of one. Certainly no Endeavor society should abandon its meetings. The work may lag to some extent, but it takes a small number to make a prayer meeting. The prayer of one Christian may accomplish much. If we abandon our services and work altogether in the summer, a rally day is indeed necessary, and we shall need the special power of the Spirit to get the ranks together again. Let us therefore prepare to "move forward," being fully satisfied that "in every work that we begin in the service of the house of the Lord and in the law and in the commandments," if we "do it with all our heart," we shall prosper. God will bless our labors, for we will be colaborers with Him.

The first requisite in a rally day is to get the ranks filled. All absentees should be notified of the meeting, both by mail and a personal visit, if possible. The best programme possible should be arranged and a must enthusiastic service held.

Another necessary requisite to a successful rally is plans for definite work. These should be arranged before hand. Rally to the "work." If there be no work arranged, there can be no rally to the work. The various committees should arrange work for the winter, and the members of the society should each have some definite work decided upon, and when the roll is called each should state what advanced progressive work he expects to do. There are so many things to do that each one can find something to do.

There's a work for me
And a work for you.
Something for each of us
Now to do.

Put the emphasis upon "now" and then do it.

A New Picture of Dr. Clark.

The beloved founder of Christian Endeavor, the Rev. Dr. Francis E. Clark, has consented to pose for a new photograph, a reproduction of which is herewith presented. The same kindliness of expression which has so endeared Dr. Clark in all parts of the world is true to life in this newest picture. The increasing gray of hair and mustache are practically the only changes time has wrought in the appearance of this noted leader.

Speak Appreciatively.

Christian Endeavor has constantly to recruit its ranks from new and untried material, while it moves its trained workers along into the Sunday school as officers and teachers, and into the church as elders, deacons and committee members. Why not recognize these facts and let them be known? Why not speak the word of appreciation, and even of praise if it is deserved? Why not call out re-enforcements for Christian Endeavor, as Christian Endeavor is trying in every way to call out re-enforcements for all other lines of Christian service?—William Shaw.

Heads Together.

In union there is strength and wisdom as well. If you want to maintain your Christian Endeavor work at the best, hold frequent conferences with other workers. If under no other auspices, two nearby societies could hold a joint session, taking up the committees one at a time and exchanging plans and ideas. If you have a local union, by all means plan for regular committee conferences. Once a year, for instance, let all the lookout committees meet together, under the guidance of an expert in that kind of work, and discuss what their committees might do; so for all other committees, Junior workers and officers.—Irish Endeavorer.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Oct. 6: "Christian stewardship." The principle approved. "These ought ye to have done and not to have left the other undone."—Matt. xxiii, 23.

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

Passages for reference—Gen. xiv, 19, 20; Lev. xxvii, 30-33; I Cor. xvi, 2.

God's ownership of the earth and all it contains is the plain teaching of all parts of the Christian Scriptures. It is as clearly the teaching of reason and experience. It is God's by right of making and keeping. He created and He alone preserves all that is. Man is here not as an accident, but by deliberate purpose of God as a part of His world plan. He is not given any title deeds to any part of the domain. He is God's tenant and servant, a tenant at will, liable at any time to be called to account and to be turned out of his holdings. He is a steward intrusted with property for which he is responsible and will sooner or later be asked for a reckoning.

All is on the most reasonable terms. He shares in the profits according to his fidelity and also receives many favors unearned and not given as reward of merit, but as clear bounty and good will from the owner.

The terms of the stewardship are to "do justice, mercy and faithfulness." These are the weighty things of God's law. Besides these, there are minor ordinances and observances which should not be left undone, but should never be elevated into the chief place of duty. Among these minor matters of the law is the duty to give of one's "substance according to his ability" to the cause of God's kingdom.

Abraham gave a tenth of the spoil taken from the robber kings to God's priest, Melchisedec. Jacob dedicated to God a tenth of all the increase of his possessions. In Israel it became a law that a tenth of all the increase of harvests and flocks and herds belonged specially to God. In some Christian lands at some time this tithe of the earth's fruits and cattle has been exacted by law for the support of the church.

Considerable effort has been made recently in many parts of the church to induce the young people to enter upon systematic habits of giving and to set aside one-tenth of the income for purposes of benevolence.

It is an excellent plan for every one to regularly put aside a certain proportion of the income for religious uses and to keep strict account of it. It checks selfishness, gives a broader and deeper interest in the progress of the work of the church and often shows how little one has before entered into the earnest work of God's kingdom.

Several items need to be firmly settled in this regard. First, there is no rigid rule of proportion laid down in the New Testament as to the amount of the giving. One-tenth is a good proportion and can well be adopted by multitudes of our young people who are making their own way. Many should give more. Some ought to give less. Each must settle the matter for himself. Secondly, all one has should be sacredly used as a trust for God and administered in the wisest manner.

Thirdly comes a principle many have not attained to, but which is vitally important. It should be settled early in life the limit beyond which one will not increase property for his own use, but will dedicate and administer all surplus directly for the advancement of God's work in the world. This whole matter of Christian stewardship needs treatment in a broader and more reasonable way than it has usually been handled. It is easier to follow the Pharisees' rule than to follow that of Christ, but it is not so well in the end.

Silent Suffering.

This grace of silence under trial is one of the most rare and difficult graces, but it is one of the most pleasing to God and most conducive to strength and beauty of Christian character.

None of us loves to suffer, and we all shudder at the sight of the probe or the amputating knife. But when the infinite love is engaged in cutting out a selfish lust or cutting off a diseased limb our duty is to submit.

"Keep still, my friend," says the surgeon to the patient in the hospital, "for restlessness may produce false cuts and aggravate the process."

If the brave fellow is wise, he will say, "Doctor, go as deep as you choose, only be sure to fetch out the bullet."

Ah, the battlefield often requires less courage than the hospital. The onset of service, with drums beating and bugles sounding, does not so test the mettle of our graces as to be thrown down wounded or to be commanded to lie still and suffer. To shout a battlecry at the mouth of the cannon is easier than to put our hands on our mouths and be silent because "God did it." If He is silent as to explanations of trying providences, let us be silent in our filial submission. God knows what is best for us; that is enough.—Theodore L. Cuyler, D. D.

A Prayer.

I thank Thee, my King, for the things which try me, for by them I am made strong. If it be Thy will that Satan should buffet me and if the thorn must still press, then I will sing in my struggle and know all is well. Only let me not fall. Hold me in the midst of the trial, and when the heart is pierced and I am almost spent breathe on me and take me to rest. Amen.—Floyd W. Tompkins, S. T. D.

Finding Joy In Little Things.

We overlook too much the common daily blessings that religion brings. Not least among these is the faculty of finding joy in little things, recognizing their divine bestowal, finding still higher blessedness in living out our gratitude to God.—Phillips Brooks.

IN THE FOG

BY

Richard Harding Davis.

COPYRIGHT, 1901, BY ROBERT HOWARD RUSSELL.

CHAPTER I.

THE Grill is the club most difficult of access in the world. To be placed on its rolls distinguishes the new member as greatly as though he had received a vacant Garter or had been caricatured in "Vanity Fair."

Men who belong to the Grill Club never mention that fact. If you were to ask one of them which clubs he frequents, he will name all save that particular one. He is afraid if he told you he belonged to the Grill, that it would sound like boasting.

The Grill Club dates back to the days when Shakespeare's Theatre stood on the present site of the "Times" office. It has a golden Grill which Charles the Second presented to the Club, and the original manuscript of "Tom and Jerry in London," which was bequeathed to it by Pierce Egan himself. The members, when they write letters at the Club, still use sand to blot the ink.

The Grill enjoys the distinction of having blackballed, without political prejudice, a Prime Minister of each party. At the same sitting at which one of these fell, it elected, on account of his brogue and his bulls, Quiller, Q. C., who was then a penniless barrister.

When Paul Preval, the French artist who came to London by royal command to paint a portrait of the Prince of Wales, was made an honorary member—only foreigners may be honorary members—he said, as he signed his first wine card, "I would rather see my name on that, than on a picture in the Louvre."

At which Quiller remarked, "That is a devil of a compliment, because the only men who can read their names in the Louvre to-day have been dead fifty years."

On the night after the great fog of 1897 there were five members in the Club, four of them busy with supper and one reading in front of the fireplace. There is only one room to the Club, and one long table. At the far end of the room the fire of the grill glows red, and, when the fat falls, blazes into flame, and at the other there is a broad bow window of diamond panes, which looks down upon the street. The four men at the table were strangers to each other, but as they picked at the grilled bones, and sipped their Scotch and soda, they conversed with such charming animation that a visitor to the Club, which does not tolerate visitors, would have counted them as friends of long acquaintance, certainly not as Englishmen who had met for the first time, and without the form of an introduction. But it is the etiquette and tradition of the Grill, that whoever enters it must speak with whoever he finds there. It is to enforce this rule that there is but one long table, and whether there are twenty men at it or two, the waiters, supporting the rule, will place them side by side.

For this reason the four strangers at supper were seated together, with the candles grouped about them, and the long length of the table cutting a white path through the outer gloom.

"I repeat," said the gentleman with the black pearl stud, "that the days for romantic adventure and deeds of foolish daring have passed, and that the fault lies with ourselves. Voyages to the pole I do not catalogue as adventures. That African explorer, young Chetney, who turned up yesterday after he was supposed to have died in Uganda, did nothing adventurous. He made maps and explored the sources of rivers. He was in constant danger, but the presence of danger does not constitute adventure. Were that so, the chemist who studies high explosives, or who investigates deadly poisons, passes through adventures daily. No, 'adventures are for the adventurous.' But one no longer ventures. The spirit of it has died of inertia. We are grown too practical, too just, above all, too sensible. In this room, for instance, members of this Club have, at the sword's point, disputed the proper scanning of one of Pope's couplets. Over so weighty a matter as spilled Burgundy on a gentleman's cuff, ten men fought across this table, each with his rapier in one hand and a candle in the other. All ten were wounded. The question of the spilled Burgundy concerned but two of them. The eight others engaged because they were men of 'spirit.' They were, indeed, the first gentlemen of the day. To-night, were you to spill Burgundy on my cuff, were you even to insult me grossly, these gentlemen would not consider it incumbent upon them to kill each other. They would separate us, and to-morrow morning appear as witnesses against us at Bow Street. We have here to-night, in the persons of Sir Andrew and myself, an illustration of how the ways have changed."

The men around the table turned and glanced toward the gentleman in front of the fireplace. He was an elderly and somewhat portly person, with a kindly, wrinkled countenance, which wore continually a smile of almost childish confidence and good-nature. It was a face which the illustrated prints had made intimately familiar. He held a book from him at arm's-length, as if to adjust his eyesight, and his brows were knit with interest.

"Now, were this the eighteenth century," continued the gentleman with the black pearl, "when Sir Andrew left the Club to-night I would have him bound and gagged and thrown into a sedan chair. The watch would not interfere, the passers-by would take to their heels, my hired bullies and ruffians would convey him to some lonely spot where we would guard him until morning. Nothing would come of it, except added reputation to myself as a gentleman of adventurous spirit, and possibly an essay in the 'Tatler,' with stars for names, entitled, let us say, 'The Budget and the Baronet.'"

"But to what end, sir?" inquired the youngest of the members. "And why Sir Andrew, of all persons—why should you select him for this adventure?"

The gentleman with the black pearl shrugged his shoulders.

"It would prevent him speaking in the House to-night. The Navy Increase Bill," he added gloomily. "It is a Government measure, and Sir Andrew speaks for it. And so great is his influence and so large his following that if he does"—the gentleman laughed ruefully—"if he does, it will go through. Now, had I the spirit of our ancestors," he exclaimed, "I would bring chloroform from the nearest chemist's and drug him in that chair. I would tumble his unconscious form into a hansom cab, and hold him prisoner until daylight. If I did, I would save the British taxpayer the cost of five more battleships, many millions of pounds."

The gentlemen again turned, and surveyed the baronet with freshened interest. The honorary member of the Grill, whose accent already had betrayed him as an American, laughed softly.

"To look at him now," he said, "one would not guess he was deeply concerned with the affairs of state."

The others nodded silently.

"He has not lifted his eyes from that book since we first entered," added the youngest member. "He surely cannot mean to speak to-night?"

"Oh, yes, he will speak," muttered the one with the black pearl moodily. "During these last hours of the session the House sits late, but when the Navy bill comes up on its third reading he will be in his place—and he will pass it."

The fourth member, a stout and florid gentleman of a somewhat sporting appearance, in a short smoking-jacket and black tie, sighed enviously.

"Fancy one of us being as cool as that, if he knew he had to stand up within an hour and rattle off a speech in Parliament. I'd be in a devil of a funk myself. And yet he is as keen over that book he's reading as though he had nothing before him until bedtime."

"Yes, see how eager he is," whispered the youngest member. "He does not lift his eyes even now when he cuts the pages. It is probably an Admiralty Report, or some other weighty work of statistics which bears upon his speech."

The gentleman with the black pearl laughed morosely.

"The weighty work in which the eminent statesman is so deeply engrossed," he said, "is called 'The Great Rand Robbery.' It is a detective novel, for sale at all bookstalls."

The American raised his eyebrows in disbelief.

"'The Great Rand Robbery?'" he repeated incredulously. "What an odd taste!"

"It is not a taste, it is his vice," returned the gentleman with the pearl stud. "It is his one dissipation. He is noted for it. You, as a stranger, could hardly be expected to know of this idiosyncrasy. Mr. Gladstone sought relaxation in the Greek poets, Sir Andrew finds his in Gaboriau. Since I have been a member of Parliament I have never seen him in the library without a shilling shocker in his hands. He brings them even into the sacred precincts of the House, and from the Government benches reads them concealed inside his hat. Once started on a tale of murder, robbery, and sudden death, nothing can tear him from it, not even the call of the division bill, nor of hunger, nor the prayers of the party Whip. He gave up his country house because when he journeyed to it in the train he would become so absorbed in his detective stories that he was invariably carried past his station." The member of Parliament twisted his pearl stud nervously, and bit at the edge of his mustache. "If it only were the first pages of 'The Rand Robbery' that he were reading," he murmured bitterly, "instead of the last! With such another book as that, I swear I could hold him here until morning. There would be no need of chloroform to keep him from the House."

The eyes of all were fastened upon Sir Andrew, and each saw with fascination that with his forefinger he was now separating the last two pages of the book. The member of Parliament struck the table softly with his open palm.

"I would give a hundred pounds," he whispered, "if I could place in his hands at this moment a new story of Sherlock Holmes—a thousand pounds," he added wildly—"five thousand pounds!"

The American observed the speaker sharply, as though the words bore to him some special application, and then at an idea which apparently had but just come to him, smiled in great embarrassment.

Sir Andrew ceased reading, but, as though still under the influence of the book, sat looking blankly into the open fire. For a brief space no one moved until the baronet withdrew his eyes and, with a sudden start of recollection, felt anxiously for his watch. He scanned its face eagerly, and scrambled to his feet.

The voice of the American instantly broke the silence in a high, nervous accent.

"And yet Sherlock Holmes himself," he cried, "could not decipher the mystery which to-night baffles the police of London."

-:- THE BIG SALVAGE SALE -:-

WILL BEGIN FRIDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 4, 1907.

A Stock of Seasonable Winter Goods--Mostly Clean and Fresh--Bought at a Bargain--Is now Offered the Public at a Trifle of its Real Value

Goods of all kinds have been advancing, as you know, especially in the past six months, to give real bargains in the face of such conditions were almost out of the question, unless something extraordinary occurred. IT DID OCCUR! A large wholesale dry goods house of Allentown, Pa., had their stock damaged by fire and water; the stock was sold by the fire underwriters, through Field, Chapman & Co., Auctioneers. OUR BUYERS WERE THERE WITH THE CASH and bought everything that was desirable sold at a bargain, for there were lots of goods just the least damaged by smoke or water that had to be sacrificed. We bought these so cheap that even at the low prices we quote, we still have a little margin for our trouble. But our biggest aim was to advertise our name to the public—we want you to know that we are wide awake for your interests, that you can procure bargains at TEPPER'S when they are scarce everywhere else. Every desirable lot was bought with enthusiasm, knowing that many families would appreciate such an opportunity to lay in their fall and winter needs at such a saving. Here are the bargains; read every item of them; the values are exactly as quoted; you can depend on everything to be strictly as represented. Buy liberally—that is our best advice to those who need the saving most—this is a sale for the working people who must account for every dollar they spend, and they know that there are few real bargains to be had these days of advancing prices. Remember, sale begins Friday morning, October 4th, and continues until further notice. There will be plenty of extra salespeople to serve you, but come early in the mornings and you can take plenty of time for your choosing.

The Greek Catholics.

In the United States there are about 500,000 Greek Catholics. They are principally from Austria-Hungary. They must not be confounded with the Greek Orthodox churchmen, who come from Russia and Greece. The Greek Catholics are those of the Eastern Greek church, who are in full communion with the Roman Catholics, and who acknowledge the pope as the chief bishop and head of the church. Most of the Greek Catholics in this country are by nationality Ruthenians or "little Russians," Roumanians, Italians and Syrians. The Ruthenians come from Galatia and Carpathian mountains, the Roumanians from eastern Hungary, the Italians from Calabria and Sicily, and the Syrians from various parts of Turkey. They have prospered greatly in the United States, and are settled mostly in Pennsylvania. They have at present over 100 churches, about forty schools and ninety-eight priests.—Washington Herald.

Gold in the North.

Perhaps the most northerly gold fields in the world are those in Lapland, where the River Ivalo seems to be the centre of an auriferous region, where gold dredging operations have been carried on for some time. Diggings to the depth of 300 feet have been completed with a view of finding out the real course of the ore. The gold discovered last year by a company, founded in the United States, amounted to only four pounds, valued at $1,500. This was found along a part of the Ivalo river, and the largest nugget weighed about 123 grains. There are three companies digging gold there now, the latest being the Ivalo company, organized in the United States. Within the possessions of this company lies Kultala, which was built in 1871 by the Finnish government for washing gold—Washington Herald.

PUSH PUBLICITY PLANS

Board of Trade Discusses Various Methods for Advertising Plainfield.

PRAISE BRICK PAVING

Garbage Disposal, Arc Lights, Street Sprinkling Among Other Matters Considered.

Free discussion of nearly every subject of municipal importance engaged the attention of the Board of Trade at its monthly meeting last night, including arc lights, street sprinkling, municipal ownership of water supply, methods for advertising the city, brick pavement and garbage disposal. President H. W. Marshall was in the chair, and in the absence of E. F. Feickert, secretary, his place was filled by Millard F. Elderton.

The question of securing additional arc lights for the business section of the city was introduced by Mr. Marshall, and J. V. E. Vanderhoff, to whom was referred the matter, presented a letter from Councilman F. L. Montgomery, chairman of the light committee, who stated that inasmuch as the city had withheld the Public Service Corporation light bills for some time, it was not thought advisable to take any action regarding additional arc lights. He said that the city expected to adjust the difficulty soon, when a new contract will be made with the company. Then it is proposed to favor the installation of more arc lights. He believed the new contract would give the city light for less money than the present rate.

Publicity Ideas.

Mr. Marshall referred to the advisability of publishing a year book of Plainfield, similar to the one issued by the Elizabeth Board of Trade, and published by the Evening Times of that city. Mr. Marshall stated that 5,000 books were issued annually in Elizabeth at a cost of about $4,300. Some of the books were bound in substantial cover and sold for $1 each. He said that such a book could be gotten out here at no expense to the Board of Trade, the merchants being expected to place their advertisements in it and thus meet the expense. No action was taken, as Mr. Vanderhoff reported that a Brooklyn concern is now at work on a similar scheme.

It was suggested by A. E. Force that an attractive envelope, containing pictures of city and a map, be secured and the merchants use them for advertising. Isaac Schwed favored newspaper advertising, and said that a majority of those who contributed to the publicity fund understood that the funds would be used that way.

"The trouble is," said Mr. Marshall, "those who contributed want too much for their money. They want a page advertisement in a New York paper once a week. This cannot be done with the money subscribed."

Reference was made to the folders issued by the board, and it was decided to have an additional 5,000 printed with new pictures adn reading matter. The question of getting envelopes was left to the advertising committee.

It was reported that additional cans to be used on the streets for the collection of papers and refuse have arrived, and City Engineer Gavett desired instruction as to where they should be put. It was decided to let M. Gavett attend to the matter as he deemed best.

Street Sprinkling.

There was a warm discussion about street sprinkling and it was the sense of the members that the city should not sprinkle the trolley tracks, but put the water on other streets. It was argued that the Public Service Corporation should sprinkle its own tracks. Complaint was made that in the outside districts the streets are deluged with water, while in the business section they are dusty. The matter will be taken up with the city officials with a view to having the sprinkling done in a proper manner.

Mr. Vanderhoff remarked that if the members had reason to kick about the city sprinkling they should visit North Plainfield. He said that most of the water is used in Bull Frog City. He suggested oil for the streets.

The question of the high water rates here was thrashed out. It was said that at Harrisburg, Pa., the rates are $6 a year, and that last year $40,000 was the profit on the plant. F. A. Duttenhofer, who formerly resided at Harrisburg, said that when he moved here he called at the local water office and asked for a meter, but was refused. In his opinion an ordinary family could not use more than $6 worth of water a year.

Defends Water Company.

This attack on the water company aroused L. B. Woolston, who said

LAY CORNERSTONE FOR THE COLES MEMORIAL

HIGH SCHOOL IN INDIA GIFT OF SCOTCH PLAINS FAMILY.

The Baptist Missionary Magazine for October has a deeply interesting article, telling of the dedication of "The Coles Memorial" at Kurnool, India. The foundation of the new high school building was laid with imposing and appropriate exercises. A hymn composed by Dr. Abraham Coles, of Scotch Plains, N. J., in whose memory the building was erected, was sung and the history of the building was recounted, showing how Miss Emily Coles and her brother, Dr. J. Ackerman Coles, of Scotch Plains, became interested in the work at Kurnool. They first erected a girls' school building at a cost of $5,000, and then followed it up by a fine structure for the erection of which they have contributed $10,000.

On the afternoon of the day following the dedicatory exercises that closed with the National anthem, the annual prize distribution of the Coles' Memorial High School was held.

Much is hoped from this generous gift educationally and spiritually for the youth of all South India.

WELCOME TO MARTINE EXCEEDS KATZENBACH'S

CANDIDATE AND DEFEATED RIVAL ENTERTAINED AT NEWARK.

Fifteen hundred Essex county Democrats and a few from other parts of the State shook hands with Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., nominee of their party for Governor, at the Jeffersonian Club in Newark last night. It was the initial visit of the standard bearer of Democracy to that city as a candidate for office, and evidently everybody who received a card of invitation took advantage of the opportunity to meet him.

Farmer Orator James E. Martine, of this city, chief rival of the nominee in the State convention, was a prominent figure at the club. The ovation to teh Plainfielder far exceeded that given the candidate. He greeted Mr. Katzenbach warmly, and, in a statementto a reporter, said that he had placed himself at the service of the candidate.

"I will do everything in my power to assist in the election of Mr. Katzenbach," said Mr. Martine. "I have told him that I will speak with him when he may desire it and will get right to work in Union county. He will be elected."

The candidate entered the club house without any ostentatious display of enthusiasm on the part of the hundreds gathered there. While there was a demonstration of good feeling from first to last and every man who shook the hand of the candidate promised active support and predicted party victory, the reception was in every respect a social gathering, with none of the earmarks of a red fire campaign meeting. There were no speeches and no formalities.

DOCTORS MEET.

Medical Association Dines and Hears Able Paper at Truell Hall.

The first fall meeting of the Plainfield Medical Association was held last night at Truell Hall. The meeting was noteworthy from the presence of Dr. Howard Fox, of the Skin and Cancer Hospital, New York, son of Dr. Fox, who became, before he died, the most noted specialist on skin diseases in this country; and himself well known in the field, Dr. Fox read a paper on skin eruptions.

The meeting was preceded by a dinner. The covers were laid in one of the private dining rooms, which was strikingly decorated. Over a score of Plainfield physicians attended. The menu was memorable.

Dr. Fox's paper was most able. It was copiously illustrated by lantern slides.

Young People to Meet.

An adjourned meeting of the young people of the First Baptist church will be held in the church parlors this evening, when the committees appointed at the last meeting will report on nomination of officers and methods of work and various standing committees will be announced. Part of the hour will be spent in social enjoyment. If the rain does not interfere it is expected that there will be a large attendance.

Borough Council Tonight.

The Borough Council will hold its regular monthly meeting tonight. In addition to a lot of routine business awaiting disposition, several important matters will be brought up.

—Big bargains at Levy's Saturday.

ROBT. F. TILNEY JR. WEDS

Plainfielder Takes Miss Rhoda M. Sargent, of New Haven, As His Bride.

CEREMONY A QUIET ONE

Rev. Anson Phelps Stokes, Jr., the Millionaire Episcopal Clergyman, Officiates at the Nuptials.

Robert F. Tilney, of this city, and Miss Rhoda Mills Sargent, daughter of Henry B. Sargent, of New Haven, were quietly married yesterday afternoon. The ceremony took place in the garden at the Church street residence of the bride's father, in the presence of a small company of relatives and friends. The wedding was a quiet one owing to the recent death of the bride's grandfather, former Mayor Joseph B. Sargent, of New Haven.

Rev. Anson Phelps Stokes, Jr., rector of Christ Episcopal church, New Haven, officiated. The bride had as her maid-of-honor her sister, Miss Elizabeth Sargent. Miss Elsie Trowbridge, Miss Olive Schley, of New York, and Miss Kathleen Stryler, of Trenton, were the bridesmaids, while Miss Barbara Sargent was flower girl. Mr. Tilney had for his best man, Berrien Hughes, of Denver, Col., while the ushers were M. Ziegler Sargent, Murray Sargent, brothers of the bride; Edmund P. Rogers, of Hyde Park, and E. Rogers, of Yonkers. An informal reception followed the ceremony, after which the couple left for a four months' trip in Europe. Upon their return they will reside in New Haven for the present.

The bride's family is prominent in New Haven, her father being identified for many years with the well-known concern, the Ingersoll-Sargent Drill Company, now the Ingersoll-Rand Company. Mr. Tilney is prominent in Plainfield and New York society. He was graduated from Leal's school and later from Yale. Last year he took a post-graduate course at Yale. He is a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Wadsworth, of West Eighth street, with whom he made his home while here, and Albert A. Tilney, of Central avenue.

PLANS FOR POLICE STATION

Designs for Proposed Headquarters Submitted by Evarts Tracy.

COST NOT FIGURED

Calls for Two-Story Brick Structure, to Be Equipped With All the Latest Improvements.

Plans for a proposed new police station were presented at the meeting of the Councilmanic Police Board last night by Evarts Tracy, the architect, but inasmuch as the board had no idea as to the estimated cost of the structure and was not in a position to frame a report to be presented to the Common Council no definite action was taken at this time.

The plans are quite elaborate, providing for a two-story structure of brick, to be equipped with all the latest equipment. Provisions are made for separate apartments for men and women prisoners, with modern toilet arrangements, a room for a matron, sleeping quarters for policemen who are on duty at headquarters. These quarters are to be located on the second floor. The first floor is devoted to a chief's office and room for holding court, together with a place for installing the Gamewell police system.

The members of the board were favorably impressed with the plans and the general arrangement of the rooms, but in the absence of any figures giving an idea of cost nothing could be done. It is proposed to secure estimates so that the board will have something definite to work on. Then if the cost comes within the amount of money which the board would feel justified in asking for, steps may be taken to erect the structure.

High School Society Debate.

The Plainfield High School Society had an informal debate this morning on the subject: "Resolved, That examinations in the High School should be abolished." Percy Mygrant, vice president of the society, acted as judge, and decided in the negative. The first formal debate of the organization will be held next week.

—An attractive assortment of fruits and vegetables will be shown at Neuman Brothers' store tomorrow. Make sureyou see it before making purchases for Sunday's dinner. Delicious grapes will predominate in the fruit line.

SOMERSET ARRAIGNMENTS

Richard Stryker Pleads "Not Guilty" to Indictment Charging Him With Patricide.

PASCO FINED $300

Italian Sold Liquor on Sunday in Borough—Laborers on Duke Estate Answer "Not Guilty."

Some of the prisoners indicted by the last grand jury were arraigned before Judge Schenck in the court room in Somerville yesterday and were given a chance to answer for their alleged offenses.

Richard Stryker, who is in the county jail on a charge of shooting his father, John C. Stryker, near North Branch Depot, and who attempted to take his own life when he was told of his father's death, pleaded not guilty to the latter offense.

Jacob and Clark Rush, the caretakers on the Susan Sterling estate, at Bernardsville, who are charged with stealing jewelry and clothing to the value of $1,000, entered a plea of not guilty, and Paul Kane, Max Crosby and Clarence Koch, charged with breaking and entering the Pennsylvania railroad station at Middlebush and stealing tickets, also pleaded not guilty.

The fifteen laborers charged with trying to incite a riot on the estate of James B. Duke, near Somerville, were arraigned and pleaded not guilty. They were admitted in bail to appear next week for trial.

Nicholas Pasco, of North Plainfield, indicted for illegal selling and for selling on Sunday, pleaded guilty to both charges and was fined $150 on each.

Henry Sclothane, of Chimney Rock, charged with illegal selling, pleaded not guilty and his trial was set for October 16.

Mary Regner, of Franklin township, indicted for receiving stolen goods and malicious mischief, pleaded not guilty and was held for trial, October 16.

William Greisheimer, of Bound Brook, charged with assault and battery, pleaded not guilty. Trial, October 16.

Daniel McClosky, of Rocky Hill, pleaded not guilty to a charge of resisting an officer. Trial, October 16.

Patsy Pearly, of Raritan, charged with larceny, pleaded guilty and was sent to the Reform school at Jamesburg.

William McCormack and Anthony Brant, of North Plainfield township, pleaded not guilty to assault and battery.

PATROLMAN MYERS AGAIN BEFORE POLICE BOARD

THIS TIME TWO WOMEN COMPLAIN OF ANNOYANCES.

Patrolman Nicholas Myers appeared before the Councilmanic Police Board last night to answer to charges preferred by two women in the employ of DeWitt C. Ivins, of Hillside avenue. They complained that while the family was away from the city last summer, the officer persisted in stopping at the house and in other ways annoyed them. When they remonstrated with him, they claimed that Mr. Myers talked about them.

While the board listened attentively to the complaint of the women, the members, it is said, were not entirely satisfied as to its merits. The women said that they could bring another witness before the board to more fully substantiate their charge, and it was decided to allow them to do so. In the meantime the board will further investigate the matter.

No action was taken last night toward imposing a penalty on Mr. Myers, and none will be until the board has thoroughly investigated the case.

Mrs. Williamson to Talk.

Because Mrs. Emily E. Williamson of Elizabeth, could not be present next Monday, on account of other engagements, the first meeting of the season of the Public Education Society at Somerville will be held on Tuesday evening, in the assembly room of the public school building in the latter city. Mrs. Williamson is to make the chief address and her topic will be "Probation—The Adult and the Minor." She is probation officer for Union and Middlesex counties.

In the Borough Court.

Maze Green, arraigned before Recorder Dolliver last night, was given his preference of $3 or three days on a drunk and disorderly charge. He took the days in the hope that the time might give hi man opportunity to straighten out.

The United Cigar Stores Is Looking For a Site Here—Fight for Plainfield's Business.

Through a representative who has been in the city for several days, Acker, Merrall & Condit, New York's big grocery firm, have been negotiating for a suitable building in which to open a local retail store. Several sites have been under consideration and it is said that the agent has practically decided upon the Stirling building, where two adjoining locations are vacant. When several preliminary matters are disposed of, definite announcement either one way or the other can be made within a week or ten days.

The Acker, Merrall & Condit concern is one of the largest in the East and has always done a large business in Plainfield through its New York stores. It maintains a local delivery service and also ships quantities of goods into the city at wholesale rates. It has retail branches at East Orange, Montclair, Morristown and the important cities from Harlem up to New Rochelle.

Announcement has previously been made of the fact that the United Cigar Stores Company has been seeking to enter the local field and plans are still underway. The company has secured two leases which were afterward disposed of and another is now pending. The store will probably be located on East Front street.

It has also been stated that one of New York's important drug concerns has an eye on the local trade and is reconnoitering in a quiet way. Just how much truth there is in the statement has not yet been ascertained but it is known positively that one of the Broadway pharmacies has the patronge of enough Plainfielders to warrant a branch in town.

AUTO BUS LINE SERVICE

Connection With South Plainfield on Hourly Schedule is Arrainged.

STARTS ON MONDAY

Twelve-Passenger Coach to Be Used by E. B. Ryder, Who Undertakes the Enterprise.

Commencing on Monday, Edward B. Ryder, of Morris Brothers' auto garage, will operate an auto bus line between this city and South Plainfield, making hourly trips. Frank Rowley's drug store on West Front street will be the local depot, and the Lehigh Valley railroad station at South Plainfield will be the depot there.

It is proposed to operate the bus line so as to make connections with the more important trains on the Lehigh Valley railroad, and the round trip will consume about thirty minutes, allowing for stops and time of waiting at each end of the line. The rate of fare will be 15 cents for a single trip or 25 cents for a round trip.

The line will be opened with a Reo twelve-passenger auto, and if the traffic demands another auto will be put into service and will include Metuchen in the trip. Walter Kettering has been engaged to operate the bus between here and South Plainfield.

Young People Happily Surprised.

Miss Jessie Campbell and her brother, Arthur Campbell, of East Second street, were happily surprised at their home Friday night. The young people spent the evening playing games and listening to a program of vocal and instrumental music. Among the guests was Percy Cannon, who entertained the company with a number of funny stories. Each guest brought refreshments and a generous spread was provided. There were about twenty-five persons present.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR KATZENBACH'S COMING

JAMES EDGAR MARTINE WILL RECEIVE AND ENTERTAIN HIM.

Mr. Katzenbach will come to this city at about noon from Trenton. Mr. Martine will meet him and take him to the Kensington Hotel, where he will be entertained at lunch. Mr. Katzenbach will be accompanied by several friends and political advisers. Judge Hudspeth, Assemblyman Edgar Lethbridge, Charles H. Gallagher, E. Furman Hooper and John T. Dullard, of Trenton, are expected to be in the party.

After lunch Mr. Katzenbach will be the central figure in a general reception. He will hold a levee in the hotel parlor. All the citizens are invited to it. It is hoped to make Mr. Katzenbach a familiar figure to most of his fellow-Democrats and a goodly number of Republicans in Plainfield. He will be at the hotel from three to four hours. The affair will be entirely informal.

James E. Martine has completed arrangements for the reception to Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., Democratic candidate for Governor, tomorrow. Mr. Katzenbach will come here as Mr. Martine's guest, and the latter will have full charge of the reception.

BIG STORAGE HOUSE FOR SOMERSET STREET

HAND EXPRESS COMPANY TO ERECT A LARGE BUILDING.

Following negotiation that have been pending for several months, an important realty deal was consummated yesterday, whereby the Hand Express and Storage Company secured the Jacob Voehl property at 63 and 65 Somerset street. The present residence occupying the site has been sold to Frank Mobus, and as soon as Mr. Voehl can vacate it will be moved to a new location on Watchung avenue. In its place a handsome three-story building will be erected, the company having found it necessary to secure increased facilities for carrying on its business.

The property concerned in the sale adjoins the former C. Frank French building at Somerset street and Somerset place, and has a frontage of sixty feet. In depth it is 160 feet and is considered one of the most desirable sites along the borough's main thoroughfare. The structure to be put up by the company will be designed principally to handle the concern's storage business, which has outgrown the present quarters on West Front street. Architecturally the building will enhance the appearance of the street, and will be equipped with every improvement for the safe-keeping of goods. Fireproof material will be used exclusively.

The removal of the Voehl residence will prove quite an undertaking, but Mr. Mobus has already made his arrangements, so that it will be carried out very rapidly. The house will be taken up Somerset street to Race street and traffic will suffer but very little inconvenience. The remainder of the trip will be along less traveled thoroughfares and will be occupied in parts only a few days at the most.

The Hand Storage and Express Company is composed of Fred Hand, who was connected in business with his father for many years; Captain W. C. Smith and C. Frank French.

Hit By Auto Crank.

Theodore Bloodgood, a well known Perth Amboy resident, had a narrow escape from losing the sight of an optic in an accident in this city, yesterday. In attempting to start his automobile after leaving a Park avenue store, the crank suddenly flew back and struck hi ma hard blow over the left optic. He was rendered unconscious for a few minutes and had to be taken to a physician's office for treatment. The crank inflicted an ugly wound and had it been an inch lower would have impaired the sight of the eye. He was assisted home and is still under the care of D. J. S. Stafford, of Perth Amboy.

DOUBLE TRACK WANTED

Street Improvement Delayed if Common Council Grants P. S. C. Petition.

MEANS BETTER SERVICE

Corporation Also Intends to Lay New Rails On Somerset Street—Action On Monday Night.

Provided the Common Council and the property-owners consent to the improvement, there promises to be further delay of the brick pavement on Front street and a portion of Watchung avenue. It is understood that the Public Service Corporation is still desirous of double tracking the trolley line from the Watchung avenue stand to West Front and Somerset streets, where the double track begins, and that a petition to do this work will be presented at the meeting of the Common Council Monday night.

This improvement has been discussed more or less during the past few years. While many have favored it, a number of interested property-owners on the line of the trolley have been opposed. It is argued that if the road between these points is ever to be double tracked it will have to be done before the brick pavement is laid.

Another thing that is likely to cause a delay in the pavement work on West Front street is that the trolley company is planning to replace the old tracks with new ones on that thoroughfare, between Somerset street and Madison avenue. Considerable criticism is heard about the delay in making this change, as it is now planned to lay the new tracks just at a time when Contractor Meeker is ready to put down the brick pavement. In case it is decided to lay the double tracks on Front street and Watchung avenue it may hold up the brick work until next year, something that the property-owners and city officials do not favor.

On account of the work of laying concrete walks under the Park avenue bridge Contractor Meeker is unable to proceed any further than North avenue with his paving work. As soon as weather permits he will transfer operations to Somerset street, where the concrete foundation will be laid. A part of the gang used on the work has been busy removing the macadam surface on Park avenue, between the railroad bridge and Fourth street.

SWIFT JUSTICE.

Men Arraigned Before Judge Five Minutes After Fight.

Five minutes after the row, Patsy Minelo, foreman of the sewer construction gang, was arraigned in court this morning for fighting with Louis Kadesh, dealer in junk and old stoves. The quarrel took place at 10 o'clock at Kadesh's store, in East Front street, a few doors above the police station. Judge Runyon had not left court when Detective Sergeant Flynn brought the combatants into the station house, and they were arraigned at once.

The quarrel started over the price asked by Kadesh for a second-hand stove which Minelo fancied. Minelo said rude things to Kadesh, and the latter started to eject him. Panes of glass in the doorway were broken in the pushing and hauling. Minelo promised to pay for the glass and Judge Runyon suspended sentence.

Will Reorganize Orchestra.

Under the direction of Martin A. Korff, the Y. M. C. A. orchestra will be reorganized on Monday night, when a meeting for that purpose will be held at the association rooms. It is proposed to hold a meeting every week on Monday night and any person who can play an instrument suitable for an orchestra is invited to attend, especially the meeting next week. Mr. Korff met with much success last year in this work, and the prospects for the coming year are so bright that he was persuaded to continue as leader. Those who join the orchestra not only get the benefit of the practise, but there will be social fellowship among Christian surroundings.

Valuable Dog Missing.

A $500 setter, belonging to A. G. Hooley, Rockview avenue, disappeared yesterday afternoon. The dog was lost while being exercised by Mr. Hooley's son, almost within sight of her kennel, and as she is 6 years old and has never strayed away, it is believed she was stolen. The police have been notified. The dog is white, with lemon-colored markedness. She won several field trials in North Carolina and took a blue ribbon at the bench show in New York.

WANTS JAIL FENCED IN.

Somerset Grand Jury Believes Suicide of Inmate Was by Knife Passed From Outside.

Somerville, Oct. 4.—The Board of Freeholders at a special meeting held at Bedminster Wednesday received a recommendation from the grand jury to place screens at the windows of the county jail with an iron fence, having a spiked top, ten feet in height, with a gate provided with a lock.

The communication stated that the grand jury in deliberating on the case of Richard P. Stryker, charged with attempting to take his own life in the county jail, found that the knife used by Stryker to cut his throat had probably been passed in through the jail window. The grand jury informed the board that it had arrived at this conclusion after questioning the turnkey and making a personal inspection of the jail. The windows, it was stated, were unprotected and divers objects, such as food and drink, were handed or thrown through the bars to the prisoners.

OFFICE SEEKER IS LIBERAL.

Aged Andrew Jackson, of Rahway, Would Be Independent Candidate.

Rahway, Oct. 4.—Andrew Jackson, 76 years of age, announces himself as an independent candidate for any office that the constituents of any party are willing to back him for. Mr. Jackson has prepared for this election by purchasing a carload of brooms, one of which he proposes to present to every man who votes for him and who will join the parade on the night that he is inaugurated into whatever office he can secure.

—Contractor Arthur E. Smith, of this city, is progressing favorably with the construction of the new concrete bridge over Robinson's branch of the Rahway river at Rahway. The work was inspected yesterday by the committee from the Board of Freeholders.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Miss Mamie Fleming, who is a strong favorite everywhere, will appear at the New Plainfield theatre tonight in her new play, "The Girl of Eagle Ranch," which has never before been seen in this city. Although sensational in character, drama and comedy are so judiciously blended that the melodrama appeals at once to the lover, as well as to those who prefer comedy. The play is modern in every detail and the author has selected as the ground work for his play conditions that appeal strong to the American heart.

The next big local dramatic event will be the appearance of Max Figman in the scintillating comedy success, "The Man On the Box," at the Max Figman, in "The Man on the Box," at New Plainfield Theatre Saturday Matinee and Night.

New Plainfield theatre Saturday afternoon and night. Mr. Figman ranks among the really great artists of the present day stage and he has a fortunate vehicle for his talents in "The Man On the Box," which was dramatized from Harold MacGrath's book and has faithfully retained the story, a rather uncommon thing with plays taken from books. It was originally produced in New York city and had a prosperous run of over three hundred nights and but for the circumstance of bookings could have finished out the year. Mr. Figman will bring with him a complete scenic production and a splendid company including among others Messrs. Douglas A. Flint, John Charles Brownell, Frank M. Rainger, George Cenire, Ernest P. Orr, Herbert Denton, Edward Johnson, John Pearson and the Misses Fannie Marinoff, Madeline Dallas, Bertha Krieghoff and Bereneice Bucklin.

When "Mr. Blue Beard" is presented at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night the theatregoing public of this city will have an opportunity of witnessing what has proved to be the comedy success of the year. Music that is catchy and songs that are original, are claimed for "Mr. Blue Beard" and no comedy production in recent years has attained such immense popoularity. The cast is far above the average usually found in comedy offerings, and judging from the list of names, real fun is promised and the laughing atmosphere looks exceedingly bright. The costume, scenic and electrical embellishment are all new this seasonb

Few plays of modern authorship have had such universal praise from the New York critics as was given Clyde Fitch's sensational success, "The Woman in the Case," which is to be presented at the New Plainfield theatre next Tuesday night. The able critic of Town Topics says, for instance: "There can scarcely be two opinions about 'The Woman in the Case.' It teems with dramatic interest through three acts and if the last act is almost necessary it has the merit of being short and can be excused on that score. 'The Woman in the Case,' like most of the Fitch plays, tells a story of today, a story of New York men and manners and it tells it with a sure, plain form of the man who knows. From the first it grips the interest and holds it. It is real and thrilling. It is refreshing too in its pictures of domestic trust and loyalty." The play will be presented here with a notable cast of players and the production will be exactly the same as was seen in New York.

The musical absurdity styled "About Town," with music, laughter and pretty girls to while away a delightful evening, comes to the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday night. Dave Lewis heads the company, and he is assisted by such well known comedians, and comediennes as Charles Prince, Dick Temple, Bert Western, Albertina Benson, Nellie Minto, Kathryn Miley, and a chorus said to contain some of the prettiest girls that ever graced a stage. Julian Mitchell, who is famous for getting popular musical numbers, is responsible for the production, which ran for six months at Lew Fields' Herald Square theatre, New York.

He Was an Expert at Figures.

After an absence of several years a one time cavalier of a lady called on her. He found her in the company of her three children.

"Well, well!" he said. "And how old are they?"

"Johnny," answered the lady, "is seven, Julia is five and Maud is two."

"Dear me!" he cried, alarm in his voice. "Is it possible time flies like that? Who would think that you had been married fourteen years?"—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Incentive.

"Does your son study Greek in college?"

"Oh, yes. He's very enthusiastic over it."

"I thought he didn't care for languages?"

"He doesn't, as a rule, but next year the football team is to have Greek signals and Harry is trying for the 'leven."—Kansas iCty Independent.

The Tongue.

The tongue is divided into three regions of taste, each of which has its own special function. The tip of the tongue is chiefly sensible to pungent and acid tastes, the middle portion to sweets or bitters, while the back is confined entirely to the flavors of roast meats, butter, oils and rich and fatty substances.

The Casserole.

A cook who understands the value of a casserole can prepare almost any dish in this earthenware pan. Bits of meat and game can be used the next day with a sauce covering or with vegetables, and the most appetizing and hearty viand will be the result.

Licorice Root.

Licorice root grows wild in the fields of Asia Manor, and until fifty years ago was practically unused. Today the annual exports to the United States alone are worth $550,000.

German Juries.

In Germany a prisoner is acquitted on a tie vote by the jury. A vote of seven to five leaves the decision with the court, while a vote of eight to four means conviction.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

Women golfers will claim chief attention during the next two weeks. In addition to the national championship, which is to begin on October 7 at the Midlothian Country Club, near Chicago, the second annual team match between the women's associations of the East and West, also to be played there, is certain to create no end of interest.

J. J. Hurley, of Macrihanish, won the South of Ireland championship at Lahinch, which is said to resemble the Scotch native course of the victor. He beat H. D. Gillies in the match by 4 up and 2. Gillies had a twenty-hole match in the semi-final with D. F. Ransom, who had defeated the British amateur champion, John Ball, Jr., in the fourth round by 3 and 1.

The first round match play for the Autumn classes A and B, will be the interesting event at the Plainfield Country Club tomorrow. The drawings have been made and judging from those the play should be very close and exciting.

There will be the usual dinner dance at the Plainfield Country Club tomorrow night.

In addition to the regular events at the Park Golf Club tomorrow, R. V. Carpenter and Charles B. Morse will meet in a match to see who shall play W. V. Byard in the finals for the September cup.

Additional entries for the national women's golf championship tournament, to begin at the Midlothian Country Club on Monday, have increased the total to eighty-four. Among the belated entrants are Mrs. W. Alexander, of Exmoor; Mrs. W. H. Holloway, of Skokie; Miss Mason and Miss Neely, of Newton, Mass., and a delegation of twenty-four from the Midlothian Country Club, Chicago.

A number of leading players are already practising over the Blue Island course. The chief attraction today will be a team match between the Women's Western Golf Association and the Canadian women. Although only one entry for the championship has been received from across the border, all of the Canadian women have been invited to take part, so it is quite possible that several of the visitors will be found at the first tee on Monday morning.

The annual fall tournament of the Eastern Trade Golf Assocation will be held on Thursday, October 10, at the Ardsley Club. There will be an eighteen-hole medal play round in the morning and a handicap in the afternoon for which gross and net score prizes have been offered. An approaching and putting contest is also on the program.

Another afternoon attraction will be a team match between the association and representatives of the New York City Association of Master Steam and Hot Water Fitters. There will be individual prizes for each member of the winning team. The tournament committee consists of M. E. Danforth, E. H. Roberts, W. H. Thayer, A. E. Barron and A. S. Armagnac.

DIAMOND DUST.

Clinton Avenue and Scotch Plains meet at Crescent Oval tomorrow, and the two teams should be able to furnish a fine game for the fans. Of course, the followers of the local team feel sure that they will win, but the last time the clubs came together the 'Plains boys walked away with a victory through the effective pitching of Johnson.

It is now practically a sure thing that the Detroits will win the American League pennant, after one of the most exciting series of games in the history of the league. It will be up to the Tigers to meet the Chicago Nationals for the world's championship, and the outcome will be watched with unusual interest. Many fans contend that the Tigers will have no trouble in defeating the Windy City aggregation, but the latter have had the advantage of a long rest, not being obliged to extend themselves in winning the pennant.

Doyle and Castleton, the youngsters of the New York Americans' pitching staff, turned the tables on the Chicagos Tuesday by the score of 4 to 3. They were both very effective, and the Chicagos could get but nine hits off of them.

It cannot be said that the Washingtons did not try to defeat the Detroits on Tuesday. In the first game of a double-header the Senators used fifteen players and twelve in the second, yet they lost both contests.

The Y. M. C. A. plans to be in the field next year with a better and stronger team than this. Captain Howard Craig will undoubtedly be retained, and no better choice could be made from the association membership. He is not only a strong player in the field and at the bat, but has personal ability which fits him for the position.

POLITICAL NOTES

Frank S. Katzenbach, the Democratic candidate for Governor, was the guest of the Jeffersonian Club, in Newark, last night. He came from Trenton, where he had spent the day among the politicians at the Interstate Fair. There was no speech-making, but the candidate found time to have a chat with the various leaders of the county. There were none of the "big guns" present except James E. Martine, the "farmer orator," of Plainfield. It was because he was assured he would have to make no public utterances at this time that Mr. Katzenbach agreed to invade Essex county.

J. Franklin Fort will preach the gospel of political peace at the two Republican conventions to be held in Jersey City tonight. The city convention, controlled by the New Idea men, will be a public meeting, and will be held in Elks' Hall, in the lower section of the city. The county convention, in which the "regulars" will have a majority, will be held in Lincoln Hall, the headquarters of the county committee, on the heights.

Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., the Democratic nominee for Governor, will talk at a ratification meeting in Jersey City tonight.

Samuel D. Dickinson, Secretary of State, has ordered that voting machines be placed in every district in East Orange, but the voters of the Third district of the Third ward are vigorously opposed to the use of machines. Six petitions will be sent to the Secretary of State asking that the old ballot boxes be substituted.

Alden Freeman, of East Orange, chairman of the "county committee" of the Citizens' Independent party, said last night that he would probably issue a statement today in the name of the men associated with him in regard to plans for an independent ticket at the coming election. He expects to nominate an Assembly ticket and a man for Governor. The plan to put a candidate in the field for the Gubernatorial prize had not been definitely agreed upon till recently, and even now no names have been mentioned. Mr. Freeman's understanding of the election law is that he will have to get "from 800 to 1,000" names on a petition to put his candidate in the race. He said that at an early date the Citizens' party would decide on a time for the county convention. It had been delayed to give the candidates of the Republican and Democratic parties an opportunity to express themselves on the issues.

J. Franklin Fort, Republican candidate for Governor, will not be heard in Elizabeth until October 29. The Republican committee is trying to secure his appearance for some earlier date also, but it is doubtful if they will succeed. A big meeting is being planned for the 29th in the Lyceum Theatre, in that city, and other Republicans of note will be present.

Elizabeth voters will have an opportunity to hear the vandidate before, on October 16, in Westfield, after having addressed a gathering in Plainfield. The county committee today opened headquarters in the Dix building.

Must Pay for Equipment.

At a meeting of the New Jersey State Military Board a resolution was passed to the effect that in future no officer will be allowed discharge papers, following resignation, until he settles in full for all of his clothing and equipment. It was also decided that all enlisted men shall wear leather leggings in the future.

—J. V. E. Vanderhoef has sold his property, No. 444 West Second street, to Mrs. Bertha Hensey, who expects to occupy it in the near future.

WIFE IN THE ASYLUM, HUSBAND PHYSICAL WRECK

RESULT OF ACCIDENT TO FORMER; HAPPINESS OF YEARS DESTROYED.

Affected by the first serious illness to upset their twenty-seven years of married life, Charles Fauss and his wife, of Flemington, recent patrons of the Hotel Kensington, are both in a state of collapse. The illness that led to the trouble was suffered by the wife, just before the couple came to this city, a little less than a month ago.

The wife met with an accident at Flemington, where Fauss had kept a hotel. The injury and the suffering preyed greatly on the woman, and her general health began to fail. Fauss took her travelling, in an effort to improve her condition. They came to this city, and registered at the Kensington. Mrs. Fauss' condition grew worse, instead of better, and about two weeks ago it was found necessary to remove her to Muhlenberg Hospital. There her illness took a new and more alarming turn. Constant brooding on her suffering affected the woman's mind, and a week ago the doctors had her removed to the asylum at Morristown.

It was the first time trouble of the sort had come to him since he married twenty-seven years ago, and Fauss' health gave out under the strain of worriment. The removal of his wife to Morristown was the culminating shock, and it so affected him that he became almost a physical wreck. He is making arrangements to go to Cooley's sanitarium.

CALL AUTOMOBILISTS THIEVES.

Woodcliff Thinks Burglaries Were Committed by Them.

Three residents in Woodcliff were visited by burglars early yesterday morning in Hackensack. At the residence of Freeholder Garret F. Ackerman $300 worth of old family silverware was stolen. The burglars aroused John J. Westervelt's family while trying to pry open the parlor window and were frightened away. At the residence of John Ackerman, formerly Mayor, a Scotch collie tackled the burglars while they stood near the parlor window and the desperate struggling aroused the family. The burglars escaped.

The Woodcliff Borough Council has offered a reward of $100 for the arrest of the mysterious man and woman who are always seen passing through the town in this vicinity in an automobile the evening before each raid. The couple is suspected of this morning's burglaries.

Miss Edith Hamblet, Mr. Hamblet's daughter by his former wife and niece of the bride, was maid-of-honor. The wedding was a quiet affair and was witnessed by a few friends.

Fire Destroys Part or Factory.

Fire of which the cause has not been determined caused damage estimated at $35,000 early yesterday morning in the plant of the Rosedale-Reddaway Belting and Hose Company, in Euclid avenue, Newark. One of the largest buildings of the plant, a two story frame, was totally wrecked and large quantities of stock and valuable machinery were destroyed.

Boy and Money Gone.

Samuel Bierman, a grocer at No. 131 Perry street, Newark, reported to the police that a boy named Louis, who had been working for him for two weeks, had disappeared after abstracting $100 from the safe. The boy slept in a room in the rear of the store and knew how to open the old-fashioned safe. Bierman does not know what his last name is or where he lives.

$5,000 for Attacking Child.

Damages in the sum of $5,000, the full amount asked, were awarded by a Newark jury in the Supreme Court Circuit yesterday in a suit in behalf of the 9-year-old daughter of Samuel McCully against Walter Louvrier. The latter was charged with attacking the child. He will also have to face a criminal charge.

The Woodhull & Martin Store.

Demonstration of the Ackroyd Gas Heater.

Manufactured by the Ackroyd True Radiator Co., Plainfield, N. J.

FLOYD T. WOODHULL, President.
E. C. MARTIN, Treasurer.

Mr. John K. Ackroyd, the inventor of this wonderful heater, will be at our store all day Saturday to demonstrate the advantages of his heater. This heater will deliver five times as much heat from the cylinder side walls as is delivered from the side walls of other heaters burning the same amount of gas, which means that the bulk of the heat produced is radiated laterally in an outward direction near the floor, where the heat is needed, instead of ascending directly to the ceiling, as in other heaters. They are also economical in gas consumption, costing from ½ cent to 2½ cents an hour, according to the amount of heat desired. Another point that we wish to emphasize and that is that they are sold under a positive guarantee not to smell. Made in one size only, sold at $2.50, and can be purchased in this city only at our store. Don't fail to come in on Saturday and see them in operation.

POLITICIANS AT THE FAIR

Rival Nominees for Governor Are Chief Attractions at Interstate Exhibition.

THE BIG GUNS THERE

Seventy-five Thousand Persons Attend On the Principal Day of the Big Show at Trenton.

It was "Politicians' Day" at the Interstate Fair at Trenton yesterday, and the political activities of the State were centred in the capital city. The principal attraction, of course, were John Franklin Fort, the Republican Gubernatorial candidate, and Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., the Democratic nominee. Prominent political leaders from all parts of the State were in attendance.

There was anespecially big turnout of Democrats, particularly from the northern counties, and all of them were confident that Mr. Katzenbach's election was assured. Republican leaders, however, were equally confident that Judge Fort would be elected and control of the House would swing back to the Republican party.

Mr. Katzenbach was the first to arrive at the fair grounds. He came in an automobile, accompanied by Harry J. Stout, Joseph Hoff, E. Furman Hooper, Bayard Stockton and John P. Dullard, prominent local leaders. He made a tour of the grounds and was received everywhere with great applause. Mr. Katzenbach is popular with Trenton people of all political parties, and there is considerable local pride over his nomination.

Mr. Fort arrived soon after the Katzenbach party had entered the grounds, and he, too, made a tour of the place. His wonderful memory for names and faces made him a favorite everywhere. He was accompanied around the grounds by Governor Stokes, United States Senators Briggs and Kean, John F. Dryden, Colonel A. R. Kuser, Forest Dryden, John L. Kuser and other State leaders.

After a tour of the fair the rival candidates met at the office of Senator J. F. Blackwell, president of the Fair Association, and the issues of the campaign were forgotten while luncheon was served.

Then the line of march was taken to the grand stand for the racing and vaudeville attractions. Governor Stokes led the way, followed by the candidates and their political associates. The bands played "Hail to the Chief," and an ovation was tendered to the candidates.

One of the noticeable features of the day was the absence of both James Smith and Robert Davis, the Democratic leaders from the northern end of the State.

In addition to being "politicians' day" it was also "big Thursday," the principal day of the week's exhibition, and an immense crowd was present on that account also. It was estimated this afternoon that not less than 75,000 persons had passed through the turnstiles. This is a record breaking attendance. All of the attractions were well patronized.

Today's "get away day," when most of the exhibitors will remove their displays and the fakers will fold their tents and depart. For the first time in the history of the fair, however, the gates will be kept open until Saturday night, when there will be concluded a twenty-four hour automobile race.

Pastor Howard Returns.

Rev. L. R. Howard, pastor of Hope chapel, returned yesterday from a three months' visit in Illinois for the benefit of his health. The rest has improved him greatly and he led the regular prayer meeting at the chapel last night. He was greeted by a large congregation and an address of welcome was delivered by David Bowden. At the close of the service a social time was enjoyed.

Alexander Ayres was unable to mingle among the politicians at the Interstate Fair at Trenton yesterday owing to a rush of business.

Edward E. Iremonger, former chairman of the Republican city committee, appears to be the strongest candidate for the nomination for Councilman-at-large.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Preparatory services will be held in Trinity Reformed church this evening at 8 o'clock. Rev. J. T. Lansdale, pastor of Marconnier chapel, will be in charge of the meeting.

All of the young people of the First Baptist church are requested to attend the meeting to be held in the church tonight, when definite steps will be taken toward forming an association. Officers will be elected and a proposed constitution and by-laws introduced.

SOMERSET FREEHOLDERS ACCEPT TWO BRIDGES.

Other Matters of Business Disposed of at Meeting Held Yesterday.

The Somerset County Board of Chosen Freeholders met yesterday to view what are known as the Miller and Layton bridges in Bedminster township and afterward organized at the hotel in the village of Bedminster, when the structures were formally accepted.

A communication was received from the Somerville Water Company in reference to laying a six inch watea main on the west side of the country road from the Grove street bridge to the Somerville corporation limits, for the purpose of supplying the residents of North Grove street with water. Granted.

A resolution was passed demanding that William Elling remove certain obstructions from the country road in front of his property in North Somerville.

The Board will ask for bids for the construction of a retaining wall between the river bridge and the mill race bridge at North Branch.

Amboy Bridge Open.

The Middlesex County Commissioners yesterday formally declared the new county bridge between Perth Amboy and South Amboy over the Raritan River open for traffic. The structure is nearly a mile long and cost about $300,000. It was originally built as a pile bridge, with a draw over the Raritan River channel, and was opened in that shape over a year ago, but the War Department ordered 450 feet of piling pulled up and three 150-foot spans substituted. The bridge is the longest public structure over navigable water in New Jersey.

Frown On Sunday Vaudeville.

The Rev. John E. Hiendel, of the German Evangelical Lutheran church, in Jersey City, who has led the fight of clergymen against Sunday evening "sacred concert" performances at Jersey City theatres, said yesterday that he had received assurances from a representative of Mayor Fagan that the performances would not be allowed. Chief of Police Monahan said he had had no talk with the Mayor on the subject. The show at a Newark avenue theatre last Sunday evening was permitted, the Chief said, because it was for charity.

Dr. Freeman Wins Primary Fight.

New Brunswick, Oct. 4.—The election board of Metuchen yesterday afternoon made another count of the votes cast at the primary election on September 10, and will make a return to the clerk of Middlesex county showing that Dr. Charles M. Freeman, husband of Mary E. Wilkins, the author, received the majority of the Democratic votes cast for a candidate for Mayor. The clerk will place the doctor's name on the regular Democratic ticket to be voted on November 5, though the doctor is a Republican.

Hudson Juror May Be In Contempt.

The unexplained absence of a juror caused the mistrial of a suit in the Hudson County Circuit Court yesterday, after the case had taken up the attention of the couht and jury, all of the preceding court. The juror, Frank Kennedy, of Hoboken, has been dismissed from the panel, and proceedings in contempt have been ordered by Judge Vail.

Suburbs For Annexation.

The West Hudson County Board of Trade, at its first meeting of the season, last night, elected eight new members. In an informal way the matter of consolidation of the three towns, Kearny, Harrison and East Newark, was discussed, and eventual annexation to Newark is to be advocated.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Maxwell, of New York, have removed to Plainfield and taken up their residence at 818 Webster place.

OUT OF THE QUICKSANDS

By M. QUAD.

(Copyright, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

One hundred and fifteen convicts, half of them under life sentence, occupied corridor No. 4 of the big prison, and they had been locked in since the six o'clock supper. Down at the west end of the steel door a turnkey sat and dozed until a flash of lightning and a peal of thunder aroused him. The sighing and muttering and cursing of the convicts was an old story to him. Those sounds did not disturb him. He held the keys of the five doors between his prisoners and liberty, and they were his animals.

There was another flash and another peal, and then the storm was on. It awed the "animals" and they were silent. The turnkey arose and turned two or three of the ventilators and then walked up and down in his list slippers as softly as a cat. He was at the head of the menagerie. He had a hundred and fifteen animals under his thumb. Forty of the convicts, standing at their doors, could see the officer as he walked and turned—walked and turned. They bared their teeth at him and growled a "yah!" but he did not look up. Presently another figure came into their vision. It was that of Black Sam. He was convict No. 814. He had been in the prison for two years, and his history was better known than of any other inmate. In some manner he had picked the lock of his cell door and descended the corridor stairs without discovery. It was over while the convicts held their breath. The giant of a Black Sam seized the turnkey and lifted him high and dashed him to the stone floor as if he had been a bag of sand.

When the convict took the keys and unlocked the steel door there was an uneasy movement on the part of all the "animals" in the corridor. Only 40 could see with their eyes, but the others could feel. All knew that Black Sam was escaping, and that he was going alone, but not a voice was raised in protest. Officials and convicts alike had learned to fear the man. Had he unlocked a hundred cell doors not a prisoner would have followed him. He stood for a moment and looked back. Not a word—not a whisper—not a movement from the men he was leaving behind.

Three years previously at the big slate quarry a hundred miles up the coast Black Sam had been taken on to replace a foreman who had died. Mary Bryn, the daughter of one of the quarrymen, had looked upon this strong, smiling man and blushed. He had looked into her brown eyes and sought her out in her own home. They were humble people, and it was a humble courtship, but the sentiment was there the same as if one had worn silks and the other broadcloth. The workmen in the quarry—the people in the village—the children toddling about loved this foreman—all but one. With Mary Bryn's father it was different. There was envy and hate in his soul because the place had not fallen to him. He made no sign but he hated.

One day there came to the village a man who might, with the father's ready encouragement, have worked much harm. He was an artist who was sketching along the coast. He lingered beyond his time and there was gossip. One morning as he strolled along the sands Black Sam stood before him. At first the big man plead with him to go away. He did not command, but appealed. When he was answered with sneers and sarcasm he grew angry and made threats that were overheard by others. At length he menaced, and the artist feared personal violence and turned away. The tide was out at that hour and ahead of him as he walked was a spot that the children and dogs passing that way avoided with a chill of fear. Two days later the foreman was arrested. The artist had suddenly and mysteriously disappeared. The search was exhaustive, but no traces could be found. When all had been gathered together, there were many little circumstances pointing the accusing finger at the foreman. His unsupported word was his defense. That went with Mary Bryn, but with none other.

"You didn't do it—you never could have done it!" she wailed with her arms around the prisoner's neck; but her father shook his head in a doubtful way and said with others that the law must take its course. In his heart he was glad.

Weeks later, when the prisoner was on trial for his life, Samuel Bryn took a walk along the seashore. He came to that peculiar spot in the sands—that spot always showing wet and soft, no matter how lazy the return tide or how hot the sun, and he paused and stared at it for a long, long time. Then he picked up a pole that had been left stranded on the beach and began to poke and dig. Presently he felt something queer, and his face paled and he shut his teeth hard as he threw the pole away and walked swiftly from the spot.

"He made game of me and I would have struck him," was Black Sam's defense in court. "Aye, he made game of me, the man as made pictures, and I would have struck him had he not turned his back on me and walked away. When he did that I turned as well and so help me God he came to no harm through me."

They had not found the body, but the jury brought in a verdict of guilty and Black Sam was given a life sentence. At the prison he was classed as "dangerous," and the officials were ready to shoot him down at the first sign of breaking loose. Out of a man they made an animal. A keeper lay helpless on the stone floor and an animal walked out into the night and the storm.

There was a new lover at the cabin on the hill above the slate quarry. Mary's father would have it so. The young man came and went, but it was few words he got from the girl. She had promised the man in prison that she would be faithful, and the father could not move her. He coaxed, argued and threatened. She was silent and tearful, but she was determined. On a Sunday night when the harvest moon rode high and clear, but a gale was sweeping over the land and angering the sea, the quarryman left his cabin to walk on the shore. He had feared for long months that the tide would come in above the mark some day and dig and bore and delve and unearth that thing from its grave and leave it exposed on the sands. All that day he had been uneasy as he listened to the howling of the gale and the booming of the surf.

Ten minutes after the father left the house the daughter followed him. A feeling that she could not resist impelled her. The lover whose love was not returned was left behind, but presently he rose up and took the same path down to the sea. The quarryman's fears had been realized. The waters had rushed far above the wet spot and dug into it and swirled about it, and had at last fastened their fingers on the body of the victim and hove it out to view. It lay there with the foam sweeping over it at every seventh wave. The sands had preserved it from decay, and the quarryman cursed in his throat as he bent over and recognized the features.

"It is him! It is him!" screamed the daughter in the father's ear; and her shrill tones were carried far out to sea by the howling gale.

"Aye, the missing man—he was quicksanded!" exclaimed the lover as he came plodding over the sands to stare at the body.

"You knew it!" screamed the girl as she pointed at the dead and then at her father. "You knew it all the time, and yet you never said a word! You hated him. You wanted his place. You have sent a man to die in prison and broken a girl's heart. May God never forgive you!"

Another man came plodding over the sands. He came to the trio and spoke no word. He saw the object on the sands and knew what it was, but he made no exclamation. For that he had been sent away for life. For that he had been changed from a man to an animal. Mary heard him breathing hoarsely at her elbow, and she turned and put her hand in his and laid her head on his shoulder. On the sand dunes behind them men on horses and men on foot suddenly appeared. They had guns and shouted to each other as they caught sight of the convict.

"Come, Mary," said Black Sam, as he lifted the girl in his arms and carried her over to a boat beached beyond the reach of the surf. With a heave of his giant shoulders he shoved the boat into the water and then held her for a moment. The big white moon stood fairly out to sea, and her shimmer made a broad pathway across the heaving waters. That pathway began millions of miles away and seemed to end at the dead man on the sands. The men hurried down from the dunes and aimed and fired their rifles at the figures in the boat, but their bullets flew harmless. Then they looked at the corpse on the sands and shouted to the convict that he was an innocent man and should return to stand before his fellowmen, but he did not look back.

Straight out into the heaving, troubled sea—straight into the path of the moonlight—straight for that Unknown that human souls visit never to return, sailed the boat and the lovers, and they were presently hidden from sight by the tossing billows and no man saw them again. Somewhere they found rest and peace.

Reckless of Life.

A wrestler named Tournier was sentenced to eight months' imprisonment at Toulouse recently. No sooner had he heard the sentence than he whipped out a revolver, fired four bullets at the witness whose evidence had procured his conviction, and fled from the police court.

Tournier barricaded himself within his house, together with his wife and children, and swore that he would shoot the first policeman who attempted to arrest him.

The new Fort Chabrol was at once surrounded by a cordon of police. Tournier shot twice at a policeman who had come within range. Soon afterward Mme. Tournier appeared at the window and cried, "He has killed himself."

The police would not believe it until the poor woman had brought out Tournier's weapons. They then entered the house, and found the wrestler on his bed. On a sheet of paper he had scrawled, "Let my wife alone; she has trouble enough as it is."—London Leader.

Already Done.

"Dear me, John, this is dreadful with hot weather on us and no money to go anywhere. Haven't you any country relations you can scare up?"

"That's the trouble. I've scared all I've got already."—Baltimore American.

A Definition.

"Pa," said little Willie, looking up from his paper, "what is a philanthropist, anyway?"

"A philanthropist, my son," replied his wise pa, "is usually a man who spends his time getting other people to spend their money for charity."

Men's Suits A Style That's Different.

It is said, and it is doubtless true, that the clothes one wears have an effect for good or evil on one's spirits. Certain suits depress; others cheer the wearer. So women have by odds the best of men in the matter of clothes because of the decided changes in style, and the refreshing feeling of newness that goes with every suit they buy.

But we've done something for men this season by having a model made especially for us that, while not at all freaky, is some different and out of the beaten path.

These suits are intended for that class of men, young and old, who like to dress with some individuality yet in fashionable manner.

These are Sack Suits in three and four-button styles. The lapels are peaked; the back is fairly full without vent; the shoulders suggest the athletic style though not extreme. The cuffs have a new cut; the buttons are placed closer together than usual and the average length coat is thirty-one inches.

The fabrics and colorings are fresh and unusual, including Brown Scotch Mixtures and plain browns as well as checks and plaids, overplaids in gray and brown, small black and gray checks, and they are full of a color scheme that relieves the garments of somberness; best of mohair linings; first-class trimmings; extremely low-priced considering the tailoring.

Prices $7.00 to $30.00.

We particularly call your attention to those suits we sell at $12.98, $15 and $18.
Fall Overcoats, $10 to $35; Raincoats, $10 up.
Trousers—cheviots, cassimeres and worsteds, $1.50 to $10.

All Fur Automobile Coats.

Sale of Raccoon Coats, worth $120 to $125, for $50.

Just a year ago we offered a lot of Fur Coats at a price that was much below what they were worth, and they were sold out very quickly. All thru the season after that sale we were asked, time and again, for coats at that price and could not supply them.

This season we come with a lot of coats better than the former ones in every way—coats we contracted for early in the year with a prominent maker, enabling him to keep his workers busy thru a dull season, therefore giving us a decided advantage in price.

These luxurious fur coats are made of rich dark raccoon in the most up-to-date model, lined with satin; yoke and sleeves with cloth lining, and they are coats that would sell in the regular course of trade at $120 to $125. These we place on sale tomorrow, Saturday only, at the astonishing price of . . $50

Automobilists and others who have occasion to expose themselves to the rigors of winter are advised to take advantage of this very remarkable sale, as an equal opportunity is not likely to occur.

Men's $4 Shoes $2.55.

W. L. Douglas and other well-known makes of Men's Shoes—kinds that are manufactured to sell at $3.50 and $4 a pair; sold to us at a great reduction because of slight factory imperfections which will not affect the wear in the least, are the basis of this offer.

Shoes of Patent Colt Skin, Calf Skin and Gunmetal; sizes 5 to 11, many styles and shapes; some low shoes in the lot; pick any pair you wish tomorrow and while the lot lasts at, only $2.55

WOULDN'T WED HIS MIDNIGHT CALLERS.

Decide to Wait Until They Are Older and Wiser.

The Rev. Thomas S. Brock, pastor of St. James' Methodist Episcopal church, New Brunswick, was awakened by his wife about midnight last night, who informed him that there was a young pair at the door.

They were from South River and very anxious to have the minister marry them. They were not accompanied by any one, and because of the youth of the girl and the fact that the young man had been drinking the pastor refused to tie the knot.

Inquiry was made of other local ministers as to a midnight marriage in which they officiated, but none of them, so far as is known, officiated in any wedding that night, and it is thought they decided to wait until they were older and wiser before they wed.

The Sheik and His House.

When the French came into contact with the Bedouin in Algeria, it was thought that a ready way of civilizing him would be to assist him to build himself a permanent habitation. A sheik who was thus favored was full of gratitude to the French engineers who had built him a house.

"Since my house was finished," he said, "I have not lost a single sheep. I lock them up in my house every night, and next morning I find them all in safety."

"Then where do you sleep yourself?" asked an officer in amazement.

"Oh, for myself, a sheik can live only in his tent," said the other, with dignity.

The Truth.

Gabsa Golde descended painfully from his ninety horsepower automobile.

"I wish to purchase," he said, "an engagement ring."

"Yes, sir," said the eager clerk. "We have just imported a superb ring, sir—two ruby hearts surrounded"—

"No," said the aged millionaire in a cold, disillusioned voice; "no, that won't do. There is only one heart concerned in this affair. The girl is marrying me for my money."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

"Packing Off of Widows."

Some curious customs in the way of pastimes prevail in Korea. Among the farming classes there is one known as the "packing off of widows." This means a raid on a certain village known to contain a young widow. A widower, accompanied by friends, enters the village, carries off the woman in question and marries her.

Window Made of Stone.

A window made entirely of stone has been presented to a French cathedral. The stone is nephrite, found in Siberia, and so beautifully transparent that when placed as it is it catches the sun's rays and reflects them into the interior of the cathedral.

Blackbirds.

Blackbirds are powerful enemies of wasps. A blackbird will stand coolly by the side of a wasps' nest and deliberately tear it to pieces to get at the larvae, apparently caring not in the least for the swarms of angry insects flying around.

Garnet and Topaz.

The deterioration of the garnet and topaz is much more rapid than that of the ruby, but it takes a different form. While the garnet becomes lighter, the topaz turns cloudy and dull and loses all its brightness.

The Deadheads.

"What started the riot at the performance of 'Hamlet' last night?"

"Ham held the skull and said, 'Alas, poor Yorick, you are not the only dead head in the house.'"—Pearson's Weekly.

The Guillotine.

Which machine of the type invented by Guillotine was first put to its dread use is not known, but that used for the execution of Marie Antoinette still exists in Berlin.

IT WAS, only about a year ago, just a pretty farm.

IT IS to day the finest building site in Plainfield, with broad avenues macadamized their entire width, concrete curb, sidewalks, trees, gas, electric light, in fact all improvements. Nearly $100,000 expended in new and handsome dwellings, now ready for the market.

WHAT IT WILL BE we hardly dare predict, with contracts out for even more extensive improvements and twelve more handsome residences.

Central Park is that beautifully situated tract bounded by Park, Prospect, Hillside and Thornton Avenues.

LEAGUE WILL CONTINUE

More Nines Will Be in the Pennant Race Next Year.

MAY BE EIGHT CLUBS

There Will Be Six Contenders, at Least—Handsome Cups For Star Hitters and Base-Stealers.

By a vote of the Inter-City Baseball League "magnates" last night, the continuance of the organization another season became an assured thing. The managers met at the office of Physical Director Listman, of the Y. M. C. A., manager of the association team, and besides determining that the league had proved itself a complete success and worthy of continued existence, they made arrangements to determine the winners of the prizes offered for batting and base-stealing.

Managers Bowlby, of Bound Brook; Frentz, of Scotch Plains; Dorflinger, of Clinton Avenue, and Listman, of the Y. M. C. A., besides several of the captains, were at the meeting. All of them agreed that the league had met their highest expectations. Not only was it splendidly successful from the standpoint of the sport, but the financial success was of a most pleasing character. Not a dissenting voice was raised when the suggestion that the organization be carried on for another season was brought up.

There is to be a decided change in the apearance of the league next year. It will be larger by at least two clubs, and there is a possibility that four clubs will be added. Where the new clubs will be from cannot be stated at this time; Rahway, New Brunswick, Somerville, Roselle, Garwood, Westfield, even Dunellen, are among the possible homes of league nines in 1908. About the only things decided are that the league will be enlarged, and that it will not be larger than eight clubs.

The trophies for the star hitters and base-stealers are silver cups. There is a first and a second prize for hitting, and one prize for stealing. The batting figures are in so incomplete a state at present that not even a guess could be hazarded by the league secretary last night as to who will get the cups. The figures will be worked out by next week, by a committee consisting of Managers Bowlby, Frentz, Listman and Dorflinger. The base-stealing percentage is also incomplete, but that cup is said to lie between Ralph Schoonmaker, shortstop of the Y. M. C. A. nine, and Billy O'Loughlin, catcher of the Clinton Avenue combination.

Whether or not prizes and the pennant will be presented at a formal gathering was not decided. Some affair will probably be arranged to mark fittingly the team and individual victories. Manager Listman will get the pennant in New York next week. It will be a big "rag," bearing this inscription: "Clinton Avenue, Champions, Inter-City Baseball League."

The league will hold another meeting in a week or two. The committee on prizes will report at that time, and then official announcement of the winners will be made.

TWO MORE GAMES.

Clinton Avenue Will Play Exhibition Contests With 'Plains and Y. M. C. A.

Two more lively games of ball are promised the fans before the season ends here. It was announced after the league meeting last night that Clinton Avenue, the pennant winners, and Scotch Plains, the runners-up, will meet o nthe Oval tomorrow afternoon.

The Saturday following Y. M. C. A. and Clinton Avenue will play. Of course the trailing clubs are just spoiling for the satisfaction of lowering the colors of the conquering champs, and the West Enders will have two spirited contests. They thrive on hot battles, however, and the livelier the meeting the better they are apt to work.

Miss Fleming Tennis Champion.

The women's singles, for the club championship, were finished on the courts of the Plainfield Country Club, yesterday afternoon, when Miss Barbara Fleming beat Miss Sarah Schuyler, 6-4, 7-5, and received the first prize, a silver dish, presented by George P. Mellick. The runner-up received a cup, presented by the club. The men's singles championship will be finished tomorrow afternoon.

that he thought the rates here very low, averaging about 5 cents a day. He pays annually $300 to the company, because he owns considerable property, and said he had no kick to make.

Regarding a municipal water supply, B. Frank Coriell said that he was in the Common Council when the question was discussed, but no one had yet shown him what advantage it would be for the city to bond itself for one or two million dollars, lose the revenue from outside towns which is now a considerable item in the profits of the local company.

It was the opinion of Mr. Marshall that if the water company can make money the city should be able to, and he believed that Amos Andrews and William Whelan would be just as glad to work for the city as the present company. However, he did not favor a municipal plant under present conditions.

It was decided to lay the garbage disposal question over to next year, when, as Mr. Marshall said, he understood Plainfield would have a crackajack Common Council.

The Brick Pave.

Considerable time was spent in discussing the slow work of brick paving, which was a great inconvenience to the merchants. A. E. Force predicted that the merchants on Front street would suffer a great deal about the holiday times if that thoroughfare was allowed to be torn up and left in that condition any length of time.

These remarks brought forth a vigorous reply from F. A. Dunham. He thought recent criticism in that direction too severe on the contractor and city engineer. He declared that the city is getting a first-class job, without any graft, and that no improvement of the kind can be made without some inconvenience. He begged the indulgence of the merchants, believing that Mr. Gavett will do all in his power to rush the work.

In this connection there was some talk about the poor sidewalks and curbing in the business section, and everyone believed that steps should be taken to improve the same while the brick pavement is being laid.

—William Richards has resigned his position as clerk with a local grocer.

—Miss Serrell, of Myrtle avenue, gave an informal bridge whist party at her home yesterday, to which a small company of friends were invited.

—The last days of the peach season are at hand and Neuman Brothers expect the last consignment tomorrow. It will be a good one, nevertheless, and will comprise some splendid Iron Mountain and Fox Seedling varieties.

—Horse Sale—I will sell at the Somerset street stables on Saturday, October 5, a carload of acclimated horses, consisting of fast drivers and some workers, with ponies and cart. This is a good lot and worth the attention of buyers. Sale 1:30 p. m. and we will be pleased to have you all with us. **

YOUNG INDIANA BOY IS A JEAN VALJEAN

YOUTH WHO ESCAPED FROM PRISON CAUGHT WHILE LIVING MODEL LIFE.

Kokomo, Ind.—Carl Hunt, who, for a year, has been employed in a responsible position by the Kokomo Steel and Wire company, was arrested by the police on the charge of being a fugitive from the Indiana School for Boys at Plainfield. Hunt admits that he escaped from the school, but asserts that he has lived an upright life ever since, and he proposes to continue to do so if his liberty is given him.

The police have investigated his record since he has been in Kokomo and found it exemplary. He has worked steadily, has avoided evil companions, saved his money, has been a regular attendant at Sunday school, and while not at work has been busily engaged in study.

Saw a Good Opportunity to Escape and Took It.

His case discloses a child Jean Valjean.

Hunt was sent to Plainfield when 9 years old from Bringhurst, Ind., as an "incorrigible." He won enough credits in a year and a half to entitle him to a parole, and he was sent back to Bringhurst. Soon after his return a store in Bringhurst was robbed. He said he had no connection whatever with the robbery, but suspicion was directed toward him, and he was arrested and returned to Plainfield without trial.

Afterward the charge of robbery was dismissed by the Carroll Circuit court, but Hunt was not released. He became a trusty of the school, and lived quietly there until a year ago. One day he saw a good opportunity to escape, and he took it. He came directly to Kokomo, as he had heard that employment was easy to obtain in the steel and wire mills.

Young Hunt worked faithfully and received frequent promotions and increases in salary. He probably would have worked his way into a position of trust had not this secret of his life been revealed. Some one who had learned the facts concerning Hunt's past wrote to the authorities of the Plainfield school telling them he was in Kokomo. The letter was sent to the Kokomo police, and they arrested Hunt at his boarding house this morning.

He is greatly distressed at having to return to the Plainfield institution, but he sees no way to avoid it, and he will probably have to serve a long time for the offense of escaping. It was said today that some of the friends he made while in this city are talking of interesting themselves in his behalf with Gov. Hanly, to the end that a permanent parole for him may be obtained.

Cow Loses Tail in Tree.

Traverse City, Mich.—Catching her tail in the limb of a tree while fighting flies, a cow belonging to Frank Parmenter, in trying to free herself, strained and grunted until she and the tail parted company, leaving her nothing but a wiggling eight inch stump to give battle to insects. Her owner discovered her plight before the break occurred and endeavored to extricate the caudal appendage with no success. Then he secured a saw and started to saw the tree down, but the cow still pulled and broke the tail before he could finish. The report was heard a block away when the tail parted.

Pigs' Tails as Barometers.

Milton, Del.—The secret of "Uncle Billy" Waring's ability to forecast the weather has leaked out. Recently he has been able with an exactitude not equaled by the best barometers to tell his neighbors 24 and sometimes 36 hours ahead what weather to expect. His predictions have been of great benefit to farmers. Now it is learned that he gets his tips from his two pigs. In dry weather the tails of the pigs have one curl, in wet weather two curls, and just before a rain their tails hang limp.

Fooled the General.

There is a story of a Russian general who asked a sentry at night, "How many stars are in the sky?" The sentry was not at a loss for an answer. "I will see, sir," he said, and calmly began counting them. After he had reached 700 the general rode off, for it was bitterly cold.

IN THE FOG

BY

Richard Harding Davis.

COPYRIGHT, 1901, BY ROBERT HOWARD RUSSELL.

At these unexpected words, which carried in them something of the tone of a challenge, the gentlemen about the table started as suddenly as though the American had fired a pistol in the air, and Sir Andrew halted abruptly and stood observing him with grave surprise.

The gentleman with the black pearl was the first to recover.

"Yes, yes," he said eagerly, throwing himself across the table. "A mystery that baffles the police of London. I have heard nothing of it. Tell us at once, pray do—tell us at once."

The American flushed uncomfortably and picked uneasily at the tablecloth.

"No one but the police has heard of it," he murmured, "and they only through me. It is a remarkable crime, to which, unfortunately, I am the only person who can bear witness. Because I am the only witness, I am, in spite of my immunity as a diplomat, detained in London by the authorities of Scotland Yard. My name," he said, inclining his head politely, "is Sears, Lieutenant Ripley Sears of the United States Navy, at present Naval Attache to the Court of Russia. Had I not been detained to-day by the police I would have started this morning for Petersburg."

The gentleman with the black pearl interrupted with so pronounced an exclamation of excitement and delight that the American stammered and ceased speaking.

"Do you hear, Sir Andrew?" cried the member of Parliament jubilantly. "An American diplomat halted by our police because he is the only witness of a most remarkable crime—the most remarkable crime, I believe you said, sir," he added, bending eagerly toward the naval officer, "which has occurred in London in many years."

The American moved his head in assent and glanced at the two other members. They were looking doubtfully at him, and the face of each showed that he was greatly perplexed.

Sir Andrew advanced to within the light of the candles and drew a chair toward him.

"The crime must be exceptional indeed," he said, "to justify the police in interfering with a representative of a friendly power. If I were not forced to leave at once, I should take the liberty of asking you to tell us the details."

The gentleman with the pearl pushed the chair toward Sir Andrew, and motioned him to be seated.

"You cannot leave us now," he exclaimed. "Mr. Sears is just about to tell us of this remarkable crime."

He nodded vigorously at the naval officer and the American, after first glancing doubtfully toward the servants at the far end of the room, leaning forward across the table. The others drew their chairs nearer and bent toward him. The baronet glanced irresolutely at his watch, and with an exclamation of annoyance snapped down the lid. "They can wait," he muttered. He seated himself quickly and nodded at Lieutenant Sears.

"If you will be so kind as to begin, sir," he said impatiently.

"Of course," said the American, "you understand that I understand that I am speaking to gentlemen. The confidences of this Club are inviolate. Until the police give the facts to the public press, I must consider you my confederates. You have heard nothing, you know no one connected with this mystery. Even I must remain anonymous."

The gentlemen seated around him nodded gravely.

"Of course," the baronet assented with eagerness, "of course."

"We will refer to it," said the gentleman with the black pearl, "as 'The Story of the Naval Attache.'"

"I arrived in London two days ago," said the American, "and I engaged a room at the Bath Hotel. I know very few people in London, and even the members of our embassy were strangers to me. But in Hong Kong I had become great pals with an officer in your navy, who has since retired, and who is now living in a small house in Rutland Gardens opposite the Knightsbridge Barracks. I telegraphed him that I was in London, and yesterday morning I received a most hearty invitation to dine with him the same evening at his house. He is a bachelor, so we dined alone and talked over all our old days on the Asiatic Station, and of the changes which had come to us since we had last met there. As I was leaving the next morning for my post at Petersburg, and had many letters to write, I told him, about 10 o'clock, that I must get back to the hotel, and he sent out his servant to call a hansom.

"For the next quarter of an hour, as we sat talking, we could hear the cab whistle sounding violently from the doorstep, but apparently with no result.

"'It cannot be that the cabmen are on strike,' my friend said, as he rose and walked to the window.

"He pulled back the curtains and at once called to me.

"'You have never seen a London fog, have you?' he asked. 'Well, come here. This is one of the best, or, rather, one of the worst, of them.' I joined him at the window, but I could see nothing. Had I not known that the house looked out upon the street I would have believed that I was facing a dead wall. I raised the sash and stretched out my head, but still I could see nothing. Even the light of the street lamps opposite, and in the upper windows of the barracks, had been smothered in the yellow mist. The lights of the room in which I stood penetrated the fog only to the distance of a few inches from my eyes.

"Below me the servant was still sounding his whistle, but I could afford to wait no longer, and told my friend that I would try and find the way to my hotel on foot. He objected, but the letters I had to write were for the Navy Department, and, besides, I had always heard that to be out in a London fog was the most wonderful experience, and I was curious to investigate one for myself.

"My friend went with me to his front door and laid down a course for me to follow. I was first to walk straight across the street to the brick wall of the Knightsbridge Barracks. I was then to feel my way along the wall until I came to a row of houses set back from the sidewalk. They would bring me to a cross street. On the other side of this street was a row of shops which I was to follow until they joined the iron railings of Hyde Park. I was to keep to the railings until I reached the gates at Hyde Park Corner, where I was to lay a diagonal course across Piccadilly, and tack in toward the railings of Green Park. At the end of these railings, going east, I would find the Walsingham, and my own hotel.

"To a sailor the course did not seem difficult, so I bade my friend good-night and walked forward until my feet touched the paving. I continued upon it until I reached the curbing of the sidewalk. A few steps further, and my hands struck the wall of the barracks. I turned in the direction from which I had just come and saw a square of faint light cut in the yellow fog. I shouted 'All right,' and the voice of my friend answered, 'Good luck to you.' The light from his open door disappeared with a bang, and I was left alone in a dripping, yellow darkness. I have been in the Navy for ten years, but I have never known such a fog as that of last night, not even among the icebergs of Behring Sea. There one at least could see the light of the binnacle, but last night I could not even distinguish the hand by which I guided myself along the barrack wall. At sea a fog is a natural phenomenon. It is as familiar as the rainbow which follows a storm, it is as proper that a fog should spread upon the waters as that steam shall rise from a kettle. But a fog which springs from the paved streets, that rolls between solid house-fronts, that forces cabs to move at half speed, that drowns policemen and extinguishes the electric lights of the music hall, that to me is incomprehensible. It is as out of place as a tidal wave on Broadway.

"As I felt my way along the wall, I encountered other men who were coming from the opposite direction, and each time when we hailed each other I stepped away from the wall to make room for them to pass. But the third time I did this, when I reached out my hand, the wall had disappeared, and the further I moved to find it the further I seemed to be sinking into space. I had the unpleasant conviction that at any moment I might step over a precipice. Since I had set out I had heard no traffic in the street, and now, although I listened some minutes, I could only distinguish the occasional footfalls of pedestrians. Several times I called aloud, and once a jocular gentleman answered me, but only to ask me where I thought he was, and then even he was swallowed up in the silence. Just above me I could make out a jet of gas which I guessed came from a street lamp, and I moved over to that, and, while I tried to recover my bearings, kept my hand on the iron post. Except for this flicker of gas, no larger than the tip of my finger, I could distinguish nothing about me. For the rest, the mist hung between me and the world like a damp and heavy blanket.

"I could hear voices, but I could not tell from whence they came, and the scrape of a foot moving cautiously, or a muffled cry as some one stumbled, were the only sounds that reached me.

"I decided that until some one took me in tow I had best remain where I was, and it must have been for ten minutes that I waited by the lamp, straining my ears and hailing distant footfalls. In a house near me some people were dancing to the music of a Hungarian band. I even fancied I could hear the windows shake to the rhythm of their feet, but I could not make out from which part of the compass the sounds came. And sometimes, as the music rose, it seemed close at my hand, and again, to be floating high in the air above my head. Although I was surrounded by thousands of householders, I was as completely lost as though I had been set down by night in the Sahara Desert. There seemed to be no reason in waiting longer for an escort, so I again set out, and at once bumped against a low iron fence. At first I believed this to be an area railing, but on following it I found that it stretched for a long distance, and that it was pierced at regular intervals with gates. I was standing uncertainly with my hand on one of these when a square of light suddenly opened in the night, and in it I saw, as you see a picture thrown by a biograph in a darkened theater, a young gentleman in evening dress, and back of him the lights of a hall. I guessed from its elevation and distance from the sidewalk that this light must come from the door of a house set back from the street, and I determined to approach it and ask the young man to tell me where I was. But in fumbling with the lock of the gate I instinctively bent my head, and when I raised it again the door had partly closed, leaving only a narrow shaft of light. Whether the young man had re-entered the house, or had left it, I could not tell, but I hastened to open the gate, and as I stepped forward I found myself upon an asphalt walk. At the same instant there was the sound of quick steps upon the path, and some one rushed past me. I called to him, but he made no reply, and I heard the gate click and the footsteps hurrying away upon the sidewalk.

SOMERSET'S HARMONIOUS G. O. P. MAKES TICKET

W. W. Smalley for Assembly; J. A. Metz Jr., for Surrogate and Robt. Kay for Sheriff.

ON STRONG PLATFORM

Mayor Smalley Chairman—Delegates Laud Pure Food and Auto Laws and Favor Excise Enforcement.

The Somerset County Republican Convention, which convened in Somerset Hall, Somerville, this morning at 11 o'clock, placed in nomination the following ticket for the November election: For member of the Assembly, W. W. Smalley, of Bound Brok; for surrogate, James A. Mets, Jr., of Bridgewater; for sheriff, Robert Kay, of Bernards Township; for coroners, Joseph Herberman, of Warren, and Dr. M. C. Smalley, of Gladstone. In each case the nomination was made unanimous.

State Senator Joseph T. Frelinghuysen, as chairman of the county committee, called the convention to order, and Mayor Newton B. Smalley was made temporary chairman. Ralph L. Reed, of Bernards, was made temporary secretary and T. G. Winsor, of Somerville, temporary assistant secretary.

Immediately after the convention organized, Mayor Smalley said that he hoped the convention would lose no time in completing its work, as there was to be a baseball game this afternoon between the Elks of Plainfield and Somerville and Senator Frelinghuysen added that he hoped all the delegates would attend as the game would be for the benefit of the Somerset Hospital and it was the intention of the Somerville Elks to "wipe up the earth" with the team from Plainfield.

The work of the convention was then taken up and rushed through quickly. Mayor Smalley announced the following committees:

Resolutions—Benjamin A. Hegeman, R. D. Owens, Jacob VanArsdale, Dittmars VanNostrand, D. T. Gabriel. Permanent organization—W. F. Garretson, Fred Pettingill, R. W. Hoagland, William C. Smith, W. G. Cooper. Rules—J. B. Brown, Dr. F. L. Field, W. B. Voorhees, J. V. E. Vanderhoef, Norman Burscher. Credentials—John Bodine, Howard Woolston, Dr. C. M. Henry, George Wolfe, A. D. Wyckoff.

Soon after the appointment of committees reports were received. The committee on permanent organization moved that the temporary organization be made permanent, which was adopted, and the committee on rules decided that a majority of the votes of the delegates would be necessary to nominate. The credential committee reported no contests.

B. A. Hegeman, as chairman of the committee on resolutions, presented the report. The resolutions commended the vigorous administrations of President Roosevelt and Governor Stokes, and of the active part taken by the Somerset county legislators. They approved the enactment of laws regulating the manufacture and sale of food products, the regulations for the operation of autos over the public highways and advocated a better enforcement of the excise laws.

An improved method of selecting jurors was urged, as was also the preservation of the forests of the State. They favored a gradual increase in the tax imposed on street railways, the carrying of freight on trolley lines and the substitution of electrocution for hanging; also changes in the laws which will result in the popular choice of United States Senators. The platform was adopted without a dissenting vote.

The nomination of candidates was then taken up, that for member of Assembly being the first. Deputy County Collector Fred N. Voorhees presented the name of W. W. Smalley, and the nomination was seconded by B. A. Hegeman. On motion of John Cooper the nomination was made unanimous.

For surrogate, Bernards presented the name of A. B. Gibb and Bridgewater named James A. Mets, Jr., of that place. William F. Williams, of the borough, stated that North Plainfield had no candidates, and he took pleasure in seconding the nomination of Mr. Mets. This resulted in Mr. Gibb's withdrawing his name, after thanking the delegates for the honor conferred, and the unanimous nomination of Mr. Mets followed.

Westfielder, Once Wealthy, Ends His Life by Asphyxiation in His Bath Room.

WIFE FINDS HIS BODY

Dr. Westcott Issues Certificate After Making Examination—Suicide a Popular Resident.

George W. Tice, a life-long resident of Westfield, and at one time one of its wealthiest citizens, was found dead in the bath room of his home on Dudley avenue yesterday morning. The discovery was made by Mrs. Tice, who was attracted to the place by the odor of escaping gas. She found her husband lying prostrate upon the floor and the gas turned on. The room was filled with gas. On the door was a paper on which was written: "Don't light a match." Dr. R. R. Sinclair, the family physician, was hastily summond and he pronounced life extinct. Later in the day County Physician Wescott made an examination.

Tice was, up to a few years ago, head of the big manufacturing concern of Tice & Jacobs, on Water street, New York. He then owned a costly home on Dudley avenue, Westfield, and his fortune was estimated at over $100,000. Business reverses, however, caused him to lose nearly all his money, and he was forced to sell his interests in the New York concern and the greater part of his Westfield property at a sacrifice. With a wife and nine children to provide for, his family cares rested heavily upon his mind. For a time he worked as a clerk in a local store, but he was not long at this occupation before he suffered a complete nervous collapse, from which he never fully recovered.

Last year Tice put through a real estate deal involving the sale of some of his Dudley avenue property. From this he realized a good sum of money, with which he remodeled a home on Highland avenue, where he went to live with his family. Here he lived happily until his death. The crowning event of his latter years was the marriage of his daughter Mabel, a popular local society belle, to George Vance, of Jersey City. The ceremony took place at the home last spring. Mrs. Vance was visiting her parents at the time of her father's death

Tice was 67 years of age, and his family have resided in this section for over 100 years.

Coroner F. W. Westcott granted a burial permit this morning.

RICHTER ON PROBATION.

Bad Small Boy Put in the Custody of Captain Irwin.

William Richter, reckoned as one of the "worst" boys in Plainfield by the police, was arraigned before City Judge Runyon this morning on a charge of leading two other small boys into a West Front street house two weeks ago to steal. He has run away from home a number of times, and was arrested in Buffalo a few days before the West Front street episode.

Captain Irwin, of the probation officer's staff, who was present at the hearing, thought he might be able to do something in the way of curbing the boy, and at his request Judge Runyon turned the young prisoner over to him.

HOLIDAY IN JAIL.

Lewis Goes to Elizabeth to Be at Home Week Celebration.

Henry Lewis, colored, was arrested by Policeman Charles Flynn at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon for drunkenness and disorderly conduct at Park avenue and Front street. Judge Runyon sentenced him to $5 or twenty days.

"They's a old home week in Elizabeth next week," said Lewis. "I reckon I'd just as lief be there for that."

"Oh, very well," said the magistrate pleasantly, and promptly made out a commitment.

Howell Wasn't Murdered.

The chief of police of Summit telephoned to police headquarters last night to ask what truth there was in the report that Israel Howell, a former Summit man, now living in this city, had been murdered by two negroes. Captain Frederickson "located" Howell at his home, 534 West Second street, and advised the Summit police that somebody had been giving out misinformation. The police here have no idea how the report of the murder started.

Mrs. Amy E. Lorton, of Watchung avenue, has been called to Freeport, L. I., on account of the illness of a relative.

PLEASE THE BIG CHIEFS

Red Men Gather in Large Numbers at District Session.

SKILFUL DEGREE WORK

Rite of Adoption Exemplified By Bayonne Team—Speeches By State Officers — Much Corn and Venison.

Unqualified success attended the district session of the Red Men, held at Wetumpkah Tribe's council chamber, Park avenue, last night. Nearly 200 Red Men attended, and the affair was an inspiring one from its opening to its close. The great chiefs present were delighted with it. The district sessions are held on dates appointed by the great chiefs of the State, for sociability, inspiration and the conferring of the past sachem's degree on those entitled to it. This district includes, besides Plainfield, Raritan, Somerville, Westfield, Cranford and Bound Brook. All those places were well represented in the gathering last night, the delegations from Tonaluka Tribe, of Cranford, and from Menno Tribe, of Westfield, being especially large. A representative delegation from Miantonoma Tribe, of this city, was present. Members of Pamrauagh Tribe, of Bayonne, furnished one of the features of the occasion. They took the trail from the shores of Newark bay expressly to show their inland brethren how the adoption degree is to be worked. They exemplified the degree most ably. The great chiefs conferred the past sachem's degree on a class of fifteen, among which were several Plainfielders.

After the degree work had been disposed of speeches were made by Past Great Sachem William Newcorn, of this city; Great Sachem Frank P. Jackson, Great Senior Sagamore E. W. Schabilon, Great Prophet Charles D. Thompson, Great Keeper of Wampum Smythe and Great Keeper of Records Daniel M. Stevens. Refreshments were served after the speechmaking. There was a great abundance of corn and venison, and all the braves feasted mightily. The committee in charge was made up of A. E. Willard, M. Leichentritt and R. D. Scott.

YOUNG BAPTISTS FORM SOCIAL ORGANIZATION

PAUL SCARBOROUGH IS ELECTED PRESIDENT.

A largely attended meeting of the young people of the First Baptist church was held in the church parlors last night, when an organization was formed, officers elected and a program of music enjoyed. The society will be known as before as the Young People's Society of the First Baptist church. These officers were elected:

President, Paul Scarborough; vice presidents, Miss May Shreve, Gideon Fountain; secretary, Stanley Robins; treasurer, Miss Marguerite Serrell. These, together with the pastor, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, comprise the executive committee.

Methods of work were agreed upon and it was decidedamong others things that the society should have charge of one Wednesday evening in each month and one Sunday night meeting on alternate months. A number of committees to be appointed will be in charge of the various features. In addition to the Wednesday and Sunday night meetings, one night each month will be set apart for a social, which will include entertainments and musicales.

Following the business session an informal program of music was enjoyed. Miss Florence Wohlfert, accompanied by Howard Case, rendered two violin solos in her best style, and a male quartet, composed of Gideon and Guyon Fountain, Clyde Doane and William Flanders sang several selections. Paul Scarborough was the accompanist. Elston Leonard also added to the enjoyment of the occasion by giving several choice selections on a talking machine. Miss Miriam Hall presided at the piano during the singing of the sacred selections.

Machinists Laid Off.

Because of a slight decrease in fall orders, the night lathe gang at the Pond shop was laid off today. A number of men have also been laid off in the day shift, but the slackness is nothing out of the ordinary, as the factory has been running above the normal for a long time. The Pedrick and Ayer shop is running with a decreased force at present, but the officials look for a change for the better within a short time.

Miss Sheppard, of Somerville, is visiting Miss Ethel Lorton, of Watchung avenue.

F. S. KATZENBACH HERE

Democratic Gubernatorial Candidate is the Guest of James E. Martine.

GREETS PLAINFIELDERS

Schedule Mapped Out For the Standard-Bearer—Ovation at Jersey City Last Night.

Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., of Trenton, Democratic candidate for Governor, arrived in Plainfield at 1:09 o'clock this afternoon, coming here over the Central Railroad from Trenton. He was accompanied by LeRoy Gibby, of Summit, candidate of the Democrats of this county for surrogate, and J. W. Gordon, of Trenton, and a few other personal friends. He will remain in Plainfield until 4 o'clock, going from here to Jersey City, where he will speak at a convention tonight.

Mr. Katzenbach opened his campaign for Governor on the Democratic ticket in two rousing meetings in Jersey City last night. It was his first appearance on a platform since his nomination, and at two largely attended meetings he was given an ovation. The first meeting was held in St. Bridget's Hall, where the candidate addressed fifteen hundred persons.

Proceeding through several of the principal streets, Mr. Katzenbach and his friends were loudly cheered as they marched to Grand View Hall, where the second meeting was held. There Mr. Katzenbach addressed an audience of fully three thousand.

Grand View Hall is situated in a thickly settled German neighborhood, and many attended hoping that the candidate would discuss the excise law. In this regard those who heard Mr. Katzenbach were disappointed, for he did not touch upon the subject in the course of his remarks. The candidate is a Methodist church Sunday-school superintendent in Trenton.

Mr. Katzenbach's Itinerary.

At the headquarters of the Democratic State Committee, in Jersey City, yesterday, the State chairman, Robert S. Hudspeth, prepared the itinerary for Frank S. Katzenbach for the next two weeks. Beginning with a tour of Union county Monday, Mr. Katzenbach will be kept busy with meetings in the middle and southerly counties. The itinerary as mapped out yesterday is as follows:

Monday, October 7—Elizabeth.
Tuesday, October 8—Middlesex county.
Wednesday, October 9—Somerset county, including convention.
Thursday, October 10—Morris county.
Friday, October 11—Bergen county.
Saturday, October 12—Monmouth county.
Monday, October 14—Cumberland county.
Tuesday, October 15—Gloucester county.
Wednesday, October 16—Salem county.
Thursday, October 17—Atlantic county.
Friday, October 18—Burlington county.
Saturday, October 19—Camden county.
Monday, October 21—Passaic county.
Tuesday, October 22—Warren county.
Wednesday, October 23—Hunterdon county.

Daniel A. Dugan, manager of the press bureau of the State Committee, has sent invitations to the Democratic editors of the State to meet Mr. Hudspeth at a reception and luncheon at half-past eleven o'clock this morning in the rooms of the committee, in the Fuller Building, Jersey City.

Death Won't Stop Hunt for Kin.

The will of Mrs. Wilhelmina Muench was admitted to probate yesterday. It revealed that the testrtrix had been prosecuting a search for over thirty years for three brothers. To each of the missing brothers the woman bequeathed $1,000, and she made the request that the search be continued for them by advertisement. The woman lost track of her relatives soon after she arrived in this country from Germany.

WEDS NEW YORK SURGEON

Miss Alida K. Leese Becomes the Bride of Dr. Seth Milliken.

DR. ZELIE OFFICIATES

Society Folk Witness Nuptial Ceremony at Crescent Avenue Church—Reception at Truell Hall.

First among the social events of the autumn season in local society was the wedding of Miss Alida K. Leese, sister of Mrs. Richard M. Boardman, of Putnam avenue, and Dr. Seth M. Milliken, of New York city, solemnized at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, this afternoon. Rev. John Sheridan Zelie, pastor of the church, officiated. Local society was well represented in the throng of smartly gowned guests who filled the church, and a score came from Portland, Maine, where the bride is well known socially, and New York city, the home of Dr. Milliken, a practising surgeon.

Miss Leese had been but a short time in local society, coming to this city from her former home in Portland, Maine, to reside with her sister, Mrs. Richard M. Boardman. Dr. Milliken is the son of Seth M. Milliken, of New York city. The engagement was announced in this city several months ago.

The church was handsomely decorated with cut flowers and potted plants, green and white predominating in the floral color scheme. The bride was gowned in white Panne satin, trimmed with ivy point applique lace. She wore a veil and carried white roses. Attending her as matrons of honor were her sister, Mrs. Richard M. Boardman, and Mrs. Harold M. Hatch, of New York city, a sister of the groom. They wore Ecru lace gowns and large white hats, and carried pink roses. The best man was Gerrish H. Milliken, of New York city, a brother of the groom. The bride was given away by her brother-in-law, Richard M. Boardman. The groomsmen were Harold Ames Hatch, Dr. Frederick Van Buren, Luther Billings, Captain Seth Milliken, and Dr. James I. Russell, of New York city, and O. P. Metcalf, of Pittsburg.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, many of the guests went to Truell Hall, where a sumptuous wedding collation was served by Deane, of New York. Here bride and groom received and greeted the wedding guests, leaving town late in the afternoon on an extended wedding trip. On their return they will reside in New York city.

WOMAN SERIOUSLY HURT THROUGH HER CURIOSITY

CHICKEN COOP BEING MOVED FELL ON TOP OF HER.

A woman's curiosity, or plain "rubbernecking," as it is generally called, was responsible yesterday afternoon for an accident on Race street, in which Mrs. Mary Polan, of that thoroughfare, was seriously injured. She is now in Muhlenberg Hospital with a broken leg, three broken ribs, a fractured jaw and possible internal injuries, beside numerous severe bruises.

Mrs. Polan, who is a middle-aged woman, noticed some colored men moving a large chicken coop from the yard adjoining her home. She became very much interested in the method they adopted to get the heavy structure on a truck and went nearer to investigate. She was standing within a few feet of the coop when it became unbalanced on some props that held it up and it fell on top of her.

She was pinned down by the weight and it was with some difficulty that the movers lifted it from her. It was thought at first that she had been fatally hurt, and while awaiting the arrival of Dr. Fred Hughes, Rev. Father Miller was called to administer the rites of the church. Mrs. Polan recovered somewhat when the physician treated her temporarily and she was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital in the ambulance.

It was said at the hospital at noon that she resting comfortably and that her chances for recovery are good.

Dr. Savitz's Statement.

Dr. John J. Savitz, superintendent of the Westfield public schools, was appointed superintendent of schools of Union county on Tuesday, and last night he received official notice of his appointment. The appointment was made by the State Board of Education. Dr. Savitz will continue as head of the Westfield public schools, and has declared that if he cannot conscientiously carry on the work of both offices he will resign the county superintendency.

METHODISTS' DIAMOND JUBILEE STARTS TOMORROW

MORE PAY FOR ASSESSOR

Dr. Cooley's Request for $750 a Year Will Be Granted By Borough Farthers.

TO PASS AN ORDINANCE

Start Next Week to Get Sewer Proposition Signers—Claims Amounting to $4,700 Ordered Paid.

A communication from Dr. J. H. Cooley asking that his salary as assessor be increased $150 was the principal item of business considered by the Borough Council at its meeting last night. A move of this sort would necessitate the passing of an ordinance and after a general discussion in which it was the sense that the increase should be granted, the matter was referred to the borough counsel for proper preparation.

Dr. Cooley's compensation at the presen time is $600, the same figure having stood since 1895. At that time the borough ratables were about $2,000,000, while they are now $3,000,000. The increased work in making the assessments is almost double and the salary is far below what is paid by other boroughs in the State.

It was stated at the meeting that the committee recently appointed to secure the necessary number of signatures from property owners, before final steps could be taken to build a sewer system, would begin the work next week. Two-thirds of the property owners must affix their names to the petition calling for sewers before the Council can act.

An echo of the preliminary sewer work came in the payment of claims for the month, amounting in all to $4,700. Herting & Fuller, of New York, who made the preliminary surveys and submitted maps, were paid $1,000 and G. H. Pearson, the consulting engineer, $500. Mr. McGee said that a balance of $2,209 had been reported by the borough collector and as $1,000 had been received since it would not be necessary to borrow any money to meet bills.

A communication was received from property owners asking that crosswalks be laid on Westervelt avenue at Jackson, Fairview and Grandview avenues. Dr. Cooley and E. H. Ackor were among the signers. The matter was referred to the committee on streets and public health.

BOROUGH MAN ARRAIGNED ON SUIT STEALING CHARGE.

Pleaded Guilty and Is Placed in Charge of Probation Officer.

In the Somerville county courts, in Somerville, yesterday, Charles Dilley, of the borough, appeared before Judge Schenck, having pleaded guilty two weeks ago to a charge of stealing a suit of clothes from Charles Bockoven, in Bernards township. Judge Schenck let him go, with the stipulation that he must behave himself in the future and report at various times during the coming year to the probation officer.

There were eight application for naturalization papers, and these were granted to four of the men. The others were laid over, because the applicants could not make intelligible answers to the questions asked.

RUSSIAN PIANIST'S RECITAL.

Manfred Malkin Performs at the Casino.

Manfred Malkin, the famous Russian pianist, who has been engaged as instructor of piano at the Hartridge school, delighted a large and enthusiastic audience at the Casino last night with a choice program. For over an hour he played selections from such well known composers as Mendelssohn, Chopin, Bach, Moszkowski, Weber and Liszt.

Every number was enthusiastically received, and Mr. Malkin was deservedly praised for his fine work, showing that he is a master of the piano. Mr. Malkin, although a young man, won distinction at the French Conservatory, where he studied, and in other well known musical circles.

Mrs. A. E. Finn, of East Ninth street, is detained at home with an attack of the grip.

Mrs. William A. Codington, of East Second street, is quite ill at her home, threatened with typhoid fever.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Commuters on the Lehigh Valley Railroad are "kicking" over the constant delays to the trains, which occur about every other day. Yesterday morning the 6:30 train, which carries the greatest number of commuters, mostly young men who must be at their places of business by 8 o'clock, had two delays before it reached New York, and several of the young men who work up town did not get to their places of business until 9 o'clock. Is it any wonder the towns along this railroad are so slow in building up, and that many leave here in the winter because of the poor train service. The last train out from New York is 6:30, and if by chance a commuter misses this train, he is obliged to be at the expense of remaining in the city all night. There are two trains which pass here later, but the officials will not stop to let a commuter off. Several families have moved away on account of the poor train service—and is it any wonder?

Rev. A. C. T. Attlee will occupy the Baptist pulpit as usual, both morning and evening, tomorrow. Subject for the morning discourse, "A Lamp and a Light;" evening, "An Unjust Steward." Christian Endeavor at 7:30 p. m., at which a consecration meeting will be held.

The residents are greatly elated because they are at last to have communication between here and Plainfield by an automobile line, which will commence running next Monday. This has been a long felt want and there is no doubt but that it will be a success.

The public highways were in total darkness last night, the electric lights being out of commission.

Catholic services as usual in Washington Hall tomorrow morning at 8:30 o'clock.

SOUR MILK CORN CAKE.

Fill a coffee cup two-thirds full of granulated corn meal, heap up cup with white flour, sift with three tablespoons of sugar, scant teaspoon salt, teaspoon cream of tartar, ½ teaspoon of soda. Beat up 1 egg in a bowl and add to it 1½ cups of milk, either sweet or sour. Mix 1 cup of this milk with meal and turn into a hot greased frying pan, and before putting in oven pour in gently on top the remaining ½ cup of milk. Have the oven quite hot.

HOME CURES.

As a medicine salt has a wide range of possibilities. A weak solution of hot salt water used frequently as a gargle is one of the best remedies known for sore throat.

Dry rubbing the chest, back and sides of the body with a handful of mustard and flour (say about one part mustard to two of flour) is a good remedy for a cold on the chest. The mustard draws a little, but not nearly so much as a poultice, while it is a far more agreeable application.

AMUSEMENTS.

At Proctor's theatre in Elizabeth for week of October 7 another strong bill will be presented. The top liners will be the marvelous Fays, wonders of telephath. Mrs. Fay will answer all questions relative to the past, present and future. Others appearing are the Laveen-Cross Company, in Roman sports and pastimes; Fields and Hanson, the well known and popular comedy musical artists; the Surprise Party, a jolly company of boys and girls, in an artistic dancing novelty; Welsh, Mealy and Montrose, in a funny burlesque on our great national game of baseball; Donat Bedini and his acrobats dogs; new motion pictures.

At Proctor's theatre, Newark, for the week of October 7 another gala bill of vaudeville celebrities has been arranged by the management. Among the noted entertainers will be found William Hawtrey and company, in a clever comedy sketch entitled "Compromised;" Winsor McCay, author of "Little Nemo in Slumberland," will show the children and grown-ups how easy it is for him to draw pictures; Gertrude Hoffman and her company of girls will delight all interested in artistic dancing and singing. The Misses Delmore will also be heard in their excellent musical offering; Azra will make his second appearance at this house in his novel exhibition with billiard balls; Macart's monkeys will amuse young and old with their tricks and antics; Robinson, Parquette and Woods will prove themselves capable all around fun makers. Le Claire and Bowen, in comedy acrobats; new motion pictures.

FASHION'S LATEST IDEAS.

There are short sashes shown on many dresses, especially those slightly short-waisted in the back. Other belts are made of inch-and-a-half gold or silver ribbon, weighted with tassels.

A new waist is called Boule, and is very becoming. It is usually of embroidered linen and valenciennes, and shows no visible seam, as the waist and sleeves are put together in one piece.

The most exclusive of the French modistes are narrowing the skirts around the bottom, and, in fact, making them to cling more closely to the figure below the hips than they have been doing. The change is being made almost imperceptibly. By winter, however, it is more than likely they will be in full vogue.

For street wear young girls will wear semi-fitting three-quarter-length coats with plaited and plain skirts. Heavy gloves in tan or gray, hats very simply trimmed, and perky bows are all the adjuncts needed for a correctly gowned schoolgirl.

The tunic skirt, without any pronounced vogue of its own, has been steadily advancing in favor for some time, and the outlook shows a strong possibility of its increase in fashionable costumes for fall and winter. The latest manifestation of it is the long, straight draperies hanging short at the back and long at the front of the skirt—a style that saves the undesirable cut-into effect.

JERSEY POLITICIANS AGAINST ROOSEVELT

OPPOSE HIS ATTITUDE REGARDING "BUSINESS INTERESTS."

Expressions at the Inter-State Fair at Trenton Thursday, where politicians in great numbers gathered from all parts of the State, were heard against President Roosevelt for his attitude toward the important business interests of the country. The radicals among the politicians from the northern part of the State said that at least 10,000 Republicans of Essex and Hudson counties would vote the Democratic ticket this fall.

The last day but one of the annual fair always brings out the politicians. This year they came to see Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., and ex-Justice J. Franklin Fort, the opposing Gubernatorial candidates. It was said that the silence of Katzenbach, the Democratic candidate, on the liquor question was costing him many votes every day. Some of the most conservative among the Democratic leaders, however, were not of this opinion. They said that the Germans would vote for Katzenbach anyway, and therefore it was good politics for Katzenbach to keep quiet on the excise question.

METEORS A SEARCHLIGHT.

Jersey Farmers Thought Flashes Were Bodies Trembling.

For the last two days reports have been coming in to Montclair from farmers and others living within a radius of ten miles of the town of meteors that are seen flashing through the skies. The astral wanderers are pictured in glowing terms. Some of those who have witnessed their flight have even smelled the brimstone that usually goes with tales of meteors. The stories, however, all seemed to have some foundation in fact, and a Montclair amateur scientist, who makes a hobby of astronomy, was almost convinced, after hearing one farmer who lives near Caldwell, describes how the meteor made a roaring sound as it passed in the air high over his barn, terrifying the animals and the poultry so that there was a chorus of mooing and cackling for an afterward.

It developed yesterday, however, that the so-called meteor flights were nothing more than flashes from the big searchlight now being used on the tower of the Madison Square Garden in New York in conjunction with the electrical show.

Tennessee Assurance.

In March, 1796, the sheriffs of the territory which is now Tennessee took a census of their own, and as there were 60,000 citizens of proper age the territory declared itself a State, proceeded to choose a Governor, a Congressman and a Legislature, which selected two United States Senators. Congress, then in session in Philadelphia, had received no information regarding the action in the territory until Congressman and Senators walked in uninvited and announced that a State had been born, had elected its officers, made its laws and was running on schedule time. Congress was disconcerted and notified the applicants that the sheriffs' census was irregular and they must wait at least for an invitation before they proceeded to sit at the Federal table. Upon second thought Congress decided to be courteous, and on June 1 admitted Tennessee, nearly three months after she had become a State by her own action. This State, whose coming into the Union was a little previous, was the third State in the Union to provide a President for the Union and the first outside the original thirteen.

"Shotgun Brigade" for Autoists.

Atlantic City, Oct. 4.—The Board of Freeholders has sanctioned the appointment of five constables to the famous "shotgun brigade" that will hereafter guard county roads from lawless autoists. The duty of the brigade will be to keep watch on automobileists who violate the speed limit. A private telephone line will help the automobile policemen follow the movements of any driver that shows inclination to disregard the speed limit.

First Degree Murder Verdict.

Flemington, Oct. 4.—The jury in the case of Michael Tomasi, accused of the murder of Mrs. Della Congello at Lambertville, on May 20 last, returned a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree yesterday. Tomasi was extremely nervous when brought into the court room, and after the verdict had been announced he was led weeping back to the prison. At the trial Tomasi testified that he killed the woman in self-defense.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

Walter J. Travis was named by the executive committee of the Metropolitan Golf Association at a meeting Thursday to act as captain of the New York team to defend the Lesley Cup in the tri-city match with Boston and Philadelphia at Brookline, Mass., on October 26. Leighton Calkins, secretary of the Metropolitan Golf Association, said yesterday:

"This association has won every leg on the cup, and it is felt that an unusual effort should be made to retain it this year, since it is well known that our local players do not favor the change of conditions requiring foursomes instead of four-ball matches for the afternoon play. The Metropolitan Golf Association acquiesced in the change, however, out of deference to the wishes of the Massachusetts and Philadelphia associations. The executive committee, in appointing Mr. Travis captain, feels that he is the one man preeminently fitted to pick and captain a team capable of retaining the cup under any conditions."

The executive committee also appointed the following nominating committee: Findlay S. Douglas, Apawamis, chairman; W. D. Vanderpool, Morris County, and Howard F. Whitney, Nassau Country Club.

Pairings for the women's national championship golf tournament, which will begin on Monday at the Midlothian Country Club, near Chicago, were announced yesterday. The first couple, Mrs. V. F. Mashels, Midlothian, and Mrs. E. L. De Wolf, Onwentsia Club, will drive off at 10 o'clock. Miss Harriet Curtis, of Boston, the title holder, and Miss Louisa A. Wells, of the Country Club of Brookline, will tee up at 11:10 o'clock, while Miss Frances C. Griscom, of Philadelphia, a former champion, and Miss Maude K. Wetmore, of Newport, will start at 11:35 o'clock.

The far-driving Margaret Curtis, of Essex county, and Mrs. A. T. H. Brower, of Evanston, president of the Women's Western Golf Association, will have the first tee at 12 noon. Mrs. W. Mellowes Morgan, of the Baltusrol Golf Club, and the only entrant from the metropolitan district, is paired with Mrs. Caleb F. Fox, of the Huntington Valley Country Club, Philadelphia. They will start at 10:35 o'clock.

The official entry calls for eighty-three players, one less than the total announced on Tuesday. This is because one of the entries had been made from a club not holding membership in the United States Golf Association. As it is, the 1907 total is eight more than the one received a year ago at Brae Burn.

The Baltusrol Golf Club has issued the program for its two-day open tournament on Friday and Saturday, October 18 and 19. It has been decided to limit the tournament to amateurs whose handicap rating does not exceed nine strokes. There will be an eighteen-hole medal play preliminary round, contestants to qualify in four eights for the President's, Governor's, House Committee and Secretary's cups. Entries will close with Louis Keller, the secretary, at 6 p. m., Wednesday, October 16, at No. 29 Broadway.

TENNIS.

The tennis faction of the Plainfield Country Club has arranged for two matches to be played on the local courts. The first one will be with a team from the Trenton Country Club on Saturday, October 12, and on Thursday, October 17, another match will be played with the team from the Elizabeth Town and Country Club.

On the courts of the Orange Lawn Tennis Club, beginning Tuesday, will be held the tournament for women's singles and doubles and mixed doubles. Plainfield will be represented in the play.

Weather permitting the tennis tournament for the championship of the Park Club will be continued on the club courts today.

Animal Oddities.

A New Contrivance.

Something new in the way of a corn splitter is handy for the housewife when making corn fritters, puddings, etc. The little contrivance has sharp knives on each side of a small scoop. The knives cut or score the grains, while the little scoop pushes, leaving husks on the cob.

A WOMAN'S BACK.

The Aches and Pains Will Disappear if the Advice of This Plainfield Citizen Is Followed.

A woman's back has many aches anr pains.

Most times 'tis the kidneys' fault.

Backache is really kidney ache;

That's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure it.

Many Plainfield women know this.

Read what one has to say about it:

Mrs. K. C. Philpott, of 126 Plainfield avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Two years ago I suffered with rheumatism and also a severe backache or pain in the loins. I suppose it was all caused by an excess of uric acid in the blood, but at any rate, the medicines I was taking did not stop the pains. I therefore resorted to Doan's Kidney Pills, and I must say, in gratitude, that they gave me complete relief from my rheumatism and backache. I had no occasion to use any medicine for my kidneys since that time, until July, 1905, when I had not been feeling just right, and had been suffering sharp twinges of pain in my back. My daughter got me a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at Randolph's pharmacy, and on using them they relieved me as before. I have often recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to people suffering from backache and rheumatism, and I shall continue to do so."

Max Figman in "The Man On the Box" is the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre this afternoon and tonight.

The Donna Seymour Company's offering of the musical spectacular production, "Mr. Blue Beard," which will be presented in this city next Monday night, is easily classed among the few theatrical attractions that have earned important money the past season, when so many attractions have not prospered. The comedy possesses the attributes that go to make an entertainment popular with all classes of patrons. "Mr. Blue Beard" is bright, snappy and fast, and the fun and music are of kind that make the public sit up and take notice. No production of recent years has attained such immense popularity, and it is the only one among the few really brilliant comedy successes in the field of light entertainment to receive unanimous approbation of press and public. If genuine novelty of plot, ingenuity or treatment together with an acting, singing and dancing company of the best known theatrical favorites count for anything in the make-up of a successful comedy production, no wonder "Mr. Blue Beard" has been so successful.

The production of "The Woman in the Case," in which Helen Grantly will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre, October 8, is one instance at least where our playgoers have not had to wait a year or more to see a play after it has run its course in New York, for this play comes direct from the Herald Square theatre, where it enjoyed a brilliant engagement of four months. "The Woman in the Case" is conceded on all sides to be the best of the many plays which Clyde Fitch has contributed to the American stage. It is, as are all of Mr. Fitch's plays, replete with pungent and witty dialogue, but in addition it has a very interesting story, and possesses more dramatic suspense than any of his previous efforts. In other words it is one of those "popular" plays which managers and public alike are always looking for but seldom find. In the character of Margaret Rolfe, Miss Grantly is seen as an up-to-date refined cultured American woman which her youth, beauty and charming speaking voice make the more attractive. In the third act which has created so much talk as to almost become famous, an opportunity is supplied which demands much of that potent virility, which Miss Grantly possesses perhaps more than almost any other actress now before the public.

The Messrs. Shubert will present Dave Lewis and a big company in the musical absurdity, "About Town," which ran for six months at Lew Fields' Herald Square theatre, New York, at the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday night. A company, consisting of nearly seventy persons, together with the full production seen in New York, will be brought here. Mr. Lewis is surrounded with many well known farceurs and light musical entertainers, such as Charles Prince, Dick Temple, Best Western, Nellie Minto, Albertina Benson, Kathryn Miley, and a dozen other principals, with threescore of singing and dancing girls, all of whom were trained by Julian Mitchell. "About Town" makes no pretensions at coherency of plot. It is what its makers term it—a musical absurdity, witty dialogue, tuneful music and novel comedy situations. It is a bright vaudeville entertainment without vulgarity. Mr. Lewis, who is one of this country's foremost low comedians, is seen as a nighthawk cabman, who masquerades as a German baron, and also organizes a bridge whist club. These bits of nonsense are said to give Mr. Lewis a wide range for the display of his delicious sense of humor. All the other principals are happily cast.

VEGETABLES AS MEDICINE.

Watercress is an excellent blood purifier.

Tomatoes are good for a torpid liver, but should be avoided by gouty people.

Lettuce has a soothing effect on the nerves and is excellent for sufferers from insomnia. It also acts as a sedative upon the human frame owing to the opium it contains.

Celery is a nerve tonic; so are onions.

Spinach has great aperient qualities, and is far better than medicine for sufferers from constipation.

Beets are fattening and good for people who want to put on flesh; so are potatoes.

Asparagus stimulates the kidneys.

Bananas are beneficial to sufferers from chest complaints.

Cranberries are stringent and correct the liver when it is suffering from inaction caused by overeating.

Cabbage is good for pulmonary complaints.

Dates are exceedingly nourishing, and also prevent constipation.

RICE AND TOMATOES.

First cook the tomatoes in a granite stew pan in which there is enough butter to season. When done add one cup of cooked rice and season with salt and pepper. When hot mix with one cup of cream and serve at once. To avoid cream from curdling when used with tomatoes, it is advisable to first heat the cream in a double boiler.

EXEMPTS TO CELEBRATE

Plainfield's Old Volunteer Firemen to Observe 20th Anniversary Monday.

AT A BIG BANQUET

Association Formed July 25, 1887, With Alexander Titsworth as the First President.

Elaborate arrangements are being made for the twentieth anniversary celebration of the Exempt Firemen's Association, to be held Monday night in the rooms in the Coward Building on Park avenue. Following the meeting at the rooms an adjournment will be taken to Cleveley's restaurant on North avenue, where a banquet will be served.

The Plainfield Exempt Firemen's Association was organized on July 25, 1887, but inasmuch as the anniversary date occurs in mid-summer it was decided to postpone the celebration until the fall of the year, when all the members are at home and the weather is more seasonable. The association started with sixty charter members, of whom nineteen are now living. The present membership is about seventy, but when the paid fire department was inaugurated here the means of increasing the membership of the exempt association was shut off. Now it is slowly decreasing as the members pass away.

Alexander Titsworth was the first president of the association. The first meeting was held in Alert Hose Company house on Madison avenue, in response to a call issued by Augustus Saltzman, who was at that time chief of the volunteer fire department. The idea was received with general approbation and the association launched under favorable auspices. After that meetings were held in the various engines houses and finally the present rooms were engaged in the Coward Building and which have since been known as Exempt Firemen's Hall.

During its twenty years of existence the association has accumulated many valuable relics, including fire trumphets, pictures, fire hats worn by prominent firemen. The pictures includes those of well known fire fighters from various parts of the country and those who were leaders in the old volunteer department. A number of other interesting and valuable reminders of the olden days are to be found in the association hall. At the meeting Monday night, G. Thorn, who has been secretary of the association for a great many years, will give a historical sketch recalling incidents of the early days.

Soon after the local organization was formed, steps were taken to start a State Exempt Firemen's Association, and it was largely through the efforts of the local branch that the State body has been so successful. V. W. Nash, Sr., is now president of the association and he will preside at the anniversary meeting.

ADVERTISEMENTS IN LIFE TO BE SEEN AT TRINITY

NOVEL ENTERTAINMENT TO BE GIVEN NEXT MONTH.

The Young Women's Mission Band of Trinity Reformed church held its first fall meeting yesterday afternoon, when the work for the coming season was taken up with much enthusiasm. Miss Mabel Wilson, as president, was in the chair, and there was a goodly attendance of members.

An interesting letter was read from Mrs. Caroline O. Hoover, who is in charge of the Reformed church mission station at Gray Hawk, Ky., acknowledging the receipt of a barrel of clothing and another of literature. She explained that at the station there is a trading house, where the natives exchange foodstuffs, etc., for clothing and other articles that they may need. Practically everything sent by the band, she said, had been exchanged.

The members decided to send a Christmas box to the mission station at Haarlem, Holland, Michigan, and work will be started on that at once. Plans were also discussed for the entertainment the band will give about November 12 or 14. It will be a unique affair. In connection with a sale there will be an entertainment called, "Advertisements Come to Life." The members returned thirty-one articles of clothing, the result of the summer work, and these will be sent to the Arabian mission.

The Woodhull & Martin Store.

Demonstration of the Ackroyd Gas Heater.

Manufactured by the Ackroyd True Radiator Co., Plainfield, N. J.

FLOYD T. WOODHULL, President.

E. C. MARTIN, Treasurer.

Mr. John K. Ackroyd, the inventor of this wonderful heater, will be at our store all day Saturday to demonstrate the advantages of his heater. This heater will deliver five times as much heat from the cylinder side walls as is delivered from the side walls of other heaters burning the same amount of gas, which means that the bulk of the heat produced is radiated laterally in an outward direction near the floor, where the heat is needed, instead of ascending directly to the ceiling, as in other heaters. They are also economical in gas consumption, costing from ½ cent to 2½ cents an hour, according to the amount of heat desired. Another point that we wish to emphasize and that is that they are sold under a positive guarantee not to smell. Made in one size only, sold at $2.50, and can be purchased in this city only at our store. Don't fail to come in on Saturday and see them in operation.

FR. BOGAN TO SPEAK AT CONVENTION OF C.Y.M.N.U.

THIRTY-THIRD ANNUAL SESSION OPENS AT ELIZABETH, TUESDAY.

The thirty-third annual convention of the Catholic Young Men's National Union will be held in Elizabeth Tuesday and Wednesday next, and the Plainfield delegates are preparing to take part in the event. Aside from the usual convention business, there will be numerous addresses by prominent clergymen and members of the laity. Rev. Father Bernard Bogan, of St. Mary's church, will be one of the speakers.

On the opening day the delegates will assemble in the Young Men's Lyceum, and thence march in a body to St. Patrick's church, where a solemn high pontifical mass will be offered by Bishop John J. O'Connor. An address of welcome will be delivered by the Rev. Edward F. Quirk, of St. Joseph's church, Newark.

At the conclusion of the church services the delegates will return to the Lyceum, where Mayor P. J. Ryan, of Elizabeth, will welcome the members of the convention to that city. The close of the morning session will end with an address by the Rev. T. J. Leonard, president of the national union.

The convention will close with a banquet, at which the Rev. Justin W. Corcoran, of Newark, will act as toastmaster. Toasts will be responded to by the following persons:

Rev. Bernard M. Bogan, of Plainfield, "An Organization's Need of Principles;" Rudolph A. Braun, "Confidence;" Martin J. Conboy, "The Need of Catholic Newspapers and Periodicals;" Judge Thomas L. Raymond, "The Untilled Fields;" Charles M. Mason, "The Young Man in Politics." Mayor Haussling, of Newark, and Mayor Ryan, of Elizabeth, will also speak.

G.O.P. NAMES TICKET

In nominating a candidate for sheriff, Dr. F. L. Field presented the name of Robert Kay, of Bernards Township, and it was seconded by Bridgewater. The name of Charles P. Sebring was presented, but he withdrew from the race. He thanked his friends for mentioning his name, but added that owing to many business duties he would be unable to accept the honor. The nomination of Mr. Kay was then made unanimous. It was conceded that Mr. Sebring had considerable strength in the convention.

Joseph Herberman, of Warren, and Dr. M. C. Smalley, of Gladstone, received the unanimous nomination as candidates for coroners. After the nominations were completed, Dr. F. L. Field and A. B. Gibb were appointed a committee to bring the candidates before the convention. This was done and they acknowledged the honors conferred. Adjournment was taken for dinner and when the convention reconvened at 1 o'clock there were speeches by Senator Thomas J. Hillery, Congressman Ira W. Wood and the candidates, as well as others prominent in county affairs.

CIVIL SERVICE BILL.

To Be Introduced in the Senate Next Friday.

The civil service bill will be introduced in the State Senate on Friday, the committee having sent it to the printer yesterday after many days of hard work over it. Copies will be sent to the members of the Senate on Monday so that there will be no delay when the measure comes up on Friday. E. R. Ackerman, of Union county, is chairman of the committee.

It is said that the proposed measure embodies the best features of the Colby bill and the Federal act.

JUBILEE STARTS TOMORROW

diana, that he will surely be present and will take the opportunity to tell the local members of the faith something about the growth of the church in America. Although he is chiefly known as the founder of the Chautauqua System of Education, his chief work has been that of an organizer and it is said that much of the prosperity of the communion is due to his efforts. The evening sermon will be preached by Rev. Dr. William F. Anderson, of New York, secretary of the Methodist Episcopal Board of Education.

"The first Methodist service in Plainfield," said Rev. Dr. Whitney, a venerable former pastor of the church, today in talking of the celebration to a Daily Press representative, "was a prayer meeting in the year 1823. Three years later an unsuccessful effort was made to erect a church on Second street, which was then known as Barn street. For a time preaching services were held in John Briant's carriage shop and it was not until 1832 that a church was built. It was erected on the site of the present fine edifice in Front street, through the efforts of Rev. George F. Brown. There were only seventeen in the little band but by 1847 the fold had increased to ninety. During the pastorate of Rev. J. O. Rogers a new house of worship was erected at a cost of $15,000. The brave trustees were John Briant, P. M. French, D. Coddington, J. Harris, E. W. Briant. That building was supposed to be the handsomest Methodist church building in New Jersey and it was a fine one for those days.

"In 1865," continued Dr. Whitney, "with Rev. A. M. Palmer as pastor, the debt of $6,000 was subscribed and during my own pastorate in 1866, '67 and '68 the debt was paid in full and $1,500 additional was paid for improvements. Rev. William Day, who followed me, made still further improvements at a cost of $2,000. But, sad to relate, on 'Opening Day,' December 25, 1868, early in the morning the edifice was swept away by fire. It was immediately rebuilt, however, on an improved plan at a cost of some $30,000.

"An early and notable accession to the church was Mr. Ephraim W. Briant, who became known in the Conference between 1833 and 1865 as Plainfield's 'Splendid Sunday-school Superintendent.' His place was filled by another worthy man, James W. Jackson, who from 1867 until 1900 made the Sunday-school famous in the denomination.

"Rev. J. R. Bryan was the pastor from 1871 until 1874, when he was succeeded by Rev. Dr. Jesse L. Hurlbut, who stayed for three years. He was followed by Rev. William Day for a like term of service and then came T. H. Stockton, who in turn was followed after three years' service by Rev. Dr. A. H. Tuttle. Rev. J. B. VanMeter took charge in 1886 and in the following year the commodious chapel for Sunday-school sessions, lectures and entertainments was built. Rev. Dr. J. H. Vincent suggested its erection and for him it was named 'Vincent chapel.' The building cost $17,000.

"In 1887 measures were initiated for the spread of Methodism and suitable lots were purchased in Park place and at Monroe avenue. Edifices were erected and Sunday-schools organized without much delay. After three years of nominal connection with the mother church, the Monroe Avenue church effected an independent organization in December, 1896. Later the Grace M. E. church in Park place became an independent organization. Rev. C. B. Mitchell was pastor of the mother church until 1892, when he was succeeded by Rev. C. R. Barnes. Four years later, Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, now of Perth Amboy, became pastor. Under the 'no time limit' law of the denomination he continued in charge for eight years. Many improvements were made while he was here. The present pastor, Rev. Abel C. McCrea, followed him and under his administration there has been a notable increase both in the size of the congregation and the general prosperity. Mr. McCrea introduced the surplice choir and made other innovations that have been welcomed by our people."

The officers of the church are these:

Bishop—Rev. Daniel A. Goodsell, LL. D.; presiding elder—Rev. Dr. Daniel Halleron, of Newark; pastor—Rev. Abel C. McCrea; pastor-emeritus—Rev. Dr. George H. WHERE WATER IS COSTLY.

Little of the Precious Fluid Is Wasted in Death Valley.

The nearest water supply of which Death valley camp could even occasionally avail itself was at Ash Meadows, nearly 40 miles away, on the Twenty-mule trail between Johnny and Death valley, writes David Brandon in The World To-Day. Kelly's well, previously mentioned, provided better water, but it had to be hauled farther, much of the way up a heavy grade, and the tremendous daily strain on that oasis by the desert mule skinners, freighters, left little to spare. Water had to be hauled into camp in barrels, therefore, on six, eight, ten and twelve-team wagons, and the supply on hand was always woefully inadequate. At best, water cost ten dollars a barrel, generally $15; often the price was one dollar for half a gallon, and by no means infrequently a glassful required $50 cents. A "body snatcher," as the citizen of Death valley is called, we were told, makes a basin of water go far. Part of it fills the coffee pot; the remainder, face and hands having been washed in it several times, suffices for the small laundry necessities and is then given to the burro to drink.

DIET THAT VARIES LITTLE.

German Workmen Take Many "Snacks" During the Day.

I was told at 8:30 it was time for luncheon, writes an American tinsmith working in Leipzig. On stating that I did not care to eat, he told me that it would be better if I did no work, so I sat down for half an hour and watched the others. At noon we had an hour and a half, and at four o'clock 15 minutes for lunch. It may be of interest to some readers to know what the German eats. For his first breakfast he generally has a milk roll and a cup of coffee. The second breakfast is almost always a slice of bread with lard or goose oil, a piece of sausage or cheese and a bottle of beer. For dinner he has two slices of bread as above, with a herring or large green pickle, cheese or sausage and another bottle of beer. For lunch another bottle of beer and a milk roll. For supper soup and potatoes. This is the general variety of foods we had for the four months I worked in that shop, and they had it day in and day out.

Value of Science.

Science for science's sake, science as a cult, pleads Prof. Raphael Meldola, president of the Chemical Society of Great Britain. Scientific research is worthy of national homage whether it leads to immediately practical results or not. Any country which limits its appreciation of research to such branches of science as are likely to lead to industrial developments is low in the scale of civilization. The works of the litterateur or artist appeal directly to the public and can be appreciated according to their merits. Not so the labors of the scientific investigator. His achievements are measured largely by the utilitarian standard, and certainly cannot be said to occupy the same position as sister branches of culture. Prof. Meldola has no desire to give countenance to antagonism between pure and applied science. Far from this being the case the rate of progress is actually measurable by the degree of substitution of pure science for empiricism.

"Black Eyes Painted."

The sign, "Black Eyes Painted," still survives in the New York Tenderloin, where the patrons are, however, growing fewer every year. A few years ago it was no uncommon thing for a frequenter of that somewhat enlivened locality to awaken in the morning somewhat disfigured. In that case, if the victim happened to be a man of business or the employe of a business establishment, he had no recourse but to the black-eye "artist," who disguised as best he could the sinister evidences of the night's indulgence, excess and consequent combativeness. Sometimes patrons of the artist were men high in financial or social life, whose rare outbreaks scarcely entitled them to be considered dissipated. But whoever they were they received the best treatment the man with the brush and paint pot afforded.

Manila Rope.

A Manila rope, properly laid and lubricated, is as strong, weight for weight, as steel; that is, a steel rod weighs about eight times as much as a manila rope of the same diameter, and has about eight times the strength, the strengths being proportioned to the weights. When used for transmission purposes it has been found that a manila rope one inch in diameter is equal to a double leather belt two five-eights inches in width, so that three such ropes are very nearly equal to an eight-inch double belt. A two-inch rope, says Cassier's Magazine, will transmit as much power as a ten-inch leather belt, while the loss from stiffness and creep are estimated as only about one-half with the rope what they are with the belt.

Proof.

"Is he intelligent and well informed?" "Is he? Why, he's been summoned as a talesman a dozen times and never got on a jury yet."

Nothing Extra.

"See here, waiter, I don't find coffee on this bill of fare. Is it extra?" "No, sir. Between you and me, sir, it's pretty punk."

JUDGED BY THEIR CATS.

Irish Maid's Unique Way of Estimating Employers' Character.

"No, ma'am," said an Irish maid of much experience as she returned to a New York intelligence office the other day. "I didn't engage with that family. I didn't like the looks of their cat." "Of their cat!" repeated the owner of the office in amazement. "Why, Katie, I'm sure they wouldn't keep a cat that was in any way dangerous." "Not dangerous, no, mia'am, but a restless, unhappy looking creature that didn't speak well for the family," replied the girl. "I always judge a family by their cat. A sleek, comfortable pussy who comes up and rubs against you means a quiet, good-natured family, and one that's not worrying about ways and means; but a nervous, unfriendly looking cat reflects a household which is on the verge of nervous prostration or financial ruin or some other horrible trouble. I've been living with families and studying their cats for 25 years, and I've never known the sign to fail. A family that can't make its cat happy is one to make any servant miserable."

YELLS WERE HARD TO MASTER.

College Man Tells of Trouble He Had with Students.

"I can sympathize with that Dr. Stealer, who taught the Harvard college yell to 200 students of the Berlin university," said an old college man. "To train the students of one college in the yell of a rival institution of learning is no easy job. I once undertook to educate a band of youngsters in the different college yells, so in case they were ever required to give a complimentary greeting to instructors from other colleges, they would be equal to the occasion. I never worked so hard in my life. Either the boys were physically unable to twist their tongues around strange war cries or loyalty to their own school held them back; anyway, it required a tremendous amount of hammering to bring them to the point where a visiting professor would recognize his own yell when he heard it. That is why I sympathize with Dr. Stealer. Having to train students in a yell in a foreign language must have been an especially hard task."

When News Traveled Slowly.

All of us have heard legends of the rapidity with which news traveled before the era of telegraphs by means which have been compared to the apple thrown from hand to hand. An event in the Napoleonic epopee clearly illustrates how far we have progressed in this respect during the last hundred years. On June 14, 1807, the meteoric emperor defeated the Russians on the bloody field of Friedland, capturing 166,000 prisoners. Only about midnight on Saturday, June 27, did a courier reach St. Cloud to convey the news to Josephine, whose feminine mind did not penetrate the figurative significance of the "166,000 fusils," and Paris only learned the news on the afternoon of the 28th, when it lost no time in throwing itself into raptures. They danced all night through in the streets.

Studies of Juvenile Criminals.

Arthur MacDonald of Washington describes in the Medical Record three sorts of studies entered into by him of juvenile criminals. The first is physical defects of 65 young criminals. Some of these defects are normal in lower races and in animals. The most frequent taints are hereditary nervous diseases, 95 per cent.; lung diseases, 64 per cent.; alcoholism, 62 per cent.; insanity, 47 per cent.; epilepsy, 32 per cent.; mental backwardness, 20 per cent. Next comes a study of 200 children from 6 to 12 years of age in a reformatory. Few of the parents were criminals. Many of the children were abandoned. Last is given the history of a criminal born child. This child was always unmanageable, and had many physical defects.

Cause of the Din.

All of a sudden there was a terrible uproar. The sounds appeared to issue from the windows of a flat on the East side. Nobody could tell which flat. Windows of all the other flats were thrown up and heads thrust out. "What is it?" was cried in a chorus. "A fire! A murder! A Black Hand gang broke loose, or another Armenian?" Then all the windows went down slam again and everybody got angry. It was only the brother of Ivanovitchskipog in the flat on the fourth floor who had just arrived on the Hanswilliamsigroffen and was being welcomed by the family.—N. Y. Press.

Ruskin's Bitter Criticism.

We are always in these days endeavoring to separate intellect and manual labor; we want one man to be always thinking, and another to be always working, and we call one a gentleman and the other an operative; whereas the workman ought often to be thinking and the thinker often to be working, and both should be gentlemen in the best sense. As it is, we make both ungentle, the one envying, the other despising his brother; and the mass of society is made up of morbid thinkers and miserable workers!"—John Ruskin.

Quite So.

"These fellers that 'xpect to ketch the farmer vote pitchin' hay hev got the wrong idee." "How's that, Jabez?" "A real farmer spends his time pitchin' horseshoes."

STORIES OF THE SECRET SERVICE

BY CAPTAIN PATRICK D. TYRRELL.

STORY No. 4

The Biebush Band

Being an Account of the Capture and Conviction of That Notorious Band of Counterfeiters of Which Fred Biebush Was the Leader.

By CAPTAIN PATRICK D. TYRRELL

From the Barnes residence, after securing Sullivan, we went to Bosse's. At no time had we ever had any evidence that Bosse was implicated in any way other than having guilty knowledge of what was going on in his saloon, and by allowing the counterfeiters to rendezvous there. When we arrived he was partly undressed, counting the proceeds of the day's business. We gave him a chance to dress himself before we took him away, but no counterfeit money was found on the premises. It was 3:30 in the morning when we disposed of Bosse. The night's work had been hard, and I decided that we had earned some sleep. Thielen was arrested the next day.

It will be recalled that Whalen and Woods, after being cornered by the authorities, had consented to aid the government in its efforts to put a finish to the career of Biebush and his principal assistants. It was arranged that these men should be arrested and then formally turn state's evidence, thereby securing leniency in their own cases. They were picked up by Deputy United States Marshal Soest and myself the day after the arrest of Biebush, in an alley near Thirteenth and Olive streets, and were locked up. Early the same day, also, we raided the home and workshop of Hargate, the die-cutter, arresting him and securing a quantity of dies for the manufacture of counterfeit money. I had intended to use him as a state's witness, as he told me he had made dies for Biebush within a period which would make him liable at the time of his arrest. In this statement he was undoubtedly telling the truth, but in some way he got into communication with Biebush, and when the cases came up for trial we found Hargate had suddenly suffered from a lapse of memory in telling the first story. He said he made the dies at a time so far in the past that the offense was outlawed, and by this trick, originated by Biebush, the Englishman nearly escaped. He was in ill health, and was given a light sentence on that account. He was not an engraver of the first class, and I believe never made any more trouble for the government.

"Old Fred," realizing that he had come to his last ditch, retained the ablest criminal lawyers he could find—Judge Simmons and ex-Gov. Fletcher. Writs of habeas corpus had been sued out for "Hoosier Bill" and John Mitchell, and they were brought to St. Louis to testify against Biebush. The latter's attorneys immediately raised the point that these two were prohibited from testifying under the Missouri law, and a three days' argument on this point followed. The judge finally decided, however, that their testimony should be admitted, and I believe this case stands out as the first in that state in which convicts' testimony was admitted.

All that money and the best legal talent could do failed to break down our case, and "Old Fred" was sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary. The government law fixes a maximum penalty of 15 years' imprisonment for counterfeiting currency and ten years for counterfeiting metal money. Sullivan was sentenced to two years. Rev. Andrew Jackson Thomas' ministerial career was brought to a sudden close by his being sent to the penitentiary for five years. "Hankey" Thielen's sentence was one year.

Mrs. Thomas was sentenced to serve four months in jail. Technically, her offense merited greater punishment, for she had passed counterfeit money at times without the knowledge of her husband. Had her offense consisted merely in aiding her husband and working at all times with him, she would not have been punished at all, for supreme court decisions protect women who commit crimes at the instance and in the company of their husbands. Harry Woods was released as a reward for the work he had done for the government, although he was kept in prison until the time of trial.

Whalen had secretly married two months before his arrest, and, although his position was the same as that of Woods, his imprisonment resulted in his going insane, and he was taken to an asylum.

So far as I know no member of the Biebush band "settled" at that time ever appeared again in the criminal history of the country.

STORY No. 5 WILL BE "THE BOSCOBEL KONIACKERS."

STORY No. 5

The Boscobel Koniackers

Being an Account of the Capture and Conviction of the Band of Counterfeiters Operating in Wisconsin in 1878.

[Copyright, 1905, by Marion G. Scheitlin.]

It was one day in the early spring of the year 1878 that a young man signing the application form as "George C. King, No. 873 West Adams street, Chicago, Ill.," appeared at the money order window of the Chicago post office and asked for two money orders aggregating $75 in amount, payable to A. J. Williams, of Canandaigua, N. Y. With the application he handed the clerk a $100 note. The clerk made out the orders, gave them and $25 to the applicant and the latter disappeared. The same day, in counting the cash received at the money order window, the chief clerk encountered the $100 note and became suspicious of its genuineness. It purported to be a note of the issue of the Revere national bank, of Boston.

Being notified that such a note had been received at the post office, I immediately made an examination of it and pronounced it a counterfeit. I then took possession of the note and submitted it to Fred M. Blount, who was then cashier in the United States subtreasury in Chicago, asking him to place the government "counterfeit" stamp on it. This he refused to do on the ground that the note, in his opinion, was genuine. I pointed out many discrepancies between the note in hand and one known to be genuine, but Blount claimed he had frequently noticed discrepancies as great between two genuine notes of the same issue.

On his refusal to stamp the note I took it to Thomas P. Tallman, cashier of the Traders' national bank, whom I considered the most reliable expert in such matters in any of the city banks. Mr. Tallman spent two hours making a minute examination of the note, and at the end of that time concurred in my original opinion that the note was counterfeit. Having been thoroughly satisfied in my own mind from the beginning the note was spurious, I deemed it important to trace it. From the post office records the name and address given by the passer of the note were secured, and these were found to be correct.

King was not at home when I called at his house, but from his wife I learned he had received a $100 bill from A. J. Williams, a friend of her husband's in Canandaigua, N. Y. The passing of the bill had been noted in my daily report to Chief Brooks in Washington, and as soon as I learned that the note had been received from the same man to whom the money orders purchased with it had been sent, I suggested that the eastern division of the secret service take up the New York end of the chain.

The following day I arrested King at the La Salle street offices in which he was employed and found in his possession a letter from his Canandaigua friend. The letter itself was an innocent, friendly missive, but in the envelope was a separate note instructing King to buy the money orders, keep $25 for himself and to "keep his own counsel." In my mind there was no reasonable doubt that Williams, who was a jeweler, and King at least had guilty knowledge that the note in question was counterfeit.

In glancing back over a long line of records for the years 1878 and 1879, I select the foregoing incident as the first thread the secret service picked up in the skein of events which afterward connected east and west in a gigantic "koniacking" swindle that reached into the United States treasury building itself; and I set it forth here merely on account of what it suggested rather than on account of its intrinsic importance.

At the present day, when the counterfeiting of the nation's money is rapidly passing into the category of lost arts, the younger generation will wonder at the extent of counterfeiting a third of a century ago as indicated by the narratives I have told and the one I am about to relate. And if there be any wonder on this score there will be greater when I say that Nelson Driggs, Ben Boyd, Fred Biebush, "Pete" McCartney and a score of others already mentioned were members of the western contingent only, while in the east was a corresponding number just as skilled and just as active.

The connections between east and west crossed and interlaced, until they formed a figurative free-masonry of counterfeiting reaching from ocean to ocean and from Canada to the gulf. For this condition there was a most obvious explanation. We whose hairs are gray will remember when the necessities of government during the war of the rebellion compelled the issue of hundreds of millions of legal tender of new and various kinds. These issues were made hastily, being demanded by the exigencies of the kaleidoscopic financial situation, and were imperfect to an extent that would now be considered ridiculous.

Much of the new currency issued during the war and the existence of the state banks was not only defective in the engraving, but was printed on paper which could be easily duplicated by a clever chemist. Scrip was in use, and the government product, from the engraver's standpoint, was not of a high character. In short, the large spawn of "koniackers" that did so much unlawfully to inflate the currency of the country from 1850 to 1880 were bred by temptation arising from defective national currency—defective from the artisan's viewpoint.

The eastern and western crowds operated largely each for itself without the help of the other, but the resources of the east were drawn on when the western counterfeiters needed a new plate or material not obtainable in their own halliwick, and the easterners frequently came west for similar accommodations. "Coney" floated in the east was frequently traced to the Mississippi valley or farther west, and some of the most troublesome imitations we ever had to deal with in the west were the handiwork of eastern artisans. With this explanation I will take up another thread in the story of "The Boscobel Koniackers."

Some time before my story opens A. L. Drummond, chief secret service operative in charge of the New York division, had run across plates for the manufacture of scrip which he had traced to the hand of Kale Ellis, a western product, and as desperate a counterfeiter as ever dodged the secret service. Drummond and W. W. Kennoch, another operative, both had been sailors, and, through furnishing information to the revenue officers concerning certain smuggling operations, had been appointed customs officers in New York. From this work they went into the secret service.

"LIE BACK, OR I'LL KILL YOU!"

Woods was then chief of the service and had sent Drummond to Wisconsin to hunt down Ellis, the maker of the scrip plate. Drummond caught up with his man and Ellis fled, with the secret service officer in close pursuit. The counterfeiter ran to the Pecatonica river, plunged in and swam to the other bank. Drummond, seeing his man escaping, fired at him in midstream, one of the bullets clipping away the lobe of Ellis' right ear, making a mark of identification that became known to every man in the secret service.

In his flight Ellis had carried with him the plates from which the scrip was being made, and, knowing he could not be convicted unless the plates were found in his possession, he dropped the package in the river as he swam for his life. With remarkable presence of mind, while bullets from the officer's revolver were clipping the water all around him, Ellis mentally took such accurate bearings of the spot at which he dropped the package that he was able afterward to recover it.

He reached the opposite bank exhausted. Drummond followed him over and searched him, but found him "clean"—that is, without tangible evidence of his guilt in his possession. Aware he could not make a case that would hold in court against Ellis, Drummond let him go, but not until the counterfeiter had delivered this message for the benefit of all of us:

"If any —— —— secret service man ever again tries to take me I'll kill him on sight."

Ellis was known throughout the service as a man of great determination and disregard of consequences when it came to keeping his skin whole, and his sworn threat to Drummond made him a man to be feared unless we took him unawares. I was comparatively young in the service then and very ambitious. I decided that Ellis was in my territory, and as he was a particularly dangerous customer, besides having escaped from one of the best operatives in the department, it would be much to my credit if I captured him, and at the same time would rid the public of a sagacious counterfeiter.

By systematic "piping" and the use of "stool pigeons" I learned in the early part of 1875 that Ellis was one of a band of "coney" men who were running off a big issue of scrip in the town of Boscobel, in the central western part of Wisconsin.

Despite the studied and artful secrecy of the counterfeiters it is true that seldom was a big issue of "coney" floated without the secret service having some intimation of the forthcoming event. The "shoving" of an issue was always preceded by the absolute retirement of the manufacturers and the mysterious activity on the part of the dealers. In other words, the coming event got into the wind, and, while we may have had no definite knowledge whatever, we could scent the approaching issue in cases by keeping in touch with the different men who were always under suspicion. In this case it was learned that Napoleon B. Latta, a wealthy French farmer living 15 miles from Boscobel, had contracted with the Ellis crowd for all the "coney" they could furnish him of a certain standard of excellence. We even got so far into the secrets of the "coney" men as to learn that Latta was to pay 35 cents in genuine money for each dollar of representative currency, which, by the way, was an unusually high price, as the market quotation in those days for a good quality of "coney" was 17 cents on the dollar.

In the spring of 1878, therefore, I went to Boscobel. Registering at the hotel under a false name and from a small town in Missouri, I kept pretty much to myself and out of sight, in order to keep the landlord from becoming inquisitive, as the landlords of hotels in small towns are prone to do, I asked him a number of questions concerning the opportunity for successfully loaning money on farms in the vicinity. These questions had the desired effect of preventing others from asking me questions which I might arouse suspicion by not answering.

In the engraving department of the United States government there is an elaborate system of screens, reflectors and shades by which is obtained the peculiar soft light necessary to the engraving of plates from which currency is printed. By counterfeiters this system must be imitated as closely as limited facilities will permit, and I believe to this day I could pick out any house in which counterfeiting was being carried on in any town of such size as would allow an inspection of all the houses.

Boscobel was not so large but that it was easy to locate the rendezvous of the counterfeiters. As usual it was on the outskirts of the town and its nearest neighbor was 100 yards away. There was but one house beyond it on the street. The house was a two-story frame structure. The peculiar arrangement of the curtains on the second floor told the tale without any other information.

Malcolm Robinson and his wife occupied the house by themselves, according to the belief of the townspeople. The facts were, however, as revealed by investigation, that Robinson and his wife occupied the lower story and Kale Ellis and Franklin J. Brown the upper story. The three men were counterfeiters. Robinson was the "manufacturer" of the Boscobel crowd, Brown being the printer under Robinson's direction. Ellis was the engraver, as I have previously told, but at that particular time he was also aiding in the work of running off the issue for the use of "Nap" Latta.

Brown and Ellis seldom went down stairs, and were never seen by the neighbors, their meals being served them upstairs by Mrs. Robinson. The little exercise they got was taken under cover of the night. The life of the counterfeiter at his busy times is not a bed of roses, by any means, for it requires the utmost concentration and application of effort. The longer the delay in producing an issue the greater danger of discovery, and such a task, once begun, is followed with tremendous diligence until the output is in the hands of the dealer and the genuine coin of the realm safely in the hands of the manufacturers of the "coney."

Do You Realize
that Your Old Square or Upright Piano is Growing Less and Less in Value Every Day.

Naturally you hesitate to spend anything on it for tuning and Repairing; you can use it but very little, if at all, and as time passes on it goes from bad to worse.

Why not put in its place a new, modern instrument that will add to the beauty and happiness of your home?

We will give you a liberal exchange valuation on your old piano. The balance you can pay in payments of from $5 to $10 monthly.

In the purchase price of each instrument we include a stool, scarf or cover, one year's tuning and free delivery to your parlor.

Why not decide to get a new piano now?

"CENTRAL PARK"
Was——Is——Will Be

IT WAS, only about a year ago, just a pretty farm.

IT IS to day the finest building site in Plainfield, with broad avenues macadamized their entire width, concrete curb, sidewalks, trees, gas, electric light, in fact all improvements. Nearly $100,000 expended in new and handsome dwellings, now ready for the market.

WHAT IT WILL BE we hardly dare predict, with contracts out for even more extensive improvements and twelve more handsome residences.

Central Park is that beautifully situated tract bounded by Park, Prospect, Hillside and Thornton Avenues.

PLANNING A DUAL MEET

Congregational Church Athletes Likely to Meet the Champion Baptists.

S. S. A. L. ELECTIONS

Charles W. McCutchen Continues As Head of the Organization—Arranging For Two Indoor Meets.

The Sunday School Athletic League met at the Y. M. C. A. last night and elected officers for the new league year. C. W. McCutchen was re-elected president, J. W. Gavett was continued as vice president and Physical Director Listman as secretary. F. E. Smith was elected treasurer for the first time.

Two new directors were elected—L. H. Gates, of the First Presbyterian church, and Rev. C. L. Goodrich, of the Congregational church. Dr. Norman H. Probasco, of the First Baptist church; G. E. Hall, Park Avenue Baptist church; James R. Joy, First Methodist church, and City Judge William N. Runyon, Park avenue Baptist church, were re-elected.

It was decided that the season had advanced too far for another outdoor meet of the whole league, but a possibility of a dual meet between the Congregational and First Baptist churches developed, and the league placed itself in readiness to sanction the meeting. The Congregational church is anxious for the dual meet, and will probably challenge the Baptist athletes. The latter hold premier place in the league, but the Congregational youngsters have always been strong contenders at the meets, and they feel sure of their ability to lower the Baptist colors in a dual contest. According to the half-formed plans as they stand, the meet, if it is held, will take place on November 2 at the Riding and Driving Club grounds.

Preliminary plans for the next two indoor meets were made. The next meet will be held the first week in December at the Y. M. C. A. The next will be held the last week in March at the same place. This will be the most important meet of the league season, deciding, as it will, the fate of the McCutchen trophy, either for good or for another year. The First Baptist church has one leg on the cup, which must be won twice for clear title to it, and the athletes of that church are keeping themselves in the pink of condition to insure the retention of the trophy.

DR. W. A. MACFARLANE GIVES HIMSELF UP

OCCUPANT OF AUTOMOBILE THAT KILLED MAN RELEASED IN BAIL.

Dr. William A. MacFarlane, a chiropodist, of Newark, who was one of four occupants of an automobile which killed Marcus J. Jacobs, a theatrical manager, a week ago, surrendered himself at noon yesterday to Prosecutor Henry Young in the county courthouse in Newark. He went there with his counsel, Louis Hood. After a consultation his bail was placed at $2,500 on a charge of manslaughter. Dr. MacFarlane immediately put up five $500 bills and was released. The Newark police played no part in the matter.

Dr. MacFarlane, acting on the advice of his counsel, refused to make any statement in regard to his case or as to where he had been since the fatal automobile ride.

Dr. William H. Morris, a dentist, who was driving the automobile at the time of the killing, is under $15,000 bail on the manslaughter charge, and Jacob Scott, a negro chauffeur, who was riding on the rear seat of the machine, has given $500 bail on the same charge.

F. E. Meyers, a Boston salesman, who was also in the automobile, has not been found by the police, nor is it believed that he will surrender himself.

Bar Congratulates Parker.

The Hudson County Bar Association yesterday adopted resolutions at the county courthouse, in Jersey City, congratulating and commending Justice Charles W. Parker, who was recently appointed from the Circuit to the Supreme Court. Warren Dixon, president of the Bar Association, made a congratulatory address to Justice Parker, to which the justice expressed thanks in a brief speech.

Brick Paving Resumed.

The work of laying the pavement on Park avenue was resumed this morning, and by noon the brick line was within a short distance of Second street. A much larger force of men was put on the job and the progress is rapid. The gang includes three setters, and they have been laying an average of 5,000 bricks an hour, a speed that only the most expert can attain.

The Rev. Dr. John Douglas Adams, who resigned the pastorate of the Reformed church on Morningside Heights, has accepted a call to the Munn Avenue Presbyterian church, in East Orange. His decision has been sent from Nethy Bridge, Scotland, where Dr. Adam and his family spent the summer.

BASKETBALL PROSPECTS

Y. M. C. A. Will Have Strong Teams in Two Leagues.

MATERIAL AVAILABLE

Strong Players Enough to Make Possibility of Entirely New First Five—Plainfield Dates In Schedule.

Basketball is beginning to loom large on the athletic horizon at the Y. M. C. A. The two squads, first and second—or minor and major league material, as they are officially termed in the association—will come out for practise next Friday nights.

Prospects for two strong teams are exceptionally bright, although definite information as to who will appear in the lines cannot be given out by Physical Director Listman who will again manage the teams, at this time. He has a number of good men in view and available. In the first team it is probable a completely new line up will develop. The second, or minor, team will probably be made up largely of last year's players, although this is not to be counted upon by the form-writers.

There will be two Northern New Jersey leagues, as last year. The schedules have been prepared. That of the first or major teams has Plainfield booked as follows:

Nov. 30, Plainfield at Orange; Dec. 9, Hudson City at Plainfield; Dec. 14, Plainfield at Rahway; Dec. 30, Ridgewood at Plainfield; Jan. 4, Plainfield at Montclair; Jan. 13, Orange at Plainfield; Jan. 20, Passaic at Plainfield; Jan. 25, Plainfield at Ridgewood; Feb. 1, Plainfield at Passaic; Feb. 3, Rahway at Plainfield; Feb. 8, Plainfield at Hudson City; Feb. 10, Montclair at Plainfield.

Plainfield's minor league dates are as follows:

Nov. 30, Plainfield at Orange; Dec. 9, Hudson City at Plainfield; Dec. 21, Plainfield at Madison; Dec. 30, Madison at Plainfield; Jan. 13, Orange at Plainfield; Jan. 20, Passaic at Plainfield; Feb. 1, Plainfield at Passaic; Feb. 28, Plainfield at Hudson City.

The first lecture of the course will be given Monday afternoon, October 7, at 3:30 o'clock in the Casino on "Picturesque Venice," by Prof. Alexander T. Van Laer, associate of the National Academy of Design, New York. The lecture will be illustrated with stereopticon views. Prof. Van Laer is well known as an artist of great merit and an instructive and entertaining lecturer. He has lectured before the club in past years with amrked success, and both old and new friends will welcome him with pleasure next Monday.

RUTGERS COLLEGE ACCEPTS PLANS FOR FINE BUILDING

$60,000 STRUCTURE WILL BE ERECTED ON NEILSON CAMPUS.

The plans for the new engineering building at Rutgers College have been accepted by the trustees and within a few weeks ground will be broken for its erection. It is to cost $60,000, part of which was donated by Andrew Cargegie. The architects are D. D. Williamson, of New Brunswick, and Messrs. Hill and Stout, of New York city.

The building is to be erected on Neilson campus, a large plot of ground adjacent to the old or Queen's campus, and it will front on Bleecker place.

The design of the proposed building is modelled after the Colonial, to conform with the prevailing style of the college buildings. The main portion is to be three stories high and will have a frontage of 134 feet and a depth of 50 feet. At the rear there will be two wings, one story each in height, which are to be used for the laboratories. The materials used in the construction will be stone for the base, selected brick of two shades for the walls and terra cotta trim. The roof will be of green slate.

DIAMOND JUBILEE BEGUN

Rev. Dr. Whitney Reviews History of First Methodist Episcopal Congregation.

MUSIC IS A FEATURE

At Night, Rev. A. C. McCrea, the Pastor, Preached On "Messages From the Sea."

Observance of the diamond jubilee of the First Methodist Episcopal church to be held by the local church people for the next two weeks began yesterday morning with a historical sermon preached by Rev. George H. Whitney, pastor of the church in 1866, '67 and '68. The service was largely attended, Rev. A. C. McCrea being in charge and conducting the service previous to the sermon. Music was a special feature.

In speaking of the growth of Methodism in this city, Dr. Whitney said that it has consistently strengthened here since 1823, when the first Methodist service, a prayer meeting, was held. The first Methodist church in this city was not erected, however, until 1832, and that building stood on the site of the present church on West Front street. The pastor at that time was Rev. George F. Brown, and the membership of the church was seventeen. As the numbers increased, the church proved inadequate, and some fifteen years later a new $15,000 church was erected, which was considered the finest Methodist church building in the State. This building was destroyed by fire on Christmas Day, 1868, during the pastorate of Rev. William Day, who succeeded Dr. Whitney. The church was immediately rebuilt, at a cost of $30,000, a finer building.

In the course of his sermon, which revealed much historical data in connection with the growth of the church and the place it has held in the religious work in Plainfield since its foundation, Dr. Whitney alluded enthusiastically to the work of several of the pastors who had been in charge of the Methodist flock here. He also spoke of the spread of Methodism here, and of the founding of various independent churches, such as the Monroe Avenue church, organized independently in 1896, and also of Grace M. E. church. He spoke especially of the work done by Rev. W. C. Snodgrass, for eight years pastor of the church, and the present pastor, Rev. A. C. McCrea, under whose administration the surpliced choir and other innovations have been introduced.

A large congregation was present in the evening and listened to an excellent sermon given by Dr. McCrea. His subject was "A Message from the Sea" and was the concluding discourse of a series of three based on his summer trip.

Sunday-school Elects Officers.

These officers were elected at the annual meeting of the Sunday-school of the Congregational church, yesterday: Superintendent, John M. Whiton; associate superintendent, Harold Nomer; secretary, Stacey Reynolds; treasurer, Clarence B. LaRue; librarian, Charles E. Steiner; musical director, Miss Alice Morgan. The reports showed the total membership to be about 235.

Saturday Night Spree.

Edward Vail, who is employed as driver for a local grocery firm, went off on a bibulous carouse Saturday night and was arrested by Chief Marshal Weiss, while trying to pick a fight in a Somerset street restaurant. He was released at headquarters upon the payment of $10 bail until his hearing to night.

Henry L. Nixon.

Henry L. Nixon, colored, employed as coachman by a North Plainfield family, died in Muhlenberg Hospital Saturday night, following an operation. He was 47 years old and quite well known throughout the city. The funeral will be held at the parlors of Runyon & Son tomorrow afternoon at 2:30.

Pugilistic Drunk.

Fred Conklin, of the borough, got pugilistic as a result of too much libation Saturday night and Chief Weiss took him in. He chose a barbershop as the place to win fistic honors. Ten dollars secured his freedom until the hearing to night.

Funeral of Infant.

The funeral of Francis McCabe, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank McCabe, of East Fourth street, was held at the parents' home yesterday afternoon. Rev. Father Delehanty officiated and interment was at St. Mary's cemetery.

Chief Off to Convention.

Chief T. O. Doane, of the local fire department, accompanied by his wife, left this morning for Washington. The chief will attend the international convention of fire chiefs to be held there this week.

HIGHEST PAID ENGRAVER

Former Plainfielder Now the Greatest Expert in Federal Printing Department.

HE GETS $6,000 A YEAR

George F. C. Smillie Considered a Genius—Engraves Portraits for Federal Obligations.

According to the Washington, D.C., Star, George F. C. Smillie, a former well known resident of this city, is considered one of the three men in the United States at the head of the engraving profession. He receives as larlary of $6,000 a year from the government, being attached to the Buerau of Engraving and Printing. His father, who resided at Plainfield avenue and Second street, in the house now occupied by Fred Lougsbury, was also an engraver of note. Mr. Smillie's specialty is portriat engraving and most of the portraits on government note bonds, etc., are ris work

Referring to Mr. Smillie's ability the Star article says: "The salary paid Mr. Smillie calls attention to the fact that there are compartively few expert engravers in the United States, so far as the making of plateb for currency and other government obligations are concerned. In the Bureau of Engraving and Printing there are twently engravers. Their salaries range from $1,000 to $6,000 a year. Mr. Smillie is not the only paid man there. Two other engravers draw $4,000. a year each,and a number draw $3,000.

Mrf. Sullivan, the director of the bureau, says that an engraver is a man of genius and ability. Without genius he would never become an engraver. Apprentices are out of the question unless boys can be found with a decided talent in that direction. This is what makes the great scarcity of certain classes of engravers in the country. Should the twenty men in the government service go out on strike the government would be practically at their mercy, as it is doubtful if their places could be filled."

SEWER COMMISSION ACTIVE.

They Now Seek Signers for Necessary Petition for Undertaking.

At the suggestion of the borough sewer commission, Tax Collector George F. Brown is making an effort to bring the question of North Plainfield sewers before the voters for a special election. His aim is to secure the support of property holders of at least 50 per cent. of the borough property valuation, who shall be in favor of sewers.

If property owners representing such a percentage of borough property valuation can be found favoring sewers, a special election may be held at which time the voters shall decide whether the borough be bonded for sewers or not. The work is necessarily of a personal nature, and therefore slow, but it is believed by the committee that definite results will be reached within a week.

He was graduated from Princeton, class '07, and is a member of the University and other well known clubs.

Y. M. C. A. TEAM'S DINNER

President Gavett and Others Make Speeches at Ball Club's Affair.

LISTMAN TOASTMASTER

Kenneth Robbie, John Kriney and Others Enliven the Banqueters—Menu a Good One.

In honor of its success in the Inter-City Amateur Baseball League, the Y. M. C. A. team was entertained at dinner at the association rooms Saturday night. While the players did not succeed in winning the pennant, Physical Director Listman, who was also manager of the club, decided that in view of the good work of the boys they were entitled to recognition. There were present as invited guests President John Kriney, of the Clinton Avenue baseball club; Jesse Ayers, who was manager of the Dunellen club, which dropped out of the league, and Captain Roberson, of the Laurels, of Bound Brook, besides President J. W. Gavett, of the association and league, and Secretary Kenneth Robbie, of the association, the members of the team and representatives of the local papers.

After an excellent dinner, prepared by members of the women's auxiliary and observed by them, a few speeches were made. Mr. Listman was toastmaster, and after complimenting the team, especially Captain Howard Craig and Ralph Schoonmaker, for their untiring efforts as well as for general work of the team, he announced that plans are under way to continue amateur baseball next season. He stated that it was a success this year and he predicted that possibly outside teams would be invited to join the league another year.

Speaking for the association, Mr. Robbie praised the team for its excellent showing, and while, as he said, he understood little about the game, he joined in wishing the boys all the success possible, and was glad to have them make use of the association benefits.

"Baseball of Other Days" furnished an interesting topic for President Gavett. He recited some of the interesting games of the early days, when he managed the association team, recalling the warmly-contested games on the old La Grande avenue grounds, when Gateley, the deaf mute pitcher, was a star. He also mentioned the fact that he hoped that the time was not far distant when the association would have its own grounds. He believed the people liked amateur baseball and the association the proper agency to furnish it. He also patted the team on the back for its success, which he hoped would be better another year.

John Kriney spoke for the Clinton Avenue team, and he said that his interest would always be found in amateur baseball, and was always willing to help it along. Jesse Ayers made a few remarks, thanking the association for the courtesy extended.

The "joker" of the evening was Patrolman John Payne, the star right fielder of the team. He had a pleasant "knock" for every member of the club, not forgetting to declare that most of the victories were due to his pinch hitting and fast fielding. Captain Howard Craig was also called upon for a few words, and after the speech-making a social half hour was enjoyed. Each member of the team received a photograph of the club recently.

Scott Gets a Warning.

Released in the city court after answering to a charge of drunkenness Saturday morning, Arthur Scott, of the East End, was arrested for the same trouble Saturday night. Judge Runyon gave him a sever hauling over the coals this morning and the prisoner registered a solemn vow that booze and himself would part company. He got off under suspended sentence, but received a solemn warning that another appearance before the court would mean a long term at Elizabeth.

Mechanical Drawing Class.

Warren B. Travell will begin his course in elementary and advanced instruction in mechanical drawing at the Y. M. C. A. tomorrow night. There are twenty in the class, and the instruction will be of a pre-eminently practical nature, with individual instruction as the keynote of the work. Mr. Travell is a graduate of the Renssalaer Polytechnic Institute, with the degree of civil engineer. For the past fifteen years he has had practical experience in draughting and engineering.

Former Mayor Seymour, of Bonne, and Deputy Chief Astley, of the Newark fire department, were guests of Chief T. O. Doane on Saturday. Chief Doane gave his visitors an opportunity to see something of the city, as well as the fire department, and they were much pleased with their trip.

JOE MANHATTAN SAYS THREE COPS WERE RUDE

THEY INSULTED HIM AT "TWENTY MINUTES OF TWELVE."

Joe Manhattan, a local Polak who has a record of encountering more trouble than any other three men in Plainfield, stirred up Police Headquarters this morning by dropping in with a terrible tale of some awful insults that had been handed out to him at twenty minutes to twelve last night.

He declared with numerous wild gesticulations that three policemen shouted at him as he was driving along West Eighth street and that when he treated them with silent contempt they cursed him in three languages. One was English and another Italian, but the third was a new one on him, although he was positive the fellow was saying some frightful things. When Chief Kiely asked Joe for the names of the rude cops, he declared with a wind-mill sweep of his arms:

"Twenty minutes to twelve."

Stumped for the moment the chief went off on another track and asked for a description of anyone of the three.

"Twenty minutes to twelve," yelled Joe again, "West Eighth street and Liberty, twenty minutes to twelve—three men and three languages."

That was about all the information secured except after a moment's reflection the fact that one of the men had a long beard. As none of Chief Kiely's men speak Italian and whiskers are a rarity among the bluecoats Joe's description was considered rather inadequate. He was advised to go out for further details and in the meantime a canvass of the force will be conducted to find the bearded officer and the linguist who were together at twenty minutes to twelve.

PLAINFIELD ELKS EASY FOR SOMERVILLE TEAM.

Senator Frelinghuysen's Nine Wins a Freak Game By a Score of 20 to 9.

The Plainfield Elks were an easy proposition for the Somerville brethren, Saturday afternoon, when teams from the two lodges met at West End Park, Somerville, in a baseball game. Although but seven innings were played, the home team won out by a score of 20 to 9. The contest abounded in freak plays and kept the crowd in good humor.

A downpour of rain stopped hostilities in the seventh inning. There was one accident. Bogert Conklin, of the home team, in trying to knock the cover off the ball, was hit on the nose by the sphere and a broken nasal organ resulted. He was taken to Somerset Hospital.

"Lou" Wiltse, who is a member of the Plainfield Lodge of Elks, appeared in the lineup and James A. Mets, the Republican nominee for surrogate, played first base for Somerville. The Elks enjoyed a banquet after the game, Senator Joseph T. Frelinghuysen being the central figure of attraction in entertaining the guests. The proceeds from the game will be given to Somerset Hospital.

AUTO SMASHES INTO HIM

Brother Nacarins in Hospital, With Broken Arm and Many Bruises.

NEWARKER'S MACHINE

F. A. Wuensch's Car Knocked Down and Ran Over Catholic Brother on Park Avenue Yesterday Afternoon.

Walking along the county road between this city and Metuchen, yesterday afternoon, with a company of twenty boys from St. Joseph's school, Metuchen, Brother Nacarins, one of the teachers, was run over by an automobile owned by F. A. Wuensch, of Springfield avenue, Newark, and driven by a chauffeur. His left arm was broken and he received bruises and contusions over his entire body. The injured man was carried to the home of A. C. Bechstein nearby, where temporary treatment was given. The accident happened outside the city's limits.

The victim refused at first to be taken to Muhlenberg Hospital and at his request was removed to the Church of the Sacred Heart, Metuchen, to which parish he belongs. Upon his arrival there his condition was such that it was thought best to take him to the hospital and this was done. Dr. T. H. Tomlinson was there at the time and he took charge of the man. After an examination it was said that he would probably recover, as the most serious injury seemed to be the fracture of the arm.

Brother Nacarins and the boys from the school were out for their usual Sunday afternoon stroll, and were walking home, when the accident occurred at a point not far from the Gentlemen's Driving Park. The party had just passed a milk wagon, driven by William Knight, of Oak Tree. They were laughing and having a good time and were unmindful of the approaching automobile.

The chauffeur of the machine was also obliged to turn out to pass the milk wagon, and he said that he blew his horn several times. However, in the general confusion of the Sunday travel Brother Nicarins failed to notice the machine until it was too late. In his excitement to avoid a collision he stepped directly in front of the auto and was thrown and run over, the weight of the machine resting particularly on the man's left arm.

With the assistance of the boys and the chauffeur, Brother Nicarins was rescued from beneath the auto and immediately taken to Mr. Bechstein's home. At first it was thought that he was fatally injured. He did not lose consciousness once and directed that he be taken to Metuchen as soon as possible.

Mr. Wuensch, who with a couple of friends, were in the automobile, rendered every assistance. The owner deeply deplored the accident and giving his name to Howard Woolston, who happened to be passing at the time, said that he would bear all expense attendant upon the man's injuries.

HUNT CLUB RIDER HURT

Miss Noe Painfully Injured by Falling from Mount.

CUT IN THE FOREHEAD

Westfield Woman Taken to Hospital, Where Twelve Stitches Are Taken In Her Wound.

During the first chase of the season of the Watchung Hunt Club held Saturday afternoon, there was one accident that for a time marred the pleasure of the riders. Miss Gertrude Noe, of Westfield, mounted on Joseph Gatin's famous hunter and jumper, "Maid-of-all-Work," acted badly as he was about to take a fence at the end of the second check near the school-house at Oak Tree, and took a tumble. Miss Noe was thrown and before she could regain her feet, she received a blow in the forehead from the horse's hind foot.

The blow inflicted a cut which required twelve stitches to close it. Mrs. Paul Taylor Brown, who had been following the riders in her carriage, was close by and she took Miss Noe to the hospital, where the wound was dressed. She was removed to her home in Westfield yesterday.

Miss Noe did not lose consciousness and she was not seriously hurt. The accident was a great surprise for "Maid-of-all-Work" is considered one of the best hunters and jumpers in this part of the country and has never been known to act in that way before.

There were fifteen members of the club who met at the Plainfield Country Club, where the start was made at 2:45 o'clock. The new hounds, used for the first time, worked fine throughout the hunt. A course was followed to Oak Tree, the Lehigh Valley Railroad station, Dog Corners and back to the place of starting, a distance of about seven miles.

Lewis E. Waring, master of the hounds, accompanied the riders, and Christopher Comins and Charles W. Fisk were the whips. Among the riders were Harry A. Bourne, of Westfield; Fred Alpers, of Brooklyn; C. E. S. Bellows, F. C. Wildey, W. H. Wildey, Charles W. Fisk, Harvey Fisk, Miss Gertrude Noe, Lewis E. Waring and Christopher Comins.

The next hunt of the club will be held Wednesday morning, when the riders will meet at the kennels at 6:15 o'clock for a short chase. On Saturday the club will meet at the Driving Park at 2:45 o'clock for another hunt.

CARRIAGE HITS AUTO.

Mrs. A. J. Leader Thown from Automobile In Borough.

Crashed into by a recklessly driven horse and buggy at Watchung avenue and Pearl street, Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Leader, of Duer street, narrowly escaped injury while driving in their automobile, Saturday afternoon. As a result of the collision, Mrs. Leader was thrown headlong over the dashboard, striking on her head. She was temporarily rendered unconscious, but aside from bruises, is suffering only from shock. The owner of the rig did not stop to inquire about the injuries of the auto party, but continued on his way.

The auto, of the high-wheeled "horseless carriage" type, was going at moderate speed toward Watchung avenue when the accident happened. Mr. Leader, seeing the buggy approaching up Watchung avenue, blew his horn in warning, and slowed down. The driver of the rig, which was going at a good clip, cut sharp around the corner, colliding with the auto, which was almost at a standstill. The rear axle of the machine was bent and the dashboard and lamps damaged. An unknown passerby in a runabout kindly offered assistance and drove Mrs. Leader to her home on Duer street.

An Illustration

One of our clients owed $48 between four people. His salary is $14 weekly; rent $12 monthly. To have paid $2 weekly to each creditor, combined with rent, would have left only $3 per week to meet expenses, buy clothing, etc.—an impossibility you will agree. He borrowed $50, paid all his creditors, made his future credit good, if ever needed; pays his rent, the loan payments, and has $9 each week to use as his judgment dictates.

AUTOIST CHARGES CONSPIRACY.

Bloomfield Chief of Police and Policemen Defendants in $15,000 Suit.

Bloomfield, Oct. 7.—Chief of Police Lewis M. Collins and Policemen John Blum and Joseph J. Huddy were served with papers Friday in suits for $15,000 damages. The summonses are returnable on October 10 at Trenton. The action is brought by Frank P. Venable, of Paterson. The suits are the outcome of an arrest made by the officers last Tuesday, when they apprehended Mr. Venable for violating the speed law.

Conspiracy and false arrest are specified in the summonses. This morning Councilman Frank N. Unangst, of the police committee, telephoned to J. B. R. Smith, commissioner of motor vehicles in Trenton, informing him of the action taken by Venable, and asked that the license be cancelled. Mr. Smith assured Mr. Unangst that this would be done.

This is the Square Pot Patented

The Vital Feature of Boynton Furnaces

Nothing short of actual use can convince you fully of the pronounced superiorities of this construction over the old-fashioned round fire pots.

It does away with the clogging of ashes and cinders, because the sides are perpendicular, instead of slanting.

It brings, for the first time in furnace construction, a perfect and rapid combustion, getting more applied heat out of a given amount of fuel than any other fire pot.

It gives you the maximum of radiating surface.

It brings you an ash-pit that is square and roomy, making cleaning easy in extreme.

These are but a few of the many advantages of the patent Square Pot, a feature of Boynton Furnaces and none other. See your plumber, steam fitter or tin-smith about them.

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for steam or hot water. Also ranges.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The big spectacular production, "Mr. Blue Beard," will hold the boards at the New Plainfield theatre this evening. The company numbers fifty comedians, singers and dancers, mostly girls.

"About Town" will come forth with a fine company of funmakers at the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday night. The Messrs. Shubert have engaged Dave Lewis for the leading comedy role, in which he is said to have scored the hit of his career. The other principals include Chas. Prince, Bert Western, Dick Temple, Albertina Benson, Nellie Minto and Kathryn Milley, and there is a company of singing and dancing girls of three score, all of whom are said to be up to the highest Shubert standard of ability and good looks. Julian Mitchell, who staged the production, is famous for his success in getting popular musical numbers, of which the following scored during the six months' run of the piece in Lew Field's Herald Square theatre, New York, "Tom, Dick and Harry," "William Tell," "I Think I Ought'nt Auto," "Dinner Time," "A Little Class of One," "In Amsterdam," "The Same Old Girl," "Fickle Maid," "The Picadilly Crawl" and "Deutschland." The production employs in the neighborhood of seventy persons, and is said to be one of the most elaborate ever sent en tour.

Joseph King's company in "East Lynne" will appear at the New Plainfield next Thursday night. Mr. King produced the "Ninety and Nine," the great rural play that had a six months' run at the Academy of Music in New York, and has given his personal attention to the production of the greatest of all emotional plays, "East Lynne."

Mr. Al Lawrence, the mimic, known in vaudeville as the "Man With a Hundred Faces," has been especially engaged to play Hi Skinner in Grace Cameron's new musical comedy, "Little Dolly Dimples," which comes to the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night. Aside from making "rube fun" as the country boy, Mr. Lawrence will introduce his famous imitations, which have been so successful in vaudeville that some very tempting offers have been made the young man to return to that field of entertainment.

ANSWER FILED IN CHURCH SUIT

Princeton Presbyterian Affirm Right to Sell Cedar Grove Edifice.

Trenton, Oct. 7.—Trustees of the First Presbyterian church, of Princeton, have filed in the Court of Chancery here an answer to the suit brought against themy by the members of the Cedar Grove church to prevent the sale of the latter place of worship on the ground that it has been abandoned for religious purposes.

The First church trustees insist that they have a right to sell the property because it is being neglected in violation of the deed of trust given by the late Paul M. Tulane, who gave the property for union services, which are no longer held.

FOR YOUR HEALTH.

People with greasy skins will find a little borax or ammonia added to the water of the bath excellent to take off the much despised shine.

Moth patches are so frequently a sign of a disordered condition of the blood that it is well to consult a physician as to their treatment.

Nothing makes a face so insipid as too scanty eyebrows. The growth may be thickened by rubbing into them once a day some red vaseline. The white has been so refined that it has less strength. Be careful in making any application to the eyebrows not to rub the hair the wrong way, as in a short time they cannot be made to lie flat. They may quite easily be trained into a narrow, graceful line by drawing the first finger and thumb along them from the nose out.

Bad teeth are not only disfiguring, but a positive menace to the health. Many a woman considers herself a chronic sufferer from neuralgia when all she needs is a visit to a good dentist.

However economical one must be in bringing up one's children never stint on the care of the teeth. The most beautiful face will be spoiled by ugly, ill-shaped teeth, while the peace of a whole family is equally ruined by a child crying all night with toothache that a little care would have prevented.

Boys especially are so apt to be careless about their teeth that it is well to bribe them into good habits in this respect. Offer a small prize or an increased allowance to the child who has not neglected to brush his teeth after each meal and before retiring during one day in the seven. It will be found much more effectual than scolding or punishing.

SEEN AT VANITY FAIR.

A reseda cloth costume, the coat and skirt trimmed with inset tucks of satin, shown on the wide sleeves, back portion of the jacket and around the hem of the dress.

A blue street gown trimmed with blue braid in military effect across the front and from the hips to the bottom of the three-quarter length coat. The plain skirt was made with a train.

A checked skirt trimmed with plain bands of cloth. A coat of the plain cloth borrowed bands of checked material like the skirt for a trimming. A good idea for two pretty remnants.

A bolero coat of pinkish gray seen on a gray costume. The outlines of the lace jacket were trimmed with plain bands of gray. It was sleeveless.

A calling gown of dull blue mousseline de soie is made in a jumper style with a guimp of white silk. The double flounced skirt and bolero outlines were finished with soutache in the same shade of blue. The skirt was fashioned with a small train effect.

A small Paris model of amethyst cloth was trimmed with gray braid and yards upon yards of fine taffeta made into tiny knife plaits.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN.

The much discussed snow and ice ordinance will again come up for discussion at the meeting of the borough Council tonight. The proposed ordinance has been drawn up in a revised form, and provides for the removal of snow and ice from sidewalks within the town limits within eight hours after a storm, or for the property owner to be subject to a fine of $5. According to the ordinance, if the sidewalk is not cleared within the the required time, borough workmen are empowered to do it, and the charge may be affixed to the property's owner's taxes. The ordinance will be brought up for discussion and a vote taken tonight, along with routine business of the borough's fathers.

The third and fourth degrees will be worked on a class of seventeen initiates at the meeting of the New Market Grange, tobe held tonight instead of Thursday night. The change of date is made because of the meeting of Middlesex County Ponoma Grange, to be held at Middlebush Thursday night.

The Piscataway Social Club had its first meeting of the season at the home of Miss Iva Dayton, of Main street, Saturday evening. The time was passed in a jolly social way with music and games. Later refreshments were served. There was a full attendance.

The first of a series of weekly teachers' meetings for the purpose of Bible study and discussion of Sunday school methods will be held in the chapel of the Presbyterian chapel of the Presbyterian church this evening.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Thornton spent Saturday and Sunday at the home of Mr. Thornton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Thornton, of New Market. It was the first visit of the young couple to the village since their recent marriage.

At the evening service in the Presbyterian church last night, Rev. W. W. Casselbury preached from the topic "Young People and Their Business Relations." This is the third sermon in his series to young people.

District Deputy Frank C. Nelson, of the Piscataway lodge, will make an official visit to Rockview Council on the occasion of their regular meeting to night.

Miss Sarah Leonard, of Newark, has returned home after spending several days as the guest of her uncle, Josiah Maitland, of New Market.

The postponed October meeting of the Dunellen Board of Education will be held tomorrow evening in the borough building.

Tax Collector Isaac J. Stites has all tax bills out and several property owners have already settled their assessments.

Miss Cora L. Dayton will entertain the G. E. Club, of New Market, at her home tonight.

Andrew Fogarth, of New Market, is occupying his new house on Main street.

Local flower gardens were nipped by a light frost Saturday night.

FOR MOURNING WEAR.

The smooth-faced, dull-finished materials are best for mourning wear.

For the house, and indeed for the street, too, according to the season, veiling makes a most satisfactory and suitable gown.

The best silks for mourning are peau de soie, taffeta of dull finish and louisine.

Trimmings, like spices, should be used sparingly, in fact, the only trimming allowing in the wearing of deeper mourning are crepes, stitching and mourning silks.

Turnover cuffs of linen, with hemstitched edges, are worn in deepest mourning, making the prettiest of finishes.

A certain of amount of jewelry is more or less indispensable, although its use should be limited to what is positively necessary.

Nothing is more utterly out of place, more vulgar in the extreme, than elaborate and quite uncalled-for jewelry.

A NEW DINNER GOWN.

A costume of strikingly-noticeable beauty is a princess model of pink mousseline, with a sleeveless coat of pink Venetian guipure. This coat is fitted to the princess form, is made with a deep V in the front, then closes at the waist line, and the circular portion over the hips is plain. A different design entirely of Oriental braid heads a pink satin binding at the hem of the dress, while a pink satin belt finishes the princess gown beneath the coat. This is worn with a darker pink hat, trimmed with pink plumes and black velvet ribbon.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR.

Once and for all, let it be known that nothing will permanently remove superfluous hai rwith the exception of the electric needle in the hands of an expert. Peroxide of hydrogen mixed with ammonia will bleach hair and even rot it, thereby discouraging the growth, though the magic work must be done at the very root of each hair where sixteen tiny cells must be killed. Anything strong enough to kill hair will certainly leave an unsightly blemish on the delicate skin.

Disraeli's Nuptial Joke.

There was a little joke between them (Disraeli and his wife) which I heard from the late dean of Salisbury. "You know I married you for your money," Disraeli would say to her. "Oh, yes, but if you were to marry me again you would marry me for love!" was the regular reply. "Oh, yes," her husband would exclaim, and the little nuptial comedy ended.

But what Disraeli said to Bernal Osborne once about his marriage is much better worth the telling. It was at a dinner party after dinner when the men were alone. "What did you marry her for?" Osborne asked in his characteristic way. Disraeli twiddled his wineglass in the pause that followed this point-blank inquiry. Then he lifted his head slowly and looked the other very expressively in the face. "For a reason," he said, "which you could never understand — gratitude." — From "Lord Beaconsfield and Other Tory Memories," by T. E. Kebbel.

The Smelts Were Biting.

John Quincy Adams, of Massachusetts, third of that name, was very fond of fishing and not especially fond of his legal profession. One day, the story runs, a case in which he was counsel was down for trial in a Massachusetts court. Mr Adams did not make his appearance, but sent a letter to the judge. That worthy gentleman read it and then postponed the case with the announcement

"Mr. Adams is detained on important business."

It was afterward learned by a colleague of Adams that the letter read as follows:

"Dear Judge—For the sake of old Izaak Walton, please continue my case till Friday. The smelts are biting and I can't leave."

For Bridesmaids.

Among the newest and prettiest souvenirs for the bride to present her maids is a small brooch of enamel that looks exactly like a bunch of autumn leaves. On one of the leaves a tiny diamond that looks like a drop of dew is set; the enamel gives the rich coloring of the gold and russet and crimson of fall foliage.

Another is a charming little bangle, a heart-shaped locket in gold, left quite plain for the date of the wedding, and a place inside for the bride's picture. These are also intended as souvenirs from the bride to her maids.

The Owe Sheridans.

Richard Brinsley Butler Sheridan, the great Irishman, was all his life long in dire straits for money, and when he died in 1816 the bailiffs were actually in possession of his house. Sheridan's forbears had been O'Sheridans.

"Why," asked on one occasion his little son, "why have we not the O' as well as they?"

"Heaven only knows," was the father's reply. "We ought to have it, for we owe everybody."

Continuous Cooking.

"New York is a place of continuous cooking," said the woman from the West. "Walk along any street at any time and you will get a whiff of coffee and broiling meat. There doesn't seem to be any set time for meals. Judging by the smell, breakfast is a movable feast that takes place any time between 6 o'clock and noon."—New York Post.

Chocolate Icing.

Boil a cup of sugar and a half cup of water together until the syrup spins a thread. Beat the white of one egg very stiff, and pour the syrup gradually upon it, beating all the while, and whip in two ounces of melted chocolate, with a half-teaspoonful of vanilla. When nearly cold spread on the cake.

Tommy Changed His Spot.

Teacher—Can the leopard change his spots? Now, Tommy, answer me!

Tommy—Yes, sir; he can.

Teacher—Nonsense! How can he?

Tommy—Well, sir, when he's tired of sitting in one spot he can change to another, can't he, sir?—Winnipeg Telegram.

IN THE FOG

BY

Richard Harding Davis.

COPYRIGHT, 1901, BY ROBERT HOWARD RUSSELL.

"Under other circumstances the young man's rudeness, and his recklessness in dashing so hurriedly through the mist, would have struck me as peculiar, but everything was so distorted by the fog that at the moment I did not consider it. The door was still as he had left it, partly open. I went up the path, and, after much fumbling, found the knob of the door-bell and gave it a sharp pull. The bell answered me from a great depth and distance, but no movement followed from inside the house, and although I pulled the bell again and again I could hear nothing save the dripping of the mist about me. I was anxious to be on my way, but unless I knew where I was going there was little chance of my making any speed, and I was determined that until I learned my bearings I would not venture back into the fog. So I pushed the door open and stepped into the house.

"I found myself in a long and narrow hall, upon which doors opened from either side. At the end of the hall was a staircase with a balustrade which ended in a sweeping curve. The balustrade was covered with heavy Persian rugs, and the walls of the hall were also hung with them. The door on my left was closed, but the one nearer me on the right was open, and as I stepped opposite to it I saw that it was a sort of reception or waiting-room, and that it was empty. The door below it was also open, and with the idea that I would surely find some one there, I walked on up the hall. I was in evening dress, and I felt I did not look like a burglar, so I had no great fear that, should I encounter one of the inmates of the house, he would shoot me on sight. The second door in the hall opened into a dining-room. This was also empty. One person had been dining at the table, but the cloth had not been cleared away, and a flickering candle showed half-filled wine-glasses and the ashes of cigarettes. The greater part of the room was in complete darkness.

"By this time I had grown conscious of the fact that I was wandering about in a strange house, and that, apparently, I was alone in it. The silence of the place began to try my nerves, and in a sudden, unexplainable panic I started for the open street. But as I turned, I saw a man sitting on a bench, which the curve of the balustrade had hidden from me. His eyes were shut, and he was sleeping soundly.

"The moment before I had been bewildered because I could see no one, but at sight of this man I was much more bewildered.

"He was a very large man, a giant in height, with long yellow hair which hung below his shoulders. He was dressed in a red silk shirt that was belted at the waist and hung outside black velvet trousers which, in turn, were stuffed into high black boots. I recognized the costume at once as that of a Russian servant, but what a Russian servant in his native livery could be doing in a private house in Knightsbridge was incomprehensible.

"I advanced and touched the man on the shoulder, and after an effort he awoke, and, on seeing me, sprang to his feet and began bowing rapidly and making deprecatory gestures. I had picked up enough Russian in Petersburg to make out that the man was apologizing for having fallen asleep, and I also was able to explain to him that I desired to see his master.

"He nodded vigorously, and said, 'Will the Excellency come this way? The Princess is here.'

"I distinctly made out the word 'princess,' and I was a good deal embarrassed. I had thought it would be easy enough to explain my intrusion to a man, but how a woman would look at it was another matter, and as I followed him down the hall I was somewhat puzzled.

"As we advanced, he noticed that the front door was standing open, and with an exclamation of surprise, hastened toward it and closed it. Then he rapped twice on the door of what was apparently the drawing-room. There was no reply to his knock, and he tapped again, and then timidly, and cringing subserviently, opened the door and stepped inside. He withdrew himself at once and stared stupidly at me, shaking his head.

"'She is not there,' he said. He stood for a moment gazing blankly through the open door, and then hastened toward the dining-room. The solitary candle which still burned there seemed to assure him that the room also was empty. He came back and bowed me toward the drawing-room. 'She is above,' he said; 'I will inform the Princess of the Excellency's presence.'

"Before I could stop him he had turned and was running up the staircase, leaving me alone at the open door of the drawing-room. I decided that the adventure had gone quite far enough, and if I had been able to explain to the Russian that I had lost my way in the fog, and only wanted to get back into the street again, I would have left the house on the instant.

"Of course, when I first rang the bell of the house I had no other expectation than that it would be answered by a parlor-maid who would direct me on my way. I certainly could not then foresee that I would disturb a Russian princess in her boudoir, or that I might be thrown out by her athletic bodyguard. Still, I thought I ought not now to leave the house without making some apology, and, if the worst should come, I could show my card. They could hardly believe that a member of an Embassy had any designs upon the hat-rack.

"The room in which I stood was dimly lighted, but I could see that, like the hall, it was hung with heavy Persian rugs. The corners were filled with palms, and there was the unmistakable odor in the air of Russian cigarettes, and strange, dry scents that carried me back to the bazaars of Vladivostock. Near the front windows was a grand piano, and at the other end of the room a heavily carved screen of some black wood, picked out with ivory. The screen was overhung with a canopy of silken draperies, and formed a sort of alcove. In front of the alcove was spread the white skin of a polar bear, and set on that was one of those low Turkish coffee tables. It held a lighted spirit lamp and two gold coffee cups. I had heard no movement from above stairs, and it must have been fully three minutes that I stood waiting, noting these details of the room and wondering at the delay, and at the strange silence.

"And then, suddenly, as my eye grew more used to the half-light, I saw, projecting from behind the screen as though it were stretched along the back of a divan, the hand of a man and the lower part of his arm. I was as startled as though I had come across a footprint on a deserted island. Evidently the man had been sitting there since I had come into the room, even since I had entered the house, and he had heard the servant knocking upon the door. Why he had not declared himself I could not understand, but I supposed that possibly he was a guest, with no reason to interest himself in the Princess's other visitors, or perhaps, for some reason, he did not wish to be observed. I could see nothing of him except his hand, but I had an unpleasant feeling that he had been peering at me through the carving in the screen, and that he still was doing so. I moved my feet noisily on the floor and said tentatively, 'I beg your pardon.'

"There was no reply, and the hand did not stir. Apparently the man was bent upon ignoring me, but as all I wished was to apologize for my intrusion and to leave the house, I walked up to the alcove and peered around it. Inside the screen was a divan piled with cushions, and on the end of it nearer me the man was sitting. He was a young Englishman with light yellow hair and a deeply bronzed face. He was seated with his arms stretched out along the back of the divan, and with his head resting against a cushion. His attitude was one of complete ease. But his mouth had fallen open, and his eyes were set with an expression of utter horror. At the first glance I saw that he was quite dead.

"For a flash of time I was too startled to act, but in the same flash I was convinced that the man had met his death from no accident, that he had not died through any ordinary failure of the laws of nature. The expression on his face was much too terrible to be misinterpreted. It spoke as eloquently as words. It told me that before the end had come he had watched his death approach and threaten him.

"I was so sure he had been murdered that I instinctively looked on the floor for the weapon, and, at the same moment, out of concern for my own safety, quickly behind me; but the silence of the house continued unbroken.

"I have seen a great number of dead men; I was on the Asiatic Station during the Japanese-Chinese war. I was in Port Arthur after the massacre. So a dead man, for the single reason that he is dead, does not repel me, and, though I knew that there was no hope that this man was alive, still for decency's sake, I felt his pulse, and while I kept my ears alert for any sound from the floors above me, I pulled open his shirt and placed my hand upon his heart. My fingers instantly touched upon the opening of a wound, and as I withdrew them I found them wet with blood. He was in evening dress, and in the wide bosom of his shirt I found a narrow slit, so narrow that in the dim light it was scarcely discernible. The wound was no wider than the smallest blade of a pocket-knife, but when I stripped the shirt away from the chest and left it bare I found that the weapon, narrow as it was, had been long enough to reach his heart. There is no need to tell you how I felt as I stood by the body of this boy, for he was hardly older than a boy, or of the thoughts that came into my head. I was bitterly sorry for this stranger, bitterly indignant at his murderer, and, at the same time, selfishly concerned for my own safety and for the notoriety which I saw was sure to follow. My instinct was to leave the body where it lay, and to hide myself in the fog, but I also felt that since a succession of accidents had made me the only witness to a crime, my duty was to make myself a good witness and to assist to establish the facts of this murder.

"That it might possibly be a suicide, and not a murder, did not disturb me for a moment. The fact that the weapon had disappeared, and the expression on the boy's face were enough to convince, at least me, that he had had no hand in his own death. I judged it, therefore, of the first importance to discover who was in the house, or, if they had escaped from it, who had been in the house before I entered it. I had seen one man leave it; but all I could tell of him was that he was a young man, that he was in evening dress, and that he had fled in such haste that he had not stopped to close the door behind him.

GOLF UNDER NEW BASIS

Improved Handicapping System Tried at the Plainfield Country Club.

ABANDON BOGEY IDEA

Play at Park Golf Club Also—The Results In Several Events On Both Courses.

The Plainfield Country Club at last has made a change in its basis of handicapping, and the new method was used on Saturday for the first time. The change is from the old method of using "bogey" as a basis of handicapping to that of "par," which is recognized and used by the Metropolitan Golf Association. The old system was not generally satisfactory, for when members played on other links they were obliged to use the standard system.

Under the former method of "bogey" 79 was used as the basis for handicapping, while under the standard system it is 71. By making the change it does away with the use of the "plus" in handicapping an extra player. The change met with general approval on Saturday and promises to be popular.

In the weekly competition for the Golf Committee cup, D. H. Rowland, Dudley H. Barrows and J. A. Lane were the point winners. The best scores returned were as follows:

D. H. Rowland, 96, 20-76; Dudley H. Barrows, 81, 4-77; J. A. Lane, 92, 15-77; W. Lester Glenney, 82, 4-78; Arthur Murphy, 92, 11-81.

The leading scores posted for the Green Committee cup follow:

C. C. Burke, Sr., 94, 14-80; Hugh Fox, 103, 20-83; Le Roy H. Gates, 114, 27-87.

There was considerable interest in the first round match play, handicap, for the Autumn cups, classes A and B, for it brought together a number of the best players and as the scores show there were several exceptionally close matches.

In class A the result was as follows:

Charles A. Stover, 13, beat Stuart H. Patterson, 16, 1 up in 20 holes; E. T. Wilson, 13, beat James P. Murray, 18, 5 up and 3 to play; Frank O. Reinhart, 4, beat Julius E. Erickson, 13, 3 up and 2 to play; Dudley H. Barrows, 4, beat W. Lester Glenney, 4, 1 up in 19 holes.

Class B—A. G. Henderson, 19, won a bye, and will play the winner of the match between W. F. Merrill and W. L. C. Glenney; George S. Clay, 27, beat Harry Williams, 27, 1 up; Le Roy H. Gates, 27, beat C. P. Hamilton, 25, 1 up in 19 holes.

While there was a goodly number of players on the Park Golf Club course Saturday, but five posted their scores for the President's, Golf Club and October cups. However, those were sufficient to score points for the trophies. Owing to the lateness in arrival of R. V. Carpenter, Charles B. Morse was unable to play off the tee with him to decide who shall play W. V. Byard in the finals for the September cup. It is expected that the match will be played this week. The leading scores returned on Saturday were as follows:

Charles B. Morse, 98, 7-91; Rev. C. L. Goodrich, 108, 13-95; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 102, 5-97; W. V. Byard, 102, 5-97; Charles A. Reed, 111, 12-99.

MUST TAKE "BAIT" ALONG.

License for Saloon at Cheesequake's Fishing Grounds Refused.

New Brunswick, Oct. 7.—Newarkers who go down to Cheesequake on fishing trips, hereafter, will have to take their "bait" with them. Judge Booraem yesterday refused to grant a liquor license for the place because most of the residents of the little settlement petitioned to have it dry.

There are only about sixty families in Cheesequake, and most of them were represented on the remonstrance. Judge Booraem applied the home rule principle and granted their request.

JERSEY AGAINST ENGLAND

Millions of Singer Machine Founder Involved in Question of Court Jurisdiction.

5,574 SHARES INVOLVED

Widow's Third Husband Lays Claim to Them—Case Has Been in French and English Courts.

Whether the Court of Chancery of the sovereign State of New Jersey or the High Court of Chancery of England shall have jurisdiction over a good portion of the millions left by Isaac Merritt Singer, inventor of the Singer sewing machine and the founder of the Singer Manufacturing Company, is to be decided shortly by Vice-Chancellor Howell, who has taken briefs of Untermeyer & Marshall, of New York, and E. M. Colie, of this city, counsel representing Paul Charles William Sohege IV. and Parisian husband of the late Mr. Singer's deceased widow, together with the brief of R. V. Lindabury, representing the trustees and Singer heirs, after those eminent lawyers had discussed in turn their views on his authority in the premises.

Vice-Chancellor Howell leaves today for his vacation, and he will endeavor to digest this difficult problem of international jurisprudence while taking his ease in the New England mountains.

Mr. Lindabury, as counsel for the defendants, had as clients Adam M. Singer, Washington M. G. Singer, Lewis Rendell, three sons and an English friend of the American inventor, and the Princess Edmond de Polignac, nee Eugenia Singer; the Duchess Jean Elie Louis Octave Guillaume Severe Olmanien Duc Decazes de Glucksburg, nee Blanche Singer; Louis Jean Vcitor de Glucksburg, Marguerite Eti de Glucksburg, Jacques Ete de Glucksburg, children of the duchess, and Paris Eugene Singer, all of them either the children or grandchildren of Mrs. Singer by her American husband.

The amount involved in the suit runs into the millions and represents the big block of stock awarded as dividends of Mr. Singer in 1901, three years before her death.

The papers in the suit show that after Mr. Singer's death in 1879, his widow married Vicomte D'Estenburg, otherwise known as the Duc de Camposelic, who died in 1887. At the time of this marriage an ante-nuptial agreement was made whereby 2,787 shares of the Singer company stock were turned over to John C. Palmer and John B. Gould as a trust, the income to be paid to her during her life and after her death to be held for all or any of her children then living, by her former husband. In 1891 the widowed duchess married plain Mr. Sohege, of Paris, entering into a marriage contract in conformity with French law, which made her last husband her partner in all the "gains" of her estate.

Seven years later, 1898, Mrs. Sohege and her husband confirmed by a second instrument the trust created by Mrs. Singer prior to her marriage to the Duc de Camposelice, and under the powers conferred by this instrument Messrs. Palmer and Gould appointed Adam M. and Washington M. G. Singer and Lewis Rendell trustees of the stock in their stead.

On the reading of Mme. Sohege's will in 1904 it was ascertained that the testatrix named her husband as her "universal legatee," whereby he became possessed of all her personal estate. Sohege immediately took out letters of administration and brought suit in the French courts for the 5,574 shares of capital stock allotted the widow of Mr. Singer as a dividend in 1901.

While this suit was pending the trustees to whom the stock had been turned over and who had made it a part of the corpus or principal of the trust fund, brought suit in the High Court of Chancery, giving notice to Sohege to appear and defend his rights.

It appears from the voluminous records in the case that Mr. Singer and all his family had long been expatriates, and made their domicile in England. The original trust deed executed by Mrs. Singer was made while she was still residing there prior to her marriage to the Belgian Duc de Compeselice, and the trust was in fact held by the respective trustees in England.

Consequently, when Sohege declined to appear and make answer to the suit brought in the English Chancery Court, the testimony taken was ex parte, and the decision of that court was that it held exclusive jurisdiction, the confirmation of the trust agreement by Sohege in 1898 barring him out of the advantage he might have had under the French law.

Obtaining no satisfaction in either the French or English courts last year, Sohege, on terms which the bill says are not disclosed, sold or assigned a twentieth interest in the 5,574 shares of stock to Joseph Ignatius Ryan, of this State, and began proceedings here. The Singer heirs immediately interposed the objection that the New Jersey Court of Chancery had no jurisdiction.

In the argument heard last night, Mr. Marshall, agreeing that the Singer company appeared in the case as stockholder, contended that the complainants held legal ownership to the 5,574 shares, as it was derivable from accumulations of income and therefore part of the personal estate of Mme. Sohege, to which it was admitted he was solely entitled.

He also argued that suit was brought in New Jersey because it was the sites of the property represented by the stock, and he held the court had jurisdiction, as his clients were before the court asking that it give a clear title to that property as so represented.

TAX FOR THE HOSPITAL

Special Election to Decide Whether City Shall Help in Its Support.

COMMON COUNCIL ACTS

One-Third Mill On Dollar the Proposed Tax—Messrs. Daniel and Tolles Oppose the Idea.

The question of allowing the voters of Plainfield to decide whether they want to be taxed one-third of a mill on the city's total valuation for the support of Muhlenberg Hosuital was raised by Councilman George P. Mellick at the October meeting of the Common Council, last night. That member called up the petition, presented several months ago, which asked that the voters of Plainfield be given the opportunity to settle the question at an election. The petition provides that the question be voted on at the coming general election to be held November 5.

Immediately after its presentation, Mr. Tolles, chairman of the finance committee, arose to protest. He said that its adoption would mean an ever-increasing debt on the city for as the valuation of the city increase in proportion will the amount to be given the hospital through a tax increase. He referred to the fact that the city is now giving the hospital $1,000 a year for the care of indigent poor, yet he did not believe that the number of such cases averaged more than six or eight a year. Besides he did not think that such a vote as proposed would be a fair test. He did not want to be understood as antagonistic to the hospital for he was always willing to contribute his share.

In support of the proposition Mr. Mellick said that it would not be a question of voting money by adopting the provisions of the proposed resolution, but simply giving the voters a chance to decide the question. He had been importuned time and again to secure the adoption of the measure by people who want to contribute to the hospital by such a method. Mr. Mellick added that last year the hospital had given $4,000 worth of services free to persons unable to pay for treatment there. In speaking of the matter later Mr. Mellick quoted some interesting figures. He said that for the year ending June 1 last, the receipts were $32,300, including $4,800 given by the Union County Board of Freeholders; $12,000 from private patients and ward patients who pay and $16,800 from miscellaneous sources of income, leaving a deficit of $15,500, which has to be raised each year through efforts for charity, such as the carnival and other forms of entertainment.

The tax of one-third of a mill on every dollar received from taxes would give the hospital $6,600, still leaving $9,000 to be raised by persons who are actively interested in the hospital.

In stating his position, President Daniel said that while he considered the hospital a quasi public institution that he would vote against the proposition as in the first instance on the grounds that he did not like the way the law was framed, in his opinion it would not be a fair test, for aside from the question as to the legality of the act, the failure of a person to vote against the question would be construed as a vote in favor of it. In reply Mr. Mellick added that while the phrasing of the law was unfortunate, it was not considered serious enough to prevent the operation of it. He believed that all the voters would be fully informed as to what to do on election day.

Mr. Montgomery also spoke in favor of the proposition, adding his word of praise for the hospital for what it has done in the past and urging generous support on the part of the city. When the vote was taken, President Daniel and Councilman Tolles voted in the negative but the resolution was adopted.

In the City Court.

On complaint of Mrs. Susie Oarlock, of Johnson avenue, Mrs. Josie Lombardi, of the same street, was arraigned in the city court this morning. Mrs. Oarlock claimed that Mrs. Lombardi had assaulted her in the course of a neighborhood quarrel and that she still suffers from the blows. The defendant denied the charge and the testimony became so conflicting the magistrate sent both women home with a warning to behave themselves.

Dr. A. H. Lewis to Speak.

Dr. A. H. Lewis, of this city, the leading divine in the Seventh-Day Baptist church in this State, will address the members of the Men's Club of the Congregational Church at Westfield at the annual fall dinner to be held in the church lecture room, Tuesday evening, October 22.

CITY WANTS BETTER CONTRACT WITH P. S. C.

LIGHTING COMMITTEE TO NEGOTIATE WITH CONCERN.

Acting in accordance with a motion offered by Chairman Montgomery, of the light committee, the Common Council at its October meeting, last night, authorized the committee to enter into negotiations with the Public Service Corporation with a view to obtaining the best contract possible for lighting the city. He referred to the high voltage maintained in overhead wires throughout the city and to te fact that the lighting bills for this year have not as yet been paid. His motion provided that a report be made at the November meeting of the Common Council.

Owing to some differences between the city and the P. S. C. payment of all the city light bills have been withheld until such time as a more satisfactory contract could be made. Mr. Montgomery believes that the company is now ready to meet the city half-way in an effort to amicably adjust the matter, hence his motion authorizing the committee to take such action as it deems best.

It is the intention of the committee to secure if possible the placing of all electric light wires underground in the business section of the city.

OBSERVE GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. J. Denison Spicer Reach Fifty Years of Married Life.

CELEBRATE THE EVENT

Drs. Lewis and Shaw Make Remarks—Letters From Bishop Vincent and Dr. Main.

Surrounded by relatives and friends to the number of about 125 Mr. and Mrs. J. Denison Spicer celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding at their home on West Fifth street, last night. There were many features that combined to make the event one of unusual interest to the couple, as well as their guests. One thing that added to the pleasure was the presence of Mrs. Sarah J. Titsworth, of this city, and Nelson Blackford, of New Market, the bridesmaid and best man at the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Spicer fifty years ago.

Congratulatory remarks were made by Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis and Rev. George B. Shaw, the latter pastor of the Seventh-day Baptist church with a response by Mr. Spicer. Dr. Lewis spoke especially of the happily married life of Mr. and Mrs. Spicer and of the high esteem in which they are held. Mr. Shaw, while not able to speak in a reminiscent way, referred to his pleasant and cordial relations with the couple. In responding Mr. Spicer was reminiscent, recalling interesting incidents of the early days.

Many congratulatory letters were received and read by David E. Titsworth. These included pleasant words from Bishop Vincent, a former neighbor; Rev. Dr. Main, dean of Alfred University and Rev. Dr. Edwin H. Lewis, of Chicago, son of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Lewis. Others letters were from Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania, Florida, Louisana, and Seattle, Washington. In connection with the readings of the letters Mr. Titsworth read some original verses, dedicated to Mr. and Mrs. Spicer. At the same time he presented the couple with a purse of $360 in gold, a golden oak sideboard and other gifts. The purse was from members of the Seventh-day Baptist church, who were present in large numbers, and other friends. The presentation was a complete and happy surprise. At the conclusion of the very informal program and a prayer by Mr. Shaw, the company joined in singing "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

Mr. and Mrs. Spicer were married fifty years ago yesterday at the home of the bride, who was Miss Elizabeth F. Ross, daughter of Austin F. Ross, in New Market. Rev. Halsey H. Baker, who died in January last, was the officiating clergyman, being at that time pastor of the Seventh-day Baptist church, New Market. Mr. Spicer was then a resident of Westerly, R. I., and he and his bride did not move to Plainfield until 1865.

He started in business here in 1866 and for thirty-two years was engaged in the manufacture of sashes, blinds and other materials used in building, with Joseph A. Hubbard, the firm name being Spicer & Hubbard. The mill at Madison avenue and West Third street was occupied during that partnership. Several years ago the firm dissolved and it was Mr. Spicer's intention to continue the business when he was seriously injured by a fall in the yard of Boice, Runyon & Co. Since that time he has lived in retirement.

During their residence in Plainfield Mr. and Mrs. Spicer have been active members of the Seventh-day Baptist church, and for many years Mr. Spicer was the clerk of the church.

The guests present last night came from Rhode Island, New York, Brooklyn, Metuchen, New Brunswick, Trenton, New Market and this city, and included about twelve persons who attended the wedding at New Market. Mr. and Mrs. Spicer have two children, Miss Ida Spicer and Arthur J. Spicer, both of this city.

Theodore Vroom.

Theodore Vroom, at one time considered one of the most expert sign painters in the country, died at his home on East Front street, yesterday afternoon. He had been ill for the past year. He came to this city from Somerville twenty years ago. He was fifty-three years of age and leaves a widow, one daughter, Mrs. G. A. Alexander, and three sons, Hervey, Roy and Warren Vroom. The funeral will be held at the W. C. T. U. rooms on Madison avenue tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial will be at Somerville.

Assistant Postmaster Martin and Mrs. Martin will return this week from a two weeks' stay at Atlantic City.

Mrs. Jessie Harkins, of DeKalb avenue, has returned after spending three weeks at Pine Hill with her cousin, Miss Brownell.

NEW FIREMEN APPOINTED

Mayor Fisk's Recommendations are Confirmed by the Common Council.

NEW BUILDING LINE

More Lights In Various Districts—Money Borrowed For Brick Pave Improvement.

Vincent Carroll and Martin Connaughton were appointed permanent members of the fire department, and William Jaeger a call man, by Mayor Fisk, at the October meeting of the Common Council, last night, and the appointments were confirmed. Mr. Jaeger was formerly a driver for the chemical engine, but resigned recently to accept another position. However, he desired to continue as a member of the department.

For the purpose of assisting W. R. Codington and Walter Manning, who are erecting a new building on Watchung avenue, near the railroad, and chung avenue, near the railroad. Mr. Ginna introduced an ardinance establishing a new line between Fourth street and Crescent avenue, and East Sixth street, which will permit the new building to remain where it is. The new line permits for sixteen feet from the curb, a twelve foot sidewalk and four feet for an area. The ordinance was adopted on two readings and a public hearing will be granted at the November meeting.

This matter has been under consideration for some time, the owners seeking relief from the possibility of being compelled to tear down the front of the building and set it back on the establishing line. President Daniel and Councilman Hibbard voted against the ordinance.

On motion of Mr. Tolles, a resolution offered at a previous meeting providing for the borrowing of $5,000 on account of the brick pavement work, was reconsidered and then voted down, so that a new resolution for $10,000 might be substituted. The first resolution did not meet with the approval of Corporation Counsel Marsh, and another one was drafted and passed. The $10,000 includes payments for two months.

The light committee had a long inning in securing many additional electric lights. Mr. Montgomery, the chairman, although not always sure of each location succeeded in getting all the lights he asked for.

One asked for is to be located on West Third street, between Madison and Central avenues, where one was supposed to have existed. The chairman will investigate the matter and if the city has been paying for a light which has not been in service the matter will be adjusted with the Public Service Corporation. Other lights secured by the committee include one on Belvidere avenue, one on West Third street, three on Putnam avenue, between Hillside and Woodland avenues.

Strong objection to the granting of so many lights was offered by Mr. Tyler, but Mr. Ginna and Mr. Mellick favored the lights, especially those asked for on Putnam avenue, where, they stated there is considerable traffic and many new houses are being erected.

These lights, in a majority of cases were petitioned for. The residents of Woodland avenue asked for one os that thoroughfare, and a similar petition was received from Christian Frederickson and others for lights on Leland and Berkeley avenues. These petitions were referred, but those received from Clifton Wharton, Jr., on Belvidere, and H. H. Pennoyer and others for one on West Third street opposite West End Tabernacle, and the one for Martine and Evergreen avenues were promptly granted. Councilmen Tyler and Hibbard voted against the lights for Putnam avenue.

COULDN'T GET $500 OUT OF HIS CLIENT

ISAAC P. RUNYON IS NON-SUITED IN FIGHT FOR ALLEGED FEES.

Judge Vail, of Elizabeth, went to Somerville, yesterday, to take up the trial of the Supreme Court causes. The first case ready was that of Isaac P. Runyon against Robert W. Graves, on contract. Mr. Runyon is a lawyer with offices in this city and he brought suit against Mr. Graves, who lives in Elizabeth, to recover the sum of $500 for instituting a suit against a corporation.

Mr. Runyon had no written contract, but declared the arrangements had been in the form of a verbal agreement. The defendant denied this, and Judge Vail, because the plaintiff could produce no contract in writing, granted a non-suit.

AUDIENCE STOPS PLAY

"Mr. Bluebeard" Was a Sad, Sad Affair and the Gallery Got Wise.

CURTAIN RUNG DOWN

Manager Counihan Refused to Allow Continuance of the Show When Handclapping Became Enthusiastic.

Growing weary of the amateurish actions of the cast, last night's audience at the New Plainfield theatre took to "kidding" the members of the "Bluebeard" company and interrupted the progress of the performance. By vigorous handclapping and stamping of feet they made it impossible for the actors and actresses to go on with their lines and the disturbance brought Manager Counihan from his private office. He immediately ordered the curtain lowered and refused to allow the show to proceed.

"Mr. Bluebeard" was originally produced by Klaw & Erlanger and has had big runs in New York, Chicago and other places. It has evidently been sold about, however, from one manager to another and it is now in the possession of Miss Donna Seymour, who backed the production booked for this city and appeared in the cast. It was represented to Manager Counihan as a performance worthy of his house but it was evident after the first act, last night, that the company wasn't any too good and that it hadn't been regular at rehearsals. The show dragged along until the opening of the last act when a succession of "breaks" started the "kidding" and continued applause.

An alleged comedian sought to render Eddie Foy's song, "And They Say He Went to College," from "The Orchid," and was helped out or hampered by a dozen chorus girls. The singer became badly mixed in his lines and the girls got in each other's way. When the first couple of choruses were passed out the gallery was seemingly enthusiastic. An encore got still longer applause and when the stage people sang all they knew everybody called for more. The first part was repeated but still the audience clapped and then the realization came that the applauding was not the genuine sort.

In speaking of the matter today, Manager Counihan regretted that the company had been allowed to go on and declared that he would have cancelled the date if he had known the show was not up to the standard of the house. Business kept him in his office during the early part of the evening and it was not until his attention was attracted by the noisy applauding that he realized the show was in disfavor with the audience. He immediately called for the performance to stop and would have refunded the patrons money but for the fact that the usual settlement had been made with the company's treasurer. The latter was not to be found when search was instituted.

The members of the company are still in town and it was said today that Miss Seymour had taken her departure without stopping to advance any salaries. The show was booked for Wilmington, Del., tonight and after that the important cities through Pennsylvania. The original production of "Mr. Bluebeard" was appearing at the Iroquois theatre in Chicago at the time the fire and panic occurred in which 600 lives were lost.

THREE WESTFIELD HOMES ENTERED BY BURGLARS.

Ransacked Room in W. H. Siebert's Home Where Corpse Reposed in Casket.

A daring band of thieves invaded Westfield at an early hour this morning and secured $1,000 worth of plunder in three homes. One of the places entered was the residence of W. H. Siebert, of Lawrence avenue, whose wife died Sunday. The burglars ransacked nearly all the rooms in the house including the one wherein the casket rested. They secured several hundred dollars worth of silverware, jewelry and clothing.

At the home of Clark R. Swaney, on Highland avenue, $200 worth of silverware and clothing was taken and at the residence of Eugene Hanford, Dudley avenue, the loot included $50 in money, silverware and clothing. Hanford is the Republican leader in Westfield.

The police were acquainted with the facts and are working up several clues obtained.

$250 Damage By Wind.

The heavy wind which accompanied this morning's downpour of rain caused the smashing of a $250 plate glass window at Scheuer's grocery. An awning rod was jerked from position and swung directly into it.

NEW YORK MAN GETS $68,000 BOND ISSUE

ONLY TWO BIDS AND OFFER OF A. B. LEACH IS ACCEPTED.

Contrary to expectations only two bids were received at the October meeting of the Common Council, last night, for the $68,000 worth of sanitary sewer bonds. One was from the Plainfield Trust Company for $50,000 worth of bonds and the other from A. B. Leach, of New York, for the entire issue. The bonds were awarded to A. B. Leach at the exceptionally low bid of $100.04. The bonds are 4½ per cent. interest-bearing bonds and are dated May 1, 1907. They will run from 1908 to 1941.

The bid of the Plainfield Trust Company was $100.07 for $50,000 worth of the issue and the long term bonds were desired. Altogether, this bid was not considered as favorable as that of the New York firm which offered to take them all for $100.04.

The few bids and low price bid is considered due to the unsettled condition of the investment market even in high grade securities and bonds, such as Plainfield offered. There is a general depression in financial circles and those who have money to invest are withholding it in perference to putting out while the market is in such an uncertain condition.

CITY SCHOOLS TO HAVE WOMAN TRUANT OFFICER

SUPT. MAXSON WILL USE TACT, NOT FORCE, TO BRING UP ATTENDANCE.

The small boy who has heretofore been neglecting his golden opportunity for education in the city public schools is soon to have the blessing of the Three R's at least forced upon him by law, and his little sister, too, will be unable to "stay home and help" during school hours. For Superintendent Henry M. Maxson is soon to appoint a truant officer, and one and all must attend school, at least for the term required by law each school year.

At the meeting of the city board of education last night, Dr. Maxson brought up the subject of irregular attendance at the schools, and in some instances lack of attendance by children under fourteen years of age, whom the law requires shall spend at least a few months of each year in school. At a meeting of the board some time ago, the power of the appointment of such an officer had been given to Dr. Maxson and last night he announced that he would shortly announced his appointment.

To the surprise of the board, the truant officer to be chosen will be a woman. Dr. Maxson said last night that he did not believe such an officer required so much of the makeup of a police officer as the quiet influence of work in the home. The appointee will be chosen on account of ability in this way, for Dr. Maxson believes that a great deal more can be accomplished by tactful work of a philanthropic nature in the home than by the display of the force of te law.

FINANCIAL SESSION OF BOARD OF EDUCATION.

City School Fathers Order Payment of Big Budget at Short Board Meeting.

Routine business was summarily transacted at the regular meeting of the city board of education held at the high school last night. Bills to the amount of about $4,000 were ordered paid. This is an extensive budget because of the fact that much of the amount is carried over from the summer months, when it was necessary to have considerable repairing done to local school buildings. Repairs to the amount of about $1,500 have been made during the summer on the Whittier school building. Books and supplies were a large item.

A report from the city tax collector showed $1,550.78 on hand and the report of the custodian of schools showed a balance of $5,700.34. Leander N. Lovell was the only member of the board absent.

Removing Telephone Poles.

The street gang employed by the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company removed three more large poles on Front street, yesterday, being another move to clear the business section of poles and wires. One of the poles taken down yesterday stood at Front street and Park avenue, and was of the tallest in the city. For several months it had been out of us, the wires being placed underground at that point. The other two poles removed were on East Front street.

Bert Brandon, of West Front street, is spending a short time at Atlantic City.

LEMON STARTS A FIGHT

Thrown at New York People Mistaken for Thespians and Mix-up Follows.

TWO ARRESTS MADE

Trouble Occurs At North Avenue Station As Aftermath to the "Mr. Bluebeard" Incident.

Mistaking Philip L. Berry, a New York business man, and two women friends for members of the "Bluebeard" troupe which appeared at the New Plainfield theatre, Clarence Angleman, of East Fourth street, and an unknown Scotch Plains youth, hurled lemons and insults at the trio as they were waiting for a train at the North avenue station last night. Smarting under the indignities, Mr. Berry remonstrated with the young men only to be struck at and assaulted. He was faring badly at the hands of his attackers despite the feeble attempts of the women to help him when Patrolman Dennis O'Keefe appeared on the scene.

The Scotch Plains youth noted the approach of the officer and fled through the East Fourth street park to the station but Angleman and the New Yorker were arrested. City Judge William N. Runyon was hunted up and obligingly consented to hold a "night court" in order to allow Berry and his friends to get home. Angleman denied throwing the lemon but admitted that he had defied Berry to do anything about it when he politely asked who it was that had done it. He also admitted knowing the Scotch Plains youth, who he said had propelled the acid fruit, but could not tell his name. The complaint against Berry was dismissed and Angleman's case was continued until tomorrow morning with instructions that he must produce the unknown young man in court.

In giving his testimony before the magistrate, Berry said that he and his friends, Mrs. Elfreda Nixon and Miss Marie Brownley, had been at the theatre and waited after the performance to speak to some friends in the cast. After leaving the playhouse, he noticed that they were followed by a tough-looking youth who leered in an insulting way at Miss Brownlee. The young woman wore a stylish tailor-made gown and an auto veil and her general appearance was very attractive. It was evident that the follower mistook the three for theatrical people and Berry at first was inclined to treat the matter more as a joke than otherwise. When the North avenue station was reached, they had a short time to wait before the arrival of the 11.28 train and they began walking up and down the platform.

Berry noticed the persistent follower had been joined by another young man and now and then caught a remark reflecting on the "Bluebeard" performance. The leering also continued and he was just on the point of remonstrating when one of the two youths hurled a lemon that passed between he and Miss Brownlee as they were facing away. Berry turned quickly on his heel and walking back asked:

"Who threw that lemon?"

"I did," Angleman replied, and as the New York man came closer he added, "what are you going to do about it?"

He asserted that all he said was "Well, that's a pretty nice thing to do," when Angleman struck at him and the mix-up followed. Mrs. Nixon and Miss Brownlee saw the two men attack him and appealed to both to desist and also attempted to get between the aggressors. The first real help to Berry, who was pretty well battered, came from John Campbell, the bowling alley proprietor, a witness of the attack. He corroborated the New Yorker's testimony in its essential details. Angleman denied absolutely that he had hurled the lemon but admitted that he made an no attempt to set Berry aright when he sought the thrower.

The New Yorkers started for home on the 2.17 train, Berry carrying a blood-stained collar and a rueful smile.

Brick Work Progressing.

If the Public Service Corporation completes its underground work on Somerset street today, Contractor C. M. Meeker will begin at once his work of laying concrete foundation there for the brick pavement. The electrical work has held up at that point and yesterday his gang was put to work on Park avenue removing the macadam. The brickmen expect to begin today or tomorrow cementing and rolling the pavement on Park avenue, which after a few days will be ready for traffic.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

"The Woman in the Case," with Miss Helen Grantly and a capable company of players, will be Manager Counihan's offering at the New Plainfield theatre tonight.

There is no question about the complete success of "About Town," that great musical hit which comes to the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night. As in all productions by the Sam S. and Lee Shubert company (Inc.) nothing is lacking that artistic skill can devise or money procure. It has music of the good opera calibre; music that will have a lasting place; songs that thrill with their tunefulness, and a chorus that has never been surpassed either in beauty or wealth of voice. "About Town" can honestly be accredited as one of the musical and positive hits of the past season, as it remained at Lew Field's Herald Square Theatre, New York, for six consecutive months and was popular in Boston for four months. The book and lyrics by Joseph Herbert, and the music by Melville Hubbell form an entertainment of the most enjoyable kind. Then there are a number of song hits, among which are "Tom, Dick and Harry," "William Tell," "I Think I Ought'nt Auto," "Dinner Time," "A Little Class of One," "In Amsterdam," "Fickle Maid," "The Pickadilly Crawl," and "Deutschland." The cast which is headed by that clever and jolly comedian, Dave Lewis, contains many well known farceurs and musical entertainers, among which are Charles Prince, Dick Temple, Bert Western, Nellie Miley, and an exceptionally fine Miley, and and exceptionally fine chorus. In all the company is said to contain seventy people.

One of the most complete and effective presentations of "East Lynne" which has ever been sent on tour will be given at the New Plainfield theatre next Thursday night by Joseph King's New York company.

The company, scenic equipment and accessories are all up to the standard required for an artistic presentation of the favorite old drama. The engagement is for one night only, and seats can be secured at these special prices.

The attraction at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night will be that dainty, piquant and petite little artiste, Grace Cameron, who is surrounded by a metropolitan company of artists and a monster production.

The play, "Dollie Dimples," is founded on Miss Cameron's great success bearing this title during the run at the Casino, New York city, of Fred C. Whitney's "Piff Paff Pouf" and after the song "Dollie Dimples" which gained its popularity through Miss Cameron's unique rendition. Miss Cameron is meeting with great success in her role of "Dollie" and the play, which is the work of the eminent dramatist and composer, C. Herbert Kerr, is said to be meeting with unqualified success wherever it has appeared.

A Sacrifice of Beds & Bedding

At no time within recent years has cash played so important a gole in the great merchandising drama. The store that buys for cash and sells for cash these days is the store that can best afford to give real values and the store to which you should turn. As the great Bamberger store is essentially a cash concern—buying for cash—and selling for cash—we have succeeded lately in securing many concessions and are now ready with a big yearly sale in which we shall offer some of the best values ever known to the trade.

ACKERMAN'S CIVIL SERVICE.

A third and final attempt will be made by the State Senate on Friday to have a civil service law put in effect in New Jersey, the Upper House's committee, of which our model representative, Mr. Ackerman, is chairman, having framed a bill that surpasses any similar measure now in force elsewhere. On two repeated occasions the present Senate has attempted to make such a law, but at both times it has been circumvented by the Democrats in the Lower House who are playing practical politics.

The proposed measure embodies the salient features and strong points of not only the Colby and Thompson measures but the Federal Act as well. It has been framed after much hard labor on the part of Mr. Ackerman and his colleagues on the committee, Senator Gebhardt, of Hunterdon, and Frelinghuysen, of Somerset. Mr. Gebhardt is the minority member, while Mr. Frelinghuysen, the author of the pure food and auto laws, is the additional Republican factor. This trio has endeavored to show the good faith of the Senate by trying for a third time to have such a measure made into a law.

If the bill becomes law, the proposed Civil Service Commission will have power "To prescribe, amend and enforce rules and regulations for carrying into effect the provisions of the act. All rules so prepared or amended shall be subject to approval or rejection by the Governor; provided, however, that if the Governor shall not return to the commission a rule or amendment within ten days from the time the same may have been submitted to him, with his approval or rejection thereof, then such rule or amendment shall become effective as though approved by the Governor."

It will also be empowered "To make investigations, either sitting as a body or through a single commissioner, concerning all matters touching the enforcement and effect of the provisions of this act, and the rules and regulations prescribed thereunder, concerning the action of any examiner or subordinate of the commission and any person in the paid employ of the government of this State or any municipality that may hereafter adopt the provisions of this act, in respect to the execution of this act, and in the course of such investigations each commissioner and the secretary shall have power to administer oaths and affirmations and to take testimony."

The civil service of the State of New Jersey, and of the municipalities thereof when and as they may adopt the provisions of this act, will be divided into the unclassified service and the classified service. "The unclassified service shall not be subject to any of the provisions of this act, and shall include the following classes: All officers elected by popular vote; all officers appointed by the Governor, with or without the advice and consent of either or both branches of the Legislature; all officers appointed by either or both branches of the Legislature; all officers in charge of elections or whose duties relate to the preparation for elections or to the returns thereog; all heads of departments of the State government, and the municipalities thereof that may adopt the provisions of this act, and their deputies or first assistants; all law officers of the State or of any municipality thereof that may adopt the provisions of this act, and their legal assistants, who must of necessity be attorneys or counsellers-at-law; all officers and persons in the militia; all superintendents of, teachers and instructors in the public schools and State institutions, and members of all Boards of Education. The classified service shall include all persons in the paid service of the State or the municipalities thereof that may adopt the provisions of this act, not included in the unclassified service."

PICTURE TALK ON VENICE

Prof. Van Laer's Interesting Description Before Monday Afternoon Club.

SOME SUPERB SCENES

City of Sunshine and Canals the Subject at Women's Meeting At Casino Yesterday.

In all the history of the Monday Afternoon Club, it is said no lecturer has ever been greeted with so large an audience as that which gathered yesterday afternoon at the Casino to listen to Professor van Laer on "Picturesque Venice." The talk was illustrated with stereopticon views and Mr. van Laer, who is an associate of the National Academy of Design, New York, exhibited many beautiful pictures of the famous buildings in Venice as well as views of the Grand Canal and some of the smaller canals.

"See Paris and die," was an oft-quoted remark, said the lecturer, but he would advise the traveler not to die after a sight of Paris, but to see Venice and then he would not want to die. Venice was described by him as all sunshine, all restfulness and all enjoyment. There was no dust, no beating of horses hoofs, no rattling of wheels or cars, no jangling of bells, no trolleys and no automobiles. "Fortunate is the traveler," said Mr. van Laer, "who first sees Venice with a background of sunshine." This dreamland he described as mapped and charted, and the first view was a map of Venice showing the great number of islands, separated by canals, the principal of which was the Grand Canal, extending in a great curve through the heart of the city and the piazzas or open areas, almost every one of which is adorned with a fine church or palace.

Mr. van Laer showed many pictures of the square of St. Mark's, the centre of the history of the patron saint under whom Venice grew to wealth and power. In this square was also the Camapnile or famous bell-tower of St. Mark's, from the top of which the view was superb, with the Italian Alps at the North and the sea and all the beautiful city lying at the South. An ascent of more than 300 feet, he said, was necessary to get this view, the ascent being by an easy inclined plane and not a stair. This Campanile fell in 1902, but the work of rebuilding it has begun. Having stood 800 years or more, the lecturer hoped it would stand 800 years more, or longer.

Adjoining the church, views were shown of the Doges Palace. Mr. van Laer said of many of these buildings, they were object lessons in municipal architecture on account of their regularity and symmetry. Many exquisite decorations of these palaces were exhibited, the walls and ceilings being decorated by Tintorello and other celebrated painters.

The two granite columns Monoliths brought from Tyre in the twelfth century were among the interesting views exhibited. One of these was crowned with the winged lion of St. Mark and the other with the statue of St. Theodore, the first patron of the republic. Between these columns was formerly the place of public execution.

A number of beautiful churches, exquisite in design and elaborate in decoration were shown by the lecturer. Some of these were built to avert the ravages of the plague and some for different orders of monks. Among these were the churches of St. John and St. Paul.

The celebrated Bridge of Sighs was another Venetian sight full of interest, but Mr. van Laer said it belonged to the seventeenth century.

Among other views shown were the bridge of the Rialto, the centre of commerce and trade, the gondolas and gondoliers, the palace where Robert Browning died and which is the home of his artist son, the House of Desdemona and the Bronze Horses, which adorned the triumphs of Nero at Rome.

Most interesting of all were the many beautiful pictures of St. Mark's, which is the centre of Venice itself. Standing before the Altar, the lecturer said, we are awed, subdued, but satisfied.

On account of the occupation of the Casino by the fair for the hospital, October 21, the meeting of the Club for that date will be held in the Congregational church.

CONSIDER MANY PETITIONS

Big Batch of Routine Business Occupies Time of the City Fathers.

REPORTS PRESENTED

Raceway Cleaned—P. S. C. Requests—Tax Exemptions—Building Permits.

Aside from the more important happenings at the October meeting of the Common Council last night, there was a great amount of routine business that made the session a long one. Harry, Warren, recently appointed a special patrolman, got tired of the job and resigned that he might return to the employ of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company. The resignation was accepted.

Mr. Tyler reported back the petition of Health Officer L. R. Thurlow regarding the matter of cleaning the raceway between Tier's pond and Watchung avenue, stating that the water-way had been cleaned.

The Central Realty Company and others, owners of property on Evergreen avenue, asked the Common Council to accept that thoroughfare as all the legal provisions have been complied with. The matter was referred to the street committee.

In a petition Mrs. Eleanor Williams, of West Seventh street, complained about what she termed a gross error in a sewer assessment on property on Darrow avenue owned by her. She claimed that she had previously paid one assessment and had only been allowed exemption on 113 feet of property. The matter was referred.

The Public Service Corporation informed the Common Council that it had placed one electric light at Denmark road and Dixie Lane and two in Pruden's Alley, as ordered.

The Public Service Corporation asked for permission to make openings on East and West Front street, East and West Second street, Madison avenue and Watchung avenue to extend the underground electric light connections. The matter was referred to the street committee.

Building Inspector T. O. Doane reported that during September twenty-three building permits were granted, and City Engineer A. J. Gavett reported the granting of twenty-two sewer permits during the same period.

The attention of the Common Council was directed by City Engineer Gavett to certain culverts placed on East Second street and West Fourth street by the Public Service Corporation, which have caused a stoppage of surface water, and he requested that the company be instructed to remedy the trouble. The matter was referred to the street committee.

H. G. Adams, clerk of the District Court, reported the receipts for September to be $97.55, the expenditures $27.25, leaving a balance of $70.30.

In response to petitions from N. H. Saxton and others and C. C. Yaeger, one four-way hydrant was ordered placed on West Eighth street, 600 feet west from Mosroe avenue, and the city line, and one four-way hydrant at Hunter avenue and West Fourth street.

The sum of $100 was appropriated to employ additional clerical help in the office of Tax Collector J. W. Murray, Jr., in getting out the tax bills, according to a resolution by Mr. Tolles, and other resolutions by the same member, and adopted, provided for the borrowing of $3,000 for the fire fund, and the appropriation of $500 to employ an expert accountant to examine the books and accounts of the city for the years 1906-1907.

Mr. Tolles offered another resolution adjusting an error in the assessment of property in Highland Park, owned by Chandler W. Riker, it being stated that the assessment has been paid.

In response to a petition from Ida B. Hunt, her offer to redeem property on Prospect avenue, for $790, having secured equity in the same, was accepted, and she will be given a deed for the same. This is in accordance with provisions of the Martin Act, under which the city held the property.

An ordinance was introduced by Mr. Ginna establishing the building line on Madison avenue, between West Fourth and West Seventh streets, eighteen feet from the surface line, with a tes-foot sidewalk and eight foot area. It was adopted on two readings and ordered advertised.

It was agreed that when the meeting adjourned it be to meet on Monday night, October 14.

BOYS RIDE TRAIN ROOFS 24 DAYS

TWO YOUTHS ARRIVE AT CHICAGO FROM BUTTE, MONT., AFTER REMARKABLE TRIP.

TAKEN TO JUVENILE COURT

Assert Lurching Was Fierce at First—Coach Tops Give View of "Swell Guys" Inside—Prisoners Are 16 and 15 Years.

Chicago.—Two boys from Butte, Mont., who traveled the entire 1,500 miles to Chicago by clinging to the tops of passenger trains as they rushed along at 60 miles an hour, were taken before the juvenile court and told a remarkable story of long "hike" which lasted 24 days. The boys are Elmer Johnson, 16 years old, and Emmet Burke, 15 years old. They were taken up by Detectives Maher and Abbey.

"Yes, we rode the 'tops,'" said Johnson, who declares that he would now rather ride on the outside of a train than on the inside. "We left Butte on July 20 and was all the time coming. Emmet wanted to come, so one night we packed up some luncheon and went down to the yards.

"A Northern Pacific train was just about to leave. We tackled the blind baggage, as that is the only car you can climb to the top on. It has a big wheel on the side. I gave Emmet a boost and then climbed up myself We lay down on the vestibule top until it pulled out. At first we were scared and hung on for dear life. The lurching on top is something fierce and we almost got pitched off going round curves.

"From the blind baggage we would sometimes crawl back to the Pullmans on the rear. There are always lots of pipes on the tops of a Pullman a fellow can hold to. We could peek in through the ventilators and see the swell 'guys' sitting in there smoking and chewing the rag. Every once in a while a waiter would come in with a tray full of 'booze' and then they would all take a drink and laugh.

"Toward the end we got so we would crawl back to the Pullmans when the train started and look in at the people," continued the recounter. "Sometimes we would get over the dining car, and, gee! that grub would smell good.

"Coming down from Denver there was lots of slick-looking folks. In one of the cars there was a young-looking lady. She was awful thin and pale. There was a young 'guy' with her. I guess it was her husband. When we stopped at a water tank I heard him say: 'Wait till I get you home, Bess, and you will get better when you see your ma and pa. You'll get strong again and we can go to shows and have good times again.'

"The lady says, 'Do you think so, Jim? Sometimes I think that I will never be well again.' The young 'guy' got up saying he was going back to get a drink of water. He looked like he was crying to me. Soon after that the 'connie' saw us at the next stop and made us get down. He said he would knock our 'blocks' off if he caught us on top again.

"We stayed in that town 'bumming' grub until the next night, when we got one of the Burlington fast trains. Maybe we didn't go some. We had to hold on tight on that train for fair. Sometimes the train men would see us just as the train was pulling out, but too late to get at us.

"We could only ride at nights, because the trainmen could see on the top in the daylight. We would have to be careful, even at night, when we would reach a big station. When we saw the lights of a town ahead we would crawl over on the dark side and crouch down so they could not see us.

"We rode the Northern Pacific to Billings and then took the Burlington to Alliance. From Alliance we went to Bridgeport and from there into Denver. From Denver we took the Union Pacific and worked into Kansas City. At that city we struck the Chicago & Alton and came into Chicago."

GOOD REASON, TOO.

Notwithstanding Col. Bangs is only a militia colonel and never had a title in his life until a year ago, he does not like to air his colonelcy on all occasions, and for some time he has looked with disfavor upon the cards of his wife, which read: "Mrs. Colonel Bangs." The other day she told him to order her some more cards.

"Certainly, my dear," he responded, for the colonel is as gallant to his wife as most men are to other women, "but if I do I shall have that 'colonel' omitted."

"Oh, no," she protested; "what do you want to do that for?"

"Because it shouldn't be there."

"Why not? It is only a designation of who I am, and you are Colonel Bangs, aren't you?"

"Of course I am."

"Then why am I not Mrs. Colonel Bangs?"

The colonel bowed. "For the same reason, my dear," he responded, "that when I was Mr. Bangs you were not Mrs. Mr. Bangs," and the colonel won a victory.

Not a Workingman.

"How many workingmen are there in this house?" asked the census enumerator at the door.

"Dar's no workin'man in dis 'ere house, boss," replied the ebony gentleman who answered the knock.

"But, don't you live here, and"—

"Jus' 'scuse me, sah! My wife is de lady of dis 'ere house, and she does take in washin', sah!"—Yonkers Statesman.

A Convincing Argument.

"Permit me, judge," said the gratified young attorney after the decision in favor of his client had been handed down, "to thank you most sincerely. I assure you I was highly gratified to note the close attention you gave me while I was making my argument."

"Yes, I was deeply interested in your talk. You convinced me that it is possible to be at once a fool and in the right."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Trouble Now and Then.

"Do you have much trouble with cattle thieves in this part of the country?" asked the tenderfoot of Piute Pete.

"Not much," replied Piute Pete, as he poured out five fingers and put his foot on the rail. "Some times one lives after the first shot, the same necessitating an extra dose of lead, but generally we fixes them the first time.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

A Sore Subject.

"Think," said the man who takes an interest in astronomy, "of the immense journey we take, as the earth goes on its pathway, always arriving at its destination at the appointed time!"

"Aw, what's the use," exclaimed the suburban resident, "of reminding a man that he's always got to be a commuter!"—Washington Star.

One of the Two.

"Brown is either making money these days or else he is a good actor."

"What makes you think so?"

"He drops money in the collection plate at church as carelessly as a millionaire."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

THOUGHTFUL DAUGHTER.

"Thanks, awfully, Mr. Policeman, kindly see to dear mother now, she's across the road."

The Surprised Egotist.

This world is a mysterious spot
And most, it puzzles me to see
So many people who do not
In everything agree with me.
—Washington Star.

Horrible Revenge.

"I finally found a means of getting even with Brown for disturbing my sleep at six o'clock mornings with his lawn mower."

"What is it?"

"I wait till they retire for the night then start our phonograph."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Requirements.

"Do you think it requires much artistic ability to succeed in the drama, these days?"

"Yes," answered Mr. Stormington Barnes; "but in addition to being an artist you've got to be a tiptop financier."—Washington Star.

Propitious.

"Mamma, why not say my prayers in the morning instead of at night?"

"Why so?"

"There are only burglars and fire at night, but in the daytime I may be run over at any moment."—Puck.

IN THE FOG

BY

Richard Harding Davis.

COPYRIGHT, 1901, BY ROBERT HOWARD RUSSELL.

The Russian servant I had found apparently asleep, and, unless he acted a part with supreme skill, he was a stupid and ignorant boor, and as innocent of the murder as myself. There was still the Russian princess whom he had expected to find, or had pretended to expect to find, in the same room with the murdered man. I judged that she must now be either upstairs with the servant, or that she had, without his knowledge, already fled from the house. When I recalled his apparently genuine surprise at not finding her in the drawing-room, this latter supposition seemed the more probable. Nevertheless, I decided that it was my duty to make a search, and after a second hurried look for the weapon among the cushions of the divan, and upon the floor, I cautiously crossed the hall and entered the dining-room.

"The single candle was still flickering in the draught and showed only the white cloth. The rest of the room was draped in shadows. I picked up the candle, and, lifting it high above my head, moved around the corner of the table. Either my nerves were on such a stretch that no shock could strain them further, or my mind was inoculated to horrors, for I did not cry out at what I saw nor retreat from it. Immediately at my feet was the body of a beautiful woman, lying at full length upon the floor, her arms flung out on either side of her, and her white face and shoulders gleaming dully in the unsteady light of the candle. Around her throat was a great chain of diamonds, and the light played upon these and made them flash and blaze in tiny flames. But the woman who wore them was dead, and I was so certain as to how she had died that without an instant's hesitation I dropped on my knees beside her and placed my hand above her heart. My fingers again touched the thin slit of a wound. I had no doubt in my mind but that this was the Russian princess, and when I lowered the candle to her face I was assured that this was so. Her features showed the finest lines of both the Slav and the Jewess; the eyes were black, the hair blue-black and wonderfully heavy, and her skin, even in death, was rich in color. She was a surpassingly beautiful woman.

"I rose and tried to light another candle with the one I held, but I found that my hand was so unsteady that I could not keep the wicks together. It was my intention to again search for this strange dagger which had been used to kill both the English boy and the beautiful princess, but before I could light the second candle I heard footsteps descending the stairs, and the Russian servant appeared in the doorway.

"My face was in darkness, or I am sure that at the sight of it he would have taken alarm, for at that moment I was not sure but that this man himself was the murderer. His own face was plainly visible to me in the light from the hall, and I could see that it wore an expression of dull bewilderment. I stepped quickly toward him and took a firm hold upon his wrist.

"'She is not there,' he said. 'The Princess has gone. They have all gone.'

"'Who have gone?' I demanded. 'Who else has been here?'

"'The two Englishmen,' he said.

"'What two Englishmen?' I demanded. 'What are their names?'

"The man now saw by my manner that some question of great moment hung upon his answer, and he began to protest that he did not know the names of the visitors and that until that evening he had never seen them.

"I guessed that it was my tone which frightened him, so I took my hand off his wrist and spoke less eagerly.

"'How long have they been here?' I asked, 'and when did they go?'

"He pointed behind him toward the drawing-room.

"'One sat there with the Princess,' he said; 'the other came after I had placed the coffee in the drawing-room. The two Englishmen talked together and the Princess returned here to the table. She sat there in that chair, and I brought her cognac and cigarettes. Then I sat outside upon the bench. It was a feast day, and I had been drinking. Pardon, Excellency, but I fell asleep. When I awoke, your Excellency was standing by me, but the Princess and the two Englishmen had gone. That is all I know.'

"I believed that the man was telling me the truth. His fright had passed, and he was now apparently puzzled, but not alarmed.

"'You must remember the names of the Englishmen,' I urged. 'Try to think. When you announced them to the Princess what name did you give?'

"At this question he exclaimed with pleasure, and, beckoning to me, ran hurriedly down the hall and into the drawing-room. In the corner furthest from the screen was the piano, and on it was a silver tray. He picked this up and, smiling with pride at his own intelligence, pointed at two cards that lay upon it. I took them up and read the names engraved upon them."

The American paused abruptly, and glanced at the faces about him. "I read the names," he repeated. He spoke with great reluctance.

"'Continue!' cried the Baronet, sharply.

"I read the names," said the American with evident distaste, "and the family name of each was the same. They were the names of two brothers. One is well known to you. It is that of the African explorer of whom this gentleman was just speaking. I mean the Earl of Chetney. The other was the name of his brother, Lord Arthur Chetney."

The men at the table fell back as though a trapdoor had fallen open at their feet.

"Lord Chetney?" they exclaimed in chorus. They glanced at each other and back to the American with every expression of concern and disbelief.

"It is impossible!" cried the Baronet. "Why, my dear sir, young Chetney only arrived from Africa yesterday. It was so stated in the evening papers."

The jaw of the American set in a resolute square, and he pressed his lips together.

"You are perfectly right, sir," he said, "Lord Chetney did arrive in London yesterday morning, and yesterday night I found his dead body."

The youngest member present was the first to recover. He seemed much less concerned over the identity of the murdered man than at the interruption of the narrative.

"Oh, please let him go on!" he cried. "What happened then? You say you found two visiting cards. How do you know which card was that of the murdered man?"

The American, before he answered, waited until the chorus of exclamations had ceased. Then he continued as though he had not been interrupted.

"The instant I read the names upon the cards," he said, "I ran to the screen and, kneeling beside the dead man, began a search through his pockets. My hand at once fell upon a card-case, and I found on all the cards it contained the title of the Earl of Chetney. His watch and cigarette-case also bore his name. These evidences, and the fact of his bronzed skin, and that his cheekbones were worn with fever, convinced me that the dead man was the African explorer, and the boy who had fled past me in the night was Arthur, his younger brother.

"I was so intent upon my search that I had forgotten the servant, and I was still on my knees when I heard a cry behind me. I turned, and saw the man gazing down at the body in abject horror.

"Before I could rise, he gave another cry of terror, and, flinging himself into the hall, raced toward the door to the street. I leaped after him, shouting to him to halt, but before I could reach the hall he had torn open the door, and I saw him spring out into the yellow fog. I cleared the steps in a jump and ran down the garden walk just as the gate clicked in front of me. I had it open on the instant, and, following the sound of the man's footsteps, I raced after him across the open street. He, also, could hear me, and he instantly stopped running, and there was absolute silence. He was so near that I almost fancied I could hear him panting, and I held my own breath to listen. But I could distinguish nothing but the dripping of the mist about us, and from far off the music of the Hungarian band, which I had heard when I first lost myself.

MILK ANALYSES HAS PROVED BENEFICIAL

Milk analyses by health officers of the city and borough show that the milk supplied by local dairymen is freer from injurious disease bacteria than before the present system of dairy inspection was put into effect. The work of analysis is done by Leon Thurlow, of the city Board of Health, and Frank Dencklau, of the borough. Samples of milk from local milk dealers are secured and analyzed and the tabulated result of such analysis is posted in the office of Tax Collector George F. Brown, on Somerse street. At the meeting of the Borough Board of Health, last night, the present system of milk analysis was commended and the practise of posting the results of the analysis was endorsed.

Mr. Kenney read a paper before the Board in which he alluded to "certain conditions touching upon the public health or nerves, covered by rules that cannot be enforced except by diplomacy." He enumerated a number of these conditions, and urged consideration by citizens for their remedy. He alluded in the paper to the badly kept crosswalks, which instead of forming dry passages across a street in the rain, give the water a chance to gather where they are sunken, with the resuult that in many cases they cannot be used. He also alluded to the uneven laying of sidewalks, where pools could gather on sunken flag stones and make wet feet a certainty to the pedestrian. In this connection he spoke of water confined on lawns by abutting flag stones and the unsanitary results. Outhouses of ramshackle appearance were also discussed, and the paper dealt at length with the carelessness of tenants in the matter of disreputable looking backyards.

Match Head Starts Fire.

A still alarm called part of the fire department to the home of Hibbard Masters on West Seventh street at 8:15 o'clock. A servant had gone to the furnace room and in striking a match, part of the head flew into a basket of excelsior. A blaze started that spread to the first floor beams and filled the house with blinding smoke. The firemen found the family trying to carry Mr. Masters from the second floor. He recently suffered a paralytic stroke and has been helpless. Chief Jennings and Patrolman George Dobson took charge of Mr. Masters' removal and carried him to the home of William M. Stillman. The fire gave the department an hour's fight and caused a loss of about $100.

Mrs. Mary Metz.

Mrs. Mary Metz, widow of Henry Metz, of Detroit, died this morning at the home of her son-in-law, Rev. J. P. Taylor, of West Seventh street. Heart trouble was the cause. She was 89 years old. She is survived by three daughters and two sons; Mrs. Charles B. Whitney, of Chicago, formerly of Detroit; Mrs. J. P. Taylor and Miss Annie Metz, of this city; Howard Metz, of Chicago and Charles A. Metz, of New Rochelle, N. Y.

EXEMPTS HOLD REUNION

Former Fire Fighters Talk of "Old Days" While Round the Festive Board.

"The old days" in the history of fighting fires in this city formed the topic for discussion in the speeches given around Ted Cleveley's banquet board when the Plainfield Exempt Firemen's Association gathered to celebrate their twentieth anniversary last night.

The members first gathered early at their rooms in the Coward building. There the roll was called, showing seventy-one active members, of which nearly fifty were present. The history of the organization was read by Guillermo Thorn, a charter member. President V. W. Nash was in charge of the meeting.

E. T. Humphreys, of Nutley, secretary of the State Exempts Association, gave an address before the organization and presented life membership badges to V. W. Nash, D. W. Littell, W. A. Woodruff, E. M. Laing, J. O. Cranston and Guillermo Thorn, of the Plainfield exempts, and David Bodine, of the borough exempts. The badges are heavy gold medals, and are awarded to those exempts who have served three consecutive years as delegates to the State convention. Mr. Humphreys spoke of the place held by D. W. Littell in the association and in the State organization as president. He is now serving as chief executive of the State organization for the third time, and will be urged to accept renomination.

Other speakers were D. W. Littell, president of the State organization; V. W. Nash, president of the local association; Nicholas Snyder, of Trenton, treasurer of the State organization; V. W. Nash, Jr., attorney for the State organization; Charles H. Hand, Chief Woolston, of the North Plainfield fire department; L. B. Woolston, and L. E. Barkelew.

MAY NOT ALLOW P. S. C. TO LAY DOUBLE TRACKS.

City Fathers About Evenly Divided On Proposition.

The Public Service Corporation petioned the Common Council, at the October meeting, last night, for permission to rearrange and double track its line on Watchung avenue and East Front street, between the Watchung avenue "stand" and Somerset street, and the mater was referred to the street committee. No action was taken on the petition at that time, but it is believed that it will come up again, possibly at the adjourned meeting to be held Monday night. This action was foretpld by The Daily Press several days ago.

The company has for some time been anxious to double track its line between the points named, and are now particularly so before the brick payment is laid along that thoroughfare. It the Common Council should grant permission to make the improvement it would mean a revenue of $5,000 to the municipality, as the company's share of the expense of laying the pavement. Under the present conditions the city would receive but one-third of the cost of the improvement from the company.

It is understood that a majority of the property-owners on East Front street and Watchung avenue favor the improvement, and have been working for it. Among those who are said to want the extra tracks are Woodhull & Martin and Dr. Albert Pittis, who own considerable property on East Front street.

The members of the Common Council took a recess during the evening to consider the petition, but after a discussion lasting more than an hour, it was found that there were not sufficient votes to grant it. It is said that Councilmen Tyler, Hibbard, Mellick, Ginna and Daniel were among those who opposed the granting of the petition. Realizing the strength of the opposition those who favored the improvement did not attempt to force the issue at the time.

Under the existing ordinances it is not necessary for the company to secure the consents of the property-owners, the matter being left entirely in the hands of the Common Council. It was agreed, however, that under no circumstances must the brick pavement work be held up by reason of any improvements contemplated.

FIRE LADDIES TO PARADE

Senator Frelinghuysen to Lead 1,000 Marchers at Somerville Tomorrow.

N. Y. EXEMPTS COMING

Morristown, Flemington and Hackettstown Firemen to Participate —"Harry Wilkes" An Attraction.

The firemen's parade at Somerville, tomorrow, promises to be an event of more than passing interest. It is estimated that at least 1,000 firemen will be in the line of march. Plainfield and North Plainfield will be represented there, although neither will take active part in the celebration. State Senator Joseph T. Frelinghuysen will be the grand marshal and his aides will be from among the most prominent citizens of the town. The Hudson River Military Academy Cadet Corps will act as escort.

Among the notable to be in line will be the Exempt Firemen's Association, of New York, with Bain's Sixty-ninth Regiment Band. Other companies will come from Pennsylvania, Morristown, Hackettstown and Flemington. The line of march as mapped out covers the town thoroughly. The firemen will be viewed by the Board of Commissions from the balcony of the TenEyck House. One of the attractions will be the globe-trotter, Harry Wilkes, (record 2:13¼) 32 years old, hitched to a high wheel sulky. Harry, owned by William J. Keys, of Somerville, will follow the New York veterans and will be driven by an expert horseman.

Somerville Engine Co. will have its headquarters at the Ten Eyck House and will entertain Washington Eengine Co. there. Resolute Hook and Ladder Co. will be the guest of Central Hook and Ladder Company and headquarters will be at the H. and L. house. They will dine in the Second Reformed chapel. The Lincoln Chemical Co. will entertain the Slatington Fire Department at the engine house on Warren street. Dinner will be served in the First M. E. chapel. West End Hose Co. will entertain the Hackettstown Fire Department. They will dine in St. John's parish house.

The Exempt Firemen of New York will be fed at the Somerset. Ex-Senator Wm. J. Keys, Wm. J. Logan and Job C. Kenyon, members of the old N. Y. Volunteer Fire Department, and A. B. Rohn, Jr., and Joshua Doughty, Jr., ex-Chiefs of the Somerville department, form the committee appointed to entertain them.

MISS NISCHWITZ WEDS RICHARD LAYTON BELLIS

PLAINFIELD GIRL THE BRIDE OF SOMERVILLE MAN.

Miss Minnie May Nischwitz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Nischwitz, of Fairview avenue, became the wife of Richard Layton Bellis, of Somerville, at a quiet wedding yesterday afternoon at the home of her parents. The ceremony, in which two rings were used, was performed by Rev. George A. Warner, rector of Holy Cross church, at 6 o'clock. Only the relatives and a few friends of the couple were present, and the ceremony was performed in the parlor, handsomely decorated with cut flowers and palms, in an effective green and white scheme.

The bride wore a lace robe and carried a lace handkerchief which had been carried by the groom's grandmother at her wedding fifty-three years ago. She was attended by Miss Harriet Ruth Nischwitz, her sister, as maid of honor. Miss Nischwitz was gowned in white Persian lawn, heavily embroidered. The groom was attended by William Henry Nischwitz, brother of the bride. Miss Alice Field, dressed in white, acted as flower girl, and her brother, Roy Field, was ring bearer. Fred W. Hammond and Mrs. F. L. Field played the Lohengrin wedding march for the ceremony, Mr. Hammond furnishing the violin obligato to Mrs. Field's rendition on the piano.

After the ceremony, a wedding supper was served in the dining room. Parker was caterer. The dining room and hall were effectively decorated with autumn leaves. At the conclusion of the reception, bride and groom left for a honeymoon sojourn at Mount Pocono. They will be at home to their friends at their new home in Somerville after November 1.

Mr. Bellis is the son of Lewis A. Bellis, of Doughty avenue, Somerville. He is employed by the Great Northern Paper Co., Wall street, New York. The bride has for some time been an active church worker at Trinity Reformed church, where she formerly taught in the Sunday-school.

Rev. Father C. F. Checlzzl.

AFRICAN PRIEST TO SPEAK

Sunday's Meeting at Y. M. C. A. to be Addressed by "Eminent Philosopher."

HE'S A PHYSYLLABICIST

Has Scheme for Making a Colored Nation In Africa and Some Psychological Religious Beliefs.

"Rev. Father C. F. Checlzzli, B. Sc., M. A. F. R. S. S., former priest of the Coptic Church of Gondor, Abyssinia, East Africa, and at present theological, ethnological and historical preacher and traveler of the world, the defender of Apostolic inspiration," and "a Christian gentleman and man of great learning" will be at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon. He will speak on the "abstrusive subject:" "Was Jesus the Son of God?" and says he will give "an ethnological, historical and psychologically religious talk on the East African."

The priest comes to this city from Wilkesbarre, Pa., where he delivered a series of sermons and lectures. For the past three years he has been touring the United States and Canada, and says he has spent the time delivering sermons and lectures on the abstrusive subjects—"Does Immortality Constitute a Hereafter?" "Shall the Blacks Return to Africa?" "Was Jonah in a Physical Fish's Belly, or a Ship Called the 'Great Fish?'" "Can the Ethiopian Phychologically equal His Fair Brother?" etc. The heads of the various colleges, churches and associations before which the priest has spoken on these subjects, class him as "one of the remarkable philosophers, theologians and scholars of the age."

The African priest is at present in town and in appearance is a powerful, well-built colored man, with bold features and a forceful "easy" style of diction. He stands well over 6 feet in height. In an interview today he stated that he had traveled all over the world, mingling with all classes of his own race. He claims that out of the "psychical fires" of the Southerners to the negroes "a moulded people shall come forth, superior in morals, more advanced in virtue and religious education than the Southern whites as an average. He has not always been deceived with acclamations, even by his own people, but says he has "had damage suits against southern railroad officials and civil official threats, not to speak of hostility on the part of the negroes in some parts of the south.

Checlzzli is an enthusiastic speaker when he talks about his experiences and his beliefs. He has an immense vocabulary, consisting mainly of five or six syllable words, but speaks English perfectly and with great power of expression. He has a pet theory that the colored people will soon be a nation of their own. "There on the muddy banks of the Congo," he says, "shall a flag be raised by the blacks, driving out the outrageous Leopold and his diabolical messengers, and with a shout answered in East Africa and Asia, a psychological combination shall bring all the blacks and so-called yellow together to control Africa and Asia, the Eastern and southern Pacific, the Red Sea, Indian Ocean, and South Atlantic"—evidently a formidable naval power in time to come.

County Court Sentences.

John Sprague, who set fire to his father's house on West Front street on a grudge in July was sentenced to the Reformatory by Judge Atwater at the session of the county court at Elizabeth today. He pleaded guilty of the charge, asserting that he deliberately started the fire "to get even" with his father for an alleged wrong. Missouri Hurling, the colored servant who recently robbed her employer, D. M. Runyon, of Arlington avenue, was also brought up for trial. She pleaded guilty, but as the valuables were recovered and the charge was not pressed, sentence was suspended. Sentence was also suspended in the case of William Metzler, of Clark Township, who stole some chickens from Andrew Gibson's farm.

In connection with the event there will be an entertainment and speeches by well-known State officers and other prominent in the order. The committee in charge of the celebration has prepared an elaborate program which will suitably mark the occasion.

Franklin Council is the oldest of the order in this city, being instituted October 6, 1887. The organization was perfected in what was known as Sons of Temperance Hall, located at that time in the City National Bank building on East Front street. Although the charter list was a large one, the membership is now over 300 and steadily increasing. The council is in excellent condition financially and otherwise. At the celebration a historical sketch will be read and addresses made by some of the older members. Following the program refreshments will be served.

Ladies' Auxiliary Dance.

Somerset Court Adjourns.

Judge Vail, of Elizabeth, finished his work in the Somerset county courts at Somerville yesterday afternoon, for the present at least, when the case of the Conkling Lumber Co. against John Cross was tried. Suit was to recover $362 on a lumber bill and the plaintiff secured a verdict for the full amount. No other cases were ready and adjournment was taken until Monday, when Judge Schenck will take up the trial of Justices' Appeals.

Angleman Failed to Appear.

Clarence Angleman, who was arrested as a result of the lemon throwing episode at the North Avenue station Monday night, failed to appear when his case was called in the city court this morning. Judge Runyon gave the police instructions to see that he was rounded up and the matter will be heard tomorrow morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. McGee, of Orchard place, the borough, gave an informal dinner party at their home last night. Covers were laid for ten.

YALE CLUB GIVES PRIZES

Alumni At Annual Meeting Awards Three Cups to Bright Pupils.

CHOOSE NEW OFFICERS

E. A. Stevenson Elected President—To Attend Princeton Games—Promote College's Interests.

Plans for rousing Yale spirit in the local schools were discussed, new officers were elected, and the award of club prizes to local school boys was announced at the seventeenth annual meeting of the Yale Club held at the Casino last night. There was a good turnout of Plainfield Yale men, and at the conclusion of the evening's business, there was a college song, smoking and refreshments.

In accordance with a custom of the club, the award of the big silver cups for best work in all-round scholastic athletics was announced at the meeting. William C. Douglass, of the city high school; Otis Averil, of Leal's school, and Clarence R. Steiner, of the North Plainfield High School, were awarded the trophies, as having the highest standing in each school. The twenty-five dollar prize for the best examination standing in entrance examinations at Yale this fall was not announced, because the executive committee of the club has not yet heard the report from the college faculty as to the standing of local freshmen who took the examinations.

In the annual election of officers Edward S. Stevenson, last year's vice president, was elected president for the coming year, succeeding T. M. Day, who has served as president for two years. Clifford McGee was elected vice president and Lewis A. Williams, Jr., was re-elected secretary-treasurer. The new executive committee is to consist of Harry Lovell, Rufus S. Rowland and Henry L. DeForest. The question of the annual dinner to be given by the club was brought up for discussion and referred to the executive committee. It is the purpose of the club to secure a special car and make a trip to New Haven to attend the annual Yale-Princeton football game to be played there this fall. For the purpose of furthering Yale influence in the local schools, it was decided that a file of the Yale Alumni Weekly be kept at the city and borough high schools and at Leal's school. W. C. Hyatt, Elliott Cutter and Thatcher Brown were admitted as new members to the club.

JOHN MATTOX, VETERAN OF MANY BATTLES, DIES.

Marched With Sherman to the Sea. Wife Died Five Weeks Ago Monday.

John Mattox, aged sixty-five years, a Civil War veteran and a brother of Mrs. James H. Huntington and the late Robert Mattox, of this city, died at his home in Newark, last week, exactly five weeks after the death of his wife, which occurred August 27. His death came suddenly although he had been ailing for some time. Grief over the loss of his wife hastened his end. He was a sufferer from asthma and heart disease for more than a year.

Mr. Mattox fought with Company G, Thirteenth New Jersey Volunteers, in twenty-six battles. He accompanied General Sherman in his march to the sea and was wounded in one of the engagements. He entered the service August 4, 1862, and received an honorable discharge June 6, 1865, from Harewood Hospital, Washington, D. C.

Mr. Mattox was mustered into the Thirteenth Regiment, August 25, 1862, and left for the front six days later. He served in Gordon's Third Brigade, Second Division, Bank's Old Corps; William's Division, Second Army Corps, Army of Virginia; Army of the Potomac, Twelfth Army Corps, Department of Cumberland, and with the Twentieth Army Corps, military division of the Mississippi. He fought at Gettysburg, Antietam and Chancellorsville and was at the siege of Savannah.

Mr. Mattox started in the undertaking business thirty-five years ago and had conducted it ever since. He was born in Newark and lived there all his life. December 25, 1857, he married Catherine Johnson. He is survived by three daughters. They are: Mrs. Sydney Downs, Mrs. William Roberts and Miss Susan Mattox, all of Newark.

Funeral of Henry L. Nixon.

The funeral of Henry L. Nixon, colored, who died in Muhlenberg Hospital last week, was held at Runyon & Son's parlors yesterday afternoon. It was conducted by Rev. F. D. Tildon, pastor of Bethel chapel, and was attended by a gathering of friends. Burial was made at Hillside.

MRS. GIDEON POLON SUCCUMBS TO INJURIES

WAS BADLY CRUSHED BY OVERTURNING OF CHICKEN COOP.

Mrs. Gideon C. Polon, who was badly crushed by the falling of a chicken-coop in a yard next to her home on Race street, last Friday, died in Muhlenberg Hospital yesterday afternoon. Although her injuries comprised a broken leg, three broken ribs and a fractured jaw, it was thought at first that she had a chance to recover but complications set in. She began sinking slowly Monday afternoon despite every effort of the physicians.

The accident that resulted in Mrs. Polon's death was brought about by her curiosity. Several laborers were moving the chicken-coop and had placed it on supports previous to getting it on a truck. Mrs. Polon became interested in the work and went over to get a closer view. She was standing alongside the coop when it became unbalanced and fell over on her before the movers could shout a warning. The weight pinned her down and she was unconscious when rescued.

Mrs. Polon was forty-nine years old and was the daughter of Mrs. Ryan, of West Fourth street. She leaves five children, Mrs. Frank Conger, Mrs. Edward Conger, William, Andrew and Frank Polon. She is also survived by a sister, Miss Margaret Ryan, and one brother, Andrew Ryan, of West Fourth street.

The funeral arrangements have not been made.

BOROUGH FIRE FIGHTERS TO PARADE AT AMBOY

COMBINATION WAGON WILL BE IN LINE AT BIG CELEBRATION.

The North Plainfield combination chemical truck, drawn by the borough fire team, "Nip" and "Tuck," will be in line in the firemen's parade at Perth Amboy Thursday, October 17. Arrangements have been completed by the borough council fire committee and Chief Howard Woolston for the temporary protection from possible fire on that day and the local outfit is now free to go and take part in the parade. Lieutenant Elden Smalley and Fireman William Gaub from borough fire headquarters will go with the truck, and Smalley is to drive the team. The men will be spick and span in new uniforms adn hats and the wagon will be spruced up and polished to present the best possible appearance.

The truck will be driven down Wednesday, the day before the parade. The local boys will be entertained and accommodated for the night by Protection Hook and Ladder Company, of Perth Amboy, which is to have apparatus in line. Chief Howard Woolston is completing arrangements for three call men to be on duty at headuarters the day of the parade in place of the absent regulars. The hose and supply wagon is to be equipped with hand extinguishers and horses will be hired to draw it. It is believed that arrangements can be entered into with the city department, in case any assistance is needed during the day.

WILL VIEW "ABOUT TOWN."

Members of the Shuberts' Staff to See Performance Tonight.

The production of "About Town," which will be given at the New Plainfield theatre tonight, will be witnessed by a large representation from the Shubert offices. The show is owned by the Shuberts and Lee Shubert and members of his booking staff are anxious to pass on the performance before it goes to Perth Amboy. It will appear in the latter place tomorrow night as the opening attraction of Manager Counihan's new Majestic theatre.

The company is headed by Dave Lewis, a well known Broadway comedian, and includes many other well known principals beside a chorus of fifty. The production is one of the most pretentious booked in recent weeks.

Warrant Out For Miss Seymour.

As a further chapter in the troubles of Miss Donna Seymour, whose "Bluebeard" company came to grief in this city, Monday night, Hector Roy, of New York, secured a warrant yesterday for the arrest of the manager-actress. He alleges that she swindled him out of $885 on the strength of appointing him treasurer of the show. It is understood that Miss Seymour went to Wilmington, Del., and an officer was sent to that place. The remaining members of the troupe were enabled to leave the city today through the generosity of Mayor Fisk and several citizens.

CAUCUSES OF REGULARS

Delegates of First and Fourth Wards Decide Upon Local Ticket.

MONTGOMERY WINS OUT

Suydam and Randolph Also to Be Named for Councilmen-at-Large —Runyon and Arnold to Be On Ticket.

For City Judge
William Nelson Runyon

For City Treasurer
William F. Arnold

For Councilmen-at-Large
Francis L. Montgomery, 2d Ward
Charles Randolph, 3d Ward
Harry B. Suydam, 4th Ward

Such was the ticket agreed upon at caucuses of the delegates of the First and Fourth ward last night, and as these delegates hold the balance of power, it is unquestionable that their selections will be ratified at the Republican city convention tomorrow night. The convention will be called to order at the Casino promptly at 8 o'clock by City Chairman Winfield Scott Angleman.

At the First ward caucus held last night in the office of the city clerk, each delegate responded when his name was called. Such was the case also at Judge Newcorn's office when the Fourth ward delegates met. Every delegate was a regular and therefore all was harmony. The delegates of the Second ward, all of whom are Colbyites, and those of the Third ward, mostly Colbyites, were not invited. It is said that the Second ward New Idea men favor the nomination of R. Henry Depew in place of Councilman Montgomery, while some in the third advocate the selection of Joseph Shellabarber. Many disinterested citizens in the Second to a degree support Edward E. Iremonger, but the regulars will not allow Mr. Montgomery to be "turned down" holding that he has proven his efficiency as a member of the city's law-making body. Soreness on the part of a few Colbyite generals in the Second, it is said, has stopped the New Idea from endorsing Mr. Iremonger.

Last night, it was unanimously decided to bring about the renomination of City Judge Runyon although he is the recognized New Idea leader in Union county. This is looked upon as a question of expediency it is argued by the regulars. As for City Treasurer Arnold there never has been the slightest opposition to him from any quarter.

Although Charles Randolph has removed from the Fourth to the Third ward during his term of office, it was deemed proper to renominate him on his record. There was a free and full discussion of a number of candidates from the Third and Fourth wards suggested to nomination and the upshot of it all was the selection of Mr. Randolph and Harry B. Suydam.

BIRD'S NEST IN POOL POCKET.

Sparrows Raised a Family in It During the Summer Vacation.

Patrick Higgins, a Bloomfield fireman, with two New York friends, visited the fire house in Orange street Bloomfield, yesterday, and while there it was suggested that they play a game of pool. Higgins informed the visitors that the pool parlor had been closed during the summer, and that a game was in order.

When the trio entered the parlor they were greeted by the exciting chirping of a number of sparrows.

"Did you ever see the like of that?" remarked Higgins; "the birds think they own the place. Maybe they have a nest in here."

Higgins went poking about, and presently uncovered in one of the pockets of the pool table a nest with a half dozen birds, in the centre of which was the cue ball. The sparrows had raised a family during the summer vacation. The pool game was postponed.

Mrs. Metz's Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Metz, who died yesterday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. P. Taylor, of West Seventh street, will be held in Grace church, Friday morning at 11 o'clock. Burial will be at Hillside.

Miss Ursula Rowland and Miss Adriance, of this city, were guests last week of Rev. O. Mills Jones and Miss Jones, at Bladon Parsonage, Blenheim Park, Woodstock, near Oxford, England.

KING AND PRESIDENT HONOR EPISCOPALIANS

GIFTS FROM RULERS FORMALLY PRESENTED AT RICHMOND.

With the Bishop of London preaching a sermon in Bruton Parish church, Virginia, the oldest church in point of continuous use of the United States, the services at Richmond, Va., on Saturday, attending the presentation and acceptance of a lectern from President Roosevelt and a Bible from King Edward, were of a peculiar historical interest. After prayers the lectern was presented by Bishop Satterlee, of the diocese of Washington, speaking for the President of the United States, and was received by Bishop Randolph, of the diocese of Southern Virginia. The Bible was then presented by the Bishop of London, who conveyed a message from the American church from King Edward. It was received by Presiding Bishop Tuttle. The bronze bas-relief memorial, given by the American Episcopal church in memory of the life and service of the Rev. Robert Hunt, minister of the colony which landed at Jamestown on May 13, 1607, was installed in the tower of the church, and was on exhibition today for the first time.

The newly organized Young People's Society of the First Baptist church has chosen Friday night of each week as the regular time for meeting, except when the members take charge of the Wednesday night service, which will be once a month.

Borough Drunks Fined.

Recorder Dolliver collected fines from the three offenders who faced him at the borough court Monday night as a result of too much strong drink Saturday night. Edward Vail, and Mike Gleason, being old offenders, were touched for $5 apiece by the law, and Fred Conklin left the court-room with $3 less ballast in his pockets.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

There is a strong sentiment not only among the players but the fans as well, in favor of the Y. M. C. A. maintaining an independent team next season, thus making it possible for the lover's of the game to see contests with outside teams, such as Columbia, Englewood Field Club, Crescent A. C., Princeton Prep and others of that strength. It is acknowledged that the fans get tired of seeing a round of games with the same clubs and the proposition to make the association team independent seems quite likely to prevail. The matter will come up for further consideration in the near future when plans for another year will be formulated.

The last local baseball games of the season will be played at Crescent Oval on Saturday, when a double-header will be the attraction, between the Clinton Avenues, champions of the amateur league, Scotch Plains and Y. M. C. A. The first contest between the champions and the Plains will be called at 2 o'clock and the second one between the champions and the association boys at 4 o'clock. Both games will be played for the price of one admission.

Sentiment is growing in favor of the Y. M. C. A. playing independent baseball next season. Since the first mention of it in The Daily Press of Monday, a large number of fans have become enthusiastic over the proposition and sincerely hope that the management of the association team will adopt the plan. They realize that it will afford an excellent opportunity to see strong amateur teams and some fast ball.

The chances are very strong that the Clinton Avenues will not be a member of the amateur league next season if one is formed. It is stated on excellent authority that the team expects to play professional ball next year, booking games for Saturday and Sunday with clubs throughout the State and in the Metropolitan district. In case this is done the profits will be divided equally among the players. It is also said that Manager Dorflinger will be succeeded by another man to be chosen later by the club.

With these changes in the Clinton Avenue team's plans, there will also come the retirement of President John Kriney, of the club. Judging from remarks made at the Y. M. C. A. dinner, Mr. Kriney and the team are not enjoying harmonious relations and he will undoubtedly retire from his position this year. He claims that the club has frequently done things without his knowledge and without even consulting him and he is tired of this way of running the club. In any event there are likely to be a number of changes in the makeup of the team before another season rolls around.

It is to be regretted that Walter Nelson, formerly catcher for the Y. M. C. A. team decided to play professional baseball the latter part of the season. He is popular here and the fans would like to see him play in Plainfield. It is possible to secure him for next year's team it should be done without delay.

GOLF.

The Park Club team will meet the team from the Middlebrook Country Club, Bound Brook, on the local course in the third and deciding match of the season. Each team has won a game and considerable interest is being shown in the forthcoming match.

The first tournament over the Salisbury links, Garden City, will be held on Saturday. It will be at eighteen holes, medal play, and will be open to all subscribers. The handicap is under the auspices of William J. Youngs and A. Van Cortlandt, Jr., president and secretary of the Midland Golf Club. Entries should be sent to the latter by October 17. There will be first and second net score prizes and the Garden City Company adds a cup for the best gross score.

Next to the brokers of the Stock, Produce and Cotton exchanges the oldest trade golf organizations of Greater New York is that of the Eastern Trades Golf Association. The occupation is to make steam radiators and sell things wholesale to plumbers. There is also a Western Trades Golf Association and the national convention of the craftsmen is each year voted to a place that keeps up a good golf course, so that the teams of the two sections may fight out a match on even terms. The Eastern players hold their next tournament on Thursday at the Ardsley Club and a feature will be a match with the golfers of the New York City Association of Master Steam and Hot Water Fitters.

Baltusrol's invitation tournament on October 18 and 19 is unusual in that only players handicapped at 9 or under from par at their home clubs may start. There are four fine cups for sets of eight as match play prizes, besides medal play prizes in the qualifying round and closing handicap. Competitive play among the members this month will centre in the matches for the Baltusrol and duffers' cups, except that on October 26 the team plays at the Morris County Golf Club and on October 30 the eighteen hole qualifying round for the club championship will be decided, with eight to keep on. The women's championship of the club will be on October 21, 22 and 23. There will be weekly competitions at Baltusrol throughout November, one feature being the play for the treasurer's cup, while there will also be special competitions on election day and Thanksgiving day. The tournament committee consists of Thomas C. Ennever, chairman; William L. Garey, James A. Tyng and Louis Heller.

Kentucky blue grass could not be induced to thrive on the Atlanta Athletic Club course—the longest in the South—and the putting greens are being turfed with Bermuda grass, according to a note in Golf. Bermuda grass is scarce and as the greens are full 100 feet square the task is a difficult one. The result will be watched with interest by Southern golfers, for on many of the links Bermuda grass is regarded as too coarse except for the fair green and they have sanded putting greens in preference.

FOOTBALL.

Princeton and West Point were the last of the football teams to enter the competitive stage of football this season, and Princeton made a bigger total of points in her first game than any of the elevens in her class. The hard work the Princeton candidates have been subject to in their daily practice had its effect on their playing against Stevens. They had an opponent which did not serve to test the abilities of the team, individually or collectively, to any great extent but the hustle and drive called for in practice was seen in last Saturday's game.

A majority of the positions at Princeton are very open. In consequence there is the most spirited sort of competition for the places. Thus far the situation has assumed a more definite state in the backfield than in the line. That was expected to be the case. Capt. McCormick at fullback was and is as near to a certainty in holding his position as any future occurrence could be, and the quarterback position, with Dillion and Dawson to choose from, was not causing much worry. There are likely men for the other back positions, and though those positions are anything but settled, the material to fill them is there. Reid, a sophomore, who goes about his work in a businesslike way, was the first choice for right halfback in the Stevens game with the veteran Harlan at left half.

The situation in the line is better on the ends than anywhere else. There are half a dozen promising men for the extremities of the wings, and indeed the end situation at most of the leading colleges is better than usual. It looks as if Phillips would be Princeton's centre. In any event, Mr. Roper, the head coach, is authority for the statement that "for centre Phillips is much superior to all other aspirants." He can play tackle, too, and if another good centre could be found, or made, Phillips would probably be shifted to tackle. The guards are a lot of big men, well qualified in the matter of physique, but need to be quickened up and aroused.

Half a dozen willing workers are trying for tackle berths—Bamman, Booth, Buckingham, Siegling, King and Scott—but none of them as yet threatens to cause the names of Lea, Church or Hillebrand to be forgotten. Still it isn't necessary that they should to make Princeton a winner. Taken as a body, the Princeton squad is earnest and in a mood to learn, and with all the greenness and rawness seen in the Stevens game, the vim and life shown must have been pleasing to the coaches.

When it comes to having a game to furnish experience to the men and a valuable test of what men have in them when forced to get a move on Yale in meeting Syracuse has fared better than any of them. That Yale was forced to do her best to beat Syracuse is by no means likely, but she had to play a good, hard game to win. Games of that sort are calculated to do considerble good.

A steeplechase for ladies held annually in Calcutta is believed to be the only existing event of its kind. The course is two and a half miles long, with many mud fences, and the prize consists of a handsome cup.

The Square Pot of the Boynton Furnace

Maximum of Heat
Minimum of Fuel
Easiest to Care for

These are the cardinal advantages of the famous Boynton Square Pot Furnaces, positively the only correctly designed furnaces on the market.

Ashes can't clog, for the sides of the square pot are perpendicular instead of sloping; quick and rapid combustion at all times; square form gives increased radiating surface; grate construction insures quick and complete ash clearance, without raking or poking. The ash pit, being square, fits the shovel—handiest to clean.

TRINITY ENDEAVORERS HAVE A MERRY TIME

SOCIAL FOLLOWS THE ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church combined a social with a business meeting, in the lecture room of the church, last night. An interesting and profitable time was spent by the young people. The business meeting perceded the social, when these officers were chosen for the coming year:

President, William Latourette; first vice-president, Miss Harriet Randall; second vice-president, Fred Soper; recording secretary, Miss Eva Dunavan; corresponding secretary, Miss May Randolph; treasurer, Cornelius Schenck, Jr.

After the business session an entertainment was held under the direction of the social committee of which Miss May Randolph is chairman. The first part of the program comprised a piano solo by Miss Elsie May Dunavan, dialogue, "Mr. Bluebeard," by Miss Helen Roberts and Miss Madeline Strader; vocal solos by C. C. Jones, of Brooklyn, and recitations by Mr. Jones and Miss Helen Woolley.

The second part of the program was a novel one, games being played to test the five sense, tasting, seeing, hearing, feeling and smelling. For the tasting test there was a combination of soda, nutmeg, ginger, pepper, cloves, mace, cinnamon and those who took part were expected to give the names of the different articles. The same was required in the smelling process, the articles used being alcohol, almond, nitre, orange lemon, paregoric, wintergreen and vinegar. In the test of feeling the young people went into a dark room and a sponge, lemon, half an apple, and a rubber glove, filled with sand were quickly passed among them, the idea being to guess the name of the articles correctly.

For the sight test, candles, shoe horn, book, comb, picture, whisk broom and a box of talcum were placed on a table with a covering. The covering was removed quickly and replaced again, during which one was supposed to remember what they saw and make a correct list. The hearing test was perhaps the most difficult. All went into a dark room while a mouth organ, banjo, piano, were being played and noise was made on a tin pan and tray. The purpose was to guess the names of the different instruments.

After the entertainment cocoa and cake were served by the social and refreshment committee.

Pollution of Raritan.

New Brunswick's city attorney, Edwin C. McKeag, has called the attention of the City Council to a notice issued by the State Sewerage Commission caling upon the city to stop polluting the waters of the Raritan River. Mr. McKeag practically advised the city to fight the order of the commission, holding that no statutory grounds has been shown why the sewage of the city should not be discharged into the Raritan.

Road Building Probe.

The special committee appointed last winter by Governor Stokes to investigate the cause for the great increase in the cost of road building in New Jersey wil begin to take testimony at the State House at Trenton on November 13. Captain Harry Cramer, of Camden, is counsel for the committee.

INDUSTRIAL FAIR OPENS

All Sorts of Attractions to Interest Patrons at Hope Chapel Bazaar.

PROFITABLE BUSINESS

Fifteen Young Women Act As Messengers—Those In Charge of the Booths—A Restaurant.

Hope chapel's industrial fair, the most pretentious undertaking yet arranged by the West End congregation, was opened under favorable circumstances, yesterday afternoon. An address befitting the occasion was given by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue church, and from then on until late last night those in charge of the various booths and attractions were kept busy catering to the visitors. The attendance in the evening was very large and the profits accumulated accordingly.

The fair is taking place in the Sunday school rooms and they are occupied in all parts by the prettily decorated booths, some of them decidedly unique in construction. The platform was occupied from 8 to 10 last night by the Y. M. C. A. orchestra of nine pieces in charge of Martin A. Korff and added greatly to the enjoyment of the ever-changing crowd. Another feature is an entertainment given nightly in the gymnasium building by Judge Runyon's class.

This diversion is in the form of a tabloid minstrel jubilee with Judge Runyon presiding at the piano. John H. Cose is interlocutor and Hugh Sweeney and Harold Farrar the end men. There is also a large chorus.

For those who come in the afternoon and desire to remain over until night, the Hope chapel restaurant has an appealing look. It is conducted by the Ladies' Aid Society, members of which act as "chefs." Fifteen young women from the Sunday school classes receive and deliver the orders of patrons. The feature of this evening's menu will be clam chowder a la West End.

Directly in the centre of the main room is a large canoe from which pictures, souvenirs and novelties are sold. The little craft has an attractive setting to take the place of water and is guided by Miss Elsie Slorah and Miss Edna Eckert. It promises to be one of the most profitable "concessions" of the whole affair.

The other attractions and those who are in charge are as follows:

Japanese hot chocolate—conducted by Mr. Boardman's class, Job Lee, chairman; Mrs. Job Lee, Miss Gray and Mrs. Hughes; Indian novelties—conducted by the Young People's society, Miss Clara Hunter, chairman; Donald Mortimer, Miss Mary Mortimer and Harry Kenny; grocery store and fruit stand—conducted by the Boys' Club, James Kenney, chairman; Clinton Firstbrook, Peter Sweeney, Clarence Hoffman and Frank Rimmer; soap booth—conducted by Dr. Cregar's class; Happy Hooligan's Head—conducted by Dr. Cregar's class, Robert Cratsley, chairman; Clarence Cheshire and Charles Cregar; Ladies' Aid Society ice cream parlor and bakery, Mrs. L. R. Howard, chairman; Mrs. Robert Hangliter, Mrs. Weber, Mrs. Clark, Mrs. Martin and Mrs. Vogel; The Men's Club House Furnishing Company—Mr. Braunstein, chairman; Robert Slorah, Robert Hangliter and Thomas Hendry; apron booth—conducted by the Ladies' Missionary Society, Mrs. James Penny, chairman; Mrs. G. H. Condict and Mrs. P. Braunstein; fancy booth, Mrs. Donald McInnes, chairman; Mrs. Neil Head and Mrs. James Bushby; cut flowers and plants—conducted by Men's Bible class, Donald McInnes, chairman, Mr. Johnman, Robert Cartwright, Samuel Cratsley, Alexander Gordon, assisted by Miss M. Hendry, Miss Ethel Manchester, Miss Marion Emery and Miss Madeline Pennington; candy booth—conducted by the Mary E. Wright Memorial Missionary Society, Miss Edith Roseberry, chairman; Miss Belle Slorah and Miss Lillian Brakey; The "Old Apple Tree"—conducted by Miss Grace Hazen's class, Miss Grace Hazen, chairman, Miss Duncan; Japanese rolling game, Professor Dencklau, chairman; Miss Elsie Rimmer, Miss Mary Radford and Miss Enna Eckert; lemonade well—conducted by Mrs. Fenton's class, Miss Elizabeth Slorah, chairman; Miss Seals and Miss Heftc; "Metropolitan Museum of Art and Curios," conducted by James Penny and a corps of guides; souvenir postal card booth, conducted by Mr. Leigh's and Mr. Squires' classes; popcorn booth—conducted by Mr. Simons' class, Thomas Heron, chairman; William Richmond and Melville Roseberry; orange booth—conducted by Miss Douglas' and Miss Dennis' classes—Miss Ruth Kenney and Miss M. Hunter.

The Ways and Means Committee which is in general charge of the fair consists of Rev. L. R. Howard, ex-officio member; G. H. Condict, honorary chairman; Mrs. L. R. Howard, honorary member; Donald McInnes, chairman; Ralph Eckert, secretary; John B. Slorah, Henry Vogel, Charles Vincent, David Bowden and Walter Firstbrook.

The proceeds from the enterprise are to be added to the organ fund of the Memorial chapel.

KATZENBACH TOUR BY AUTO.

Democratic Candidate Is to Make a Whirlwind Canvass This Week.

Frank S. Katzenbach, the Democratic candidate for Governor of New Jersey, began today a whirlwind tour by auto of several of the principal counties of New Jersey and keep it up for the rest of the week.

Mr. Katzenbach and State Chairman Robert S. Hudspeth believed that more ground could be covered and time saved in a fast auto than by train. Beginning today the candidate, accompanied by several aides of Chairman Hudspeth, started out to cover Somerset county. Mr. Katzenbach's auto party reached Somerville at 11 a. m., where they were met in Germania Hall, in East Main street, by a committee of seventy-five prominent Democrats. After luncheon the candidate started on a fast tour of the county, making brief stops and short speeches in the towns he covers.

On Thursday Morris county will be tackled. Speeches will be delivered hourly, beginning at 10 a. m., at the following towns: Chatham, Sterling, Mendham, Chester, German Valley, Flanders, Netcong, Montville, Boonton, and Dover. Mass meetings will be held at the last two places named at 7.30 and 9 p. m., respectively.

The principal towns in Bergen and Monmouth counties will be visited on Friday and Saturday.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The spelling match given by the young people of the Baptist church was a great success. Rev. A. C. T. Attlee impersonated the dignified school master, while Mrs. Manning and Philip Smith were his assistants. Miss Marjorie Soper won the first prize as being the best spelled and the fun over the word "pumice" confused quite a number who thought they could spell. Recitations and singing followed, after which ice cream and cake were served.

The case of the five unruly boys who disturbed the masquerade given by Mr. Pyatt, with throwing stones and other malicious mischief, will come up in Justice Smith's court this evening.

The boats on the lake are being taken to their winter quarters by their various owners.

Miss FitzGerald is visiting relatives in Brooklyn.

MEN'S CLUB PLANS ITS WORK FOR YEAR

FIRST FALL MEETING OF CRESCENT AVE. CHURCH ORGANIZATION.

Committees to take charge of the various branches of the work of the Men's Club of the Crescent Avenue church were appointed and reports of the outlook for the season were read at the meeting of the club last night in the church parlors. Sixteen members were present, and Rev. John Sheridan Zelie, pastor of the church, spoke of the value of the work in the past and made suggestions for the coming year.

L. R. Hopkins was appointed chairman of a committee to arrange for the organization of a men's Bible class, which will meet in the church parlors immediately after the morning service Sundays. A committee on monthly missionary meetings will get to work at once, arranging for study and practical assistance to the foreign missions supported. Lindsey Best was made chairman of a committee to have charge of editing the church paper, "The Messenger." Arthur Lovell, L. R. Hopkins and Frederick M. Genung will serve with him on this committee, and the paper will aim to keep the parishioners in touch with the work of the various organizations of the church.

At the meeting one of the members of the club reported that he had prepared a card catalog of the parishioners of the church. Such a compendium will be of great use in keeping on all the members of the church, and the need of it has long been felt. At the conclusion of the meeting, refreshments, consisting of sandwiches and coffee, were served.

GRAND JURY TO PROBE STATE ASYLUM DEATH.

Supreme Court Justice Reed Demands Thorough Sifting of Silvers Murder Charge.

Supreme Court Justice Reed yesterday at Trenton, at the opening of the October term of the Mercer county court, demanded of the grand jury that it make a thorough investigation into the circumstances surrounding the death of Enoch Silvers at the New Jersey State Hospital, Mercer county, on February 22, 1906.

It was charged and denied before the sessions of the Assembly investigating committee that Silvers had died as the result of beatings he received at the asylum. The case was hushed at the time, but created quite a scandal when ventilated in the State investigation.

The attendants left the hospital soon after the man's death and their whereabouts is not known.

Justice Reed also ordered an investigation into the practice of educated foreigners defrauding their ignorant fellow-countrymen in Trenton by pretending to act as bankers or legal advisers. The grand jury will also investigate the killing of Carrie Willims, a Princeton woman, by James Dowdy, of Morrisville.

DUER STREET'S BRIDGE

Somerset's Freeholders Make Contracts for Structure's Erection.

BOARD BORROWS MONEY

Appropriation Made for Cornerstone Laying Expenses—Board to Meet Saturday.

All the members were present at the regular meeting of the Somerset County Board of Chosen Freeholders, which was held in the court room in Somerville, yesterday afternoon.

County Engineer Doughty reported that the work of straightening the brook at Duer street in the borough of North Plainfield had been accomplished and that plans had been prepared and sent out so that bids for the erection of a stone or concrete bridge at Duer street could be received at this meeting. The action of the committee and engineer were approved by the board.

Bids were opened as follows: Arthur E. Smith, of Plainfield, $967 on concrete; A. Schuyler, of Somerville, $8.97 per cubic yard on concrete; Dover Boiler Works, of Doven, $540 for concrete; W. T. Kirk Company, of Plainfield, $374 for concrete and $549 for superstructure; John C. Cooper, of Warrenville, $5.74 per cubic yard for stone and $6.74 per cubic yard for concrete; John W. Scott, of Flemington, $735 for superstructure and $8.60 a cubic yard for abutments; J. Y. Barrett, of Plainfield, $6 per cubic yard for concrete and $5.70 for stone a cubic yard.

The bids were referred to the committee on the bridge, which recommended that the contract be awarded to J. Y. Barrett for concrete at his bid of $6 a cubic yard and the contract for the superstructure to the Dover Boiler Works at its bid of $540, with brick arches complete. The Director was authorized to execute the contracts with these bidders.

Mr. Codington moved that County Collector Allen be authorized to borrow $20,000 in anticipation of taxes. Carried.

Mr. Gibson read a letter and resolution from South Bound Brook borough, asking that the Board proceed at the earliest possible date to build a new bridge across the Raritan River at Bound Brook, because the borough believes the old bridge is unsafe. Members Thomas E. Gibson, Peter Smith, Joseph Fitzga, Richard W. Hoagland, William M. Demler and Joel Codington, with Engineer Doughty, were appointed as a committee to examine the bridge and report its recommendation at the next regular meeting.

Mr. Codington moved that an appropriation of $100 be made to the building committee for the purpose of defraying the expenses incident to the laying of the cornerstone of the new Court House. This motion was carried by a vote of 8 to 3, William M. Demler, John Emmons and Joseph Fitzga voting in the negative. The ceremonies will probably take place November 8.

County Engineer Doughty reported that it was necessary to have some extra work done on the road being macadamized from North Branch to North Branch Depot, and said same had been done with the consent of the State Road Commissioner. The cost could not now be estimated. The action of the County Engineer was approved.

The Board will meet at the Court House, Saturday, to receive bids for the erection of stone walls along the Pluckemin and North Branch roads at two points where the water washes the roadway.

HAS NO CONTROL OVER FORT CASE AFFIDAVITS.

Attorney-General Replying to Bloomfield Still Thinks Them Not Public Property.

Attorney-General McCarter has sent the following to Charles A. Bloomfield, of Metuchen, in reply to his letter to the attorney-general asking him to cause to be made public the affidavits filed in the case of former Justice John Franklin Fort some years ago:

"Your letter dated the fifth and published in the public press the sixth, was not received in the office until the seventh instant. My sole connection with the matter therein referred to arises from the fact that on the seventeenth of September I gave to the clerk of the Supreme Court an opinion, of which I enclose you a copy. You state in your letter that you and many others hold that these affidavits are public property. Apparently you and the many others to whom you refer take a different view of the law, from that I expressed in my opinion to the clerk of the Supreme Court.

"I, of course, have no information concerning the identity of the 'many others' to whom you refer, nor do I know whether they, like yourself, are laymen or learned in the law. It is always a matter of regret to lawyers that laymen and sometimes even judges, do not take the same view of a legal proposition that they entertain. I am frank to say, however, that my opinion to the clerk of the Supreme Court expressed the views I then enjoyed, and still entertain upon the subject therein referred to. And the mere fact that you and many others unknown to me take a contrary view, does not of itself lead me to change my mind. You must know however, that I have no authority to direct that copies be made and given to the press as you suggest I should, as, indeed, I have no control whatever over the papers."

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

"About Town," that great big musical review direct from its most successful six months' run at Lew Fields' Herald Square theatre, New York, where it played to enormous receipts, presented under the direction of Sam S. and Lee Shubert Company (Inc.) with a cast of nearly seventy people, headed by that very clever and jolly comedian, Dave Lewis, will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre tonight. It is said to be one of the most pleasant surprises in the way of a musical comedy that is likely to be seen in a local theatre during the season.

The remarkable prosperity and wonderful longevity attained by "East Lynn" can be explained only by the fact that the story the play unfolds is intensely human. Although numberless dramas have been written in imitation of this excellent play, not one of them reaches the depths of feeling or sounds the note of human appeal as truly as does this dramatic picture of the joys and sorrows of the beautiful, unfortunate Lady Isabel. To adequately portray the varying emotions of this complex character is a task requiring not only the charm of youthful beauty, but a marked degree of histrionic ability as well. The play will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night.

In the new musical piece, "Two Islands," that will be seen here at the New Plainfield theatre Friday night, there are several songs that have already become so popular that they are being played by the hotel and restaurant orchestras, a sure sign that they have hit the public fancy. The three most decided successes are: "I'm So Demure, "Simply Mary" and "Just For the Sake of Days Gone By." "Two Islands" is in two acts and is said to be full of pretty girls, dainty costumes, catchy songs and barrels of fun. The large company organized by Mortimer M. Theise and destined for a winter run at the Circle theatre, New York, is headed by that king of funmakers, Barney Bernard, assisted by Rice and Cady, John Vincent, Lottie Kendall, Guelma Baker and Lillian Doreen. The chorus is large and attractive, the scenery is beautiful, the costumes novel in design and brilliant in coloring and the mechanical and electrical effects sensational.

The dainty little comic opera star, Grace Cameron, who is to appear with her big musical company at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night, has not only captured the hearts of the American people but has almost as large a following in London, Berlin, Paris, Cape Town, Johannesburg, and in fact all the larger cities of the world, as she has had in America. During her famous career with such celebrated organizations as "The Bostonians," "Foxy Quiller," Henry W. Savage's Grand Opera Company, "The Telephone Girl," "The French Maid," "The Girl from Paris," "Nancy Brown," "When Johnnie Comes Marching Home," "The Tenderfoot," "Pic, Paff, Pouff," etc., Miss Cameron has never played a part that she did not make a pronounced hit in, and has never had or given a bad performance in all her life. This is attributed as a good and sufficient reason for her present popularity, for as Edwin Booth often said: "The success or failure of actors depends upon their ability and willingness to keep faith with their public."

GYMNASIUM CLASSES START AT THE LOCAL Y. M. C. A.

Business Men, Police, and Leal's Boys Had First Classes of Season.

The resuming of athletic activities at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium on Monday after the suspension of classes during the summer months showed a big increase in the turnout as compared with last year. In the business men's class, there were twenty men on the floor when the class got together in the evening. It being the first meeting, Director Listman put the men through light work, so that the exercise might not have a stiffening effect.

In the afternoon the class from Leal's school met for the first time. There were about twenty-five on the floor and after the exercise there was basketball practice by the candidates for the school team. There are ten or a dozen candidates for the team, and some good material. Regular practice will be held after the meetings of the school class at the gym.

The class for Plainfield cops also had its first meeting Monday night. There was not a full attendance, and those who showed up for the exercise went at it fightly for the first. Classes for boys and young men were held at the association yesterday afternoon and evening, and the city high school class was held at the gym yesterday for the first time this term.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Miss Ida Greeley Smith, granddaughter of Horace Greeley, is a member of John Drew's company.

Miss Margaretta Drexel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel, denies in a London paper that she intends to enter a convent.

Mme. Febea Strakosch, a near relative of Adelina Patti and a niece of Maurice Strakosch, has arrived at New York to sing in the Savage Opera company.

Mrs. Nathan Hulbert is the only woman barber in Worcester, Mass. She works in her husband's shop daily and is very skillful with the razor and scissors.

Mrs. Augusta Hale Gifford of Portland, Me., a sister of Senator Eugene Hale, who has spent much time in foreign lands, will shortly begin the writing of a comprehensive history of Russia.

Miss Kathleen Leupp, daughter of the commissioner of Indian affairs, will leave Washington shortly to spend several months among the Indian tribes. She will study their racial characteristics and will specialize on those of Indian womankind.

Miss Jennie Winslow Bubier, who has charge of the "room of happiness" in the Lynn (Mass.) Public Library, is said to be the only blind librarian in the world. Besides performing the duties of librarian Miss Bubier teaches the blind patrons of the library to read.

Miss Katherine T. Harrison is probably the wealthiest woman secretary in the world. Her wealth is estimated at $1,000,000. She is H. H. Rogers' "right hand man," so to speak, and her business acumen is said to be equal to that of any of the organizers of the Standard Oil company. Every morning she goes from her home in Brooklyn to 26 Broadway in a blue electric brougham.

SOAPY.

A soapfish has a soapy skin, whence its name.

The soap nut is the fruit of an East Indian shrub.

A soap crutch is a crotched stick used for stirring the soft soap in a kettle.

The term "soft soap" for smooth words of flattery has been added to the English language, so that it is used in "Tom Brown at Oxford."

Soap bubbles have formed the innocent amusement of children of all ages with the ease of making them, their iridescence and the brief period for which they last.

A soap lock is a term used in this country in reference to a lock of hair which was formerly worn on the temple and kept smoothly in place by being soaped, and the term has come to mean any lock of hair brushed apart from the rest and kept carefully in its place.

Danish Wedding Rings.

Girls in Denmark never experience the pleasure of receiving a diamond engagement ring. They are presented with a plain gold band, which is worn on the third finger of the left hand. On the wedding day the bridegroom changes the ring to the right third finger, which is the marriage finger in that country.

Matrimony in Persia.

Matrimonial engagements in Persia are divided into two classes. The real marriage, which is considered the most respectable, is confined to four wives. In the other the number of "partners" of the husband's joy and sorrow is unlimited.

Wanted Too Much.

The first discoverer of gold in California made very little out of it. He insisted on keeping everybody out and claimed all, but got comparatively nothing.

The Somali Soldier.

The Somali soldier keeps himself in perfect fighting condition on a diet of nuts. He eats only twenty a day, but they are nuts of a very nourishing kind.

Mrs. E. J. Berrian, of East Fifth street, has returned from a week's visit with her parents at Bound Brook.

BY

Richard Harding Davis.

COPYRIGHT, 1901, BY ROBERT HOWARD RUSSELL.

"All I could see was the square of light from the door I had left open behind me, and a lamp in the hall beyond it flickering in the draught. But even as I watched it, the flame of the lamp was blown violently to and fro, and the door, caught in the same current of air, closed slowly. I knew if it shut I could not again enter the house, and I rushed madly toward it. I believe I even shouted out, as though it were something human which I could compel to obey me, and then I caught my foot against the curb and smashed into the sidewalk. When I rose to my feet I was dizzy and half stunned, and though I thought then that I was moving toward the door, I know now that I probably turned directly from it; for, as I groped about in the night, calling frantically for the police, my fingers touched nothing but the dripping fog, and the iron railings for which I sought seemed to have melted away. For many minutes I beat the mist with my arms like one at blind man's buff, turning sharply in circles, cursing aloud at my stupidity and crying continually for help. At last a voice answered me from the fog, and I found myself held in the circle of a policeman's lantern.

"That is the end of my adventure. What I have to tell you now is what I learned from the police.

"At the station-house to which the man guided me I related what you have just heard. I told them that the house they must at once find was set back from the street within a radius of two hundred yards from the Knightsbridge Barracks, that within fifty yards of it some one was giving a dance to the music of a Hungarian band, and that the railings before it were as high as a man's waist and filed to a point. With that to work upon, twenty men were at once ordered out into the fog to search for the house, and Inspector Lyle himself was dispatched to the home of Lord Edam, Chetney's father, with a warrant for Lord Arthur's arrest. I was thanked and dismissed on my own recognizance.

"This morning Inspector Lyle called on me, and from him I learned the police theory of the scene I have just described:

"Apparently I had wandered very far in the fog, for up to noon to-day the house had not been found, nor had they been able to arrest Lord Arthur. He did not return to his father's house last night, and there is no trace of him; but from what the police knew of the past lives of the people I found in that lost house, they have evolved a theory, and their theory is that the murders were committed by Lord Arthur.

"The infatuation of his elder brother, Lord Chetney, for a Russian princess, so Inspector Lyle tells me, is well known to every one. About two years ago the Princess Zichy, as she calls herself, and he were constantly together, and Chetney informed his friends that they were about to be married. The woman was notorious in two continents, and when Lord Edam heard of his son's infatuation he appealed to the police for her record.

"It is through his having applied to them that they know so much concerning her and her relations with the Chetneys. From the police Lord Edam learned that Madame Zichy had once been a spy in the employ of the Russian Third Section, but that lately she had been repudiated by her own government and was living by her wits, by blackmail, and by her beauty. Lord Edam laid this record before his son, but Chetney either knew it already or the woman persuaded him not to believe in it, and the father and son parted in great anger. Two days later the marquis altered his will, leaving all of his money to the younger brother, Arthur.

"IT IS MOST IMPORTANT THAT I PROCEED TO THE HOUSE."

"The title and some of the landed property he could not keep from Chetney, but he swore if his son saw the woman again that the will should stand as it was, and he would be left without a penny.

"This was about eighteen months ago, when apparently Chetney tired of the Princess, and suddenly went off to shoot and explore in Central Africa. No word came from him, except that twice he was reported as having died of fever in the jungle, and finally two traders reached the coast who said they had seen his body. This was accepted by all as conclusive, and young Arthur was recognized as the heir to the Edam millions. On the strength of this supposition he at once began to borrow enormous sums from the money lenders. This is of great importance, as the police believe it was these debts which drove him to the murder of his brother. Yesterday, as you know, Lord Chetney suddenly returned from the grave, and it was the fact that for two years he had been considered as dead which lent such importance to his return and which gave rise to those columns of detail concerning him which appeared in all the afternoon papers. But, obviously, during his absence he had not tired of the Princess Zichy, for we know that a few hours after he reached London he sought her out. His brother, who had also learned of his reappearance through the papers, probably suspected which would be the house he would first visit, and followed him there, arriving, so the Russian servant tells us, while the two were at coffee in the drawing-room. The Princess, then, we also learn from the servant, withdrew to the dining-room, leaving the brothers together. What happened one can only guess.

"Lord Arthur knew now that when it was discovered he was no longer the heir, the money-lenders would come down upon him. The police believe that he at once sought out his brother to beg for money to cover the post obits, but that, considering the sum he needed was several hundreds of thousands of pounds, Chetney refused to give it him. No one knew that Arthur had gone to seek out his brother. They were alone. It is possible, then, that in a passion of disappointment, and crazed with the disgrace which he saw before him, young Arthur made himself the heir beyond further question. The death of his brother would have availed nothing if the woman remained alive. It is then possible that he crossed the hall, and with the same weapon which made him Lord Edam's heir destroyed the solitary witness to the murder. The only other person who could have seen it was sleeping in a drunken stupor, to which fact undoubtedly he owed his life. And yet," concluded the Naval Attache, leaning forward and marking each word with his finger, "Lord Arthur blundered fatally. In his haste he left the door of the house open, so giving access to the first passer-by, and he forgot that when he entered it he had handed his card to the servant. That piece of paper may yet send him to the gallows. In the mean time he has disappeared completely, and somewhere, in one of the millions of streets of this great capital, in a locked and empty house, lies the body of his brother, and of the woman his brother loved, undiscovered, unburied, and with their murder unavenged."

In the discussion which followed the conclusion of the story of the Naval Attache the gentleman with the pearl took no part. Instead, he arose, and, beckoning a servant to a far corner of the room, whispered earnestly to him until a sudden movement on the part of Sir Andrew caused him to return hurriedly to the table.

"There are several points in Mr. Sears's story I want explained," he cried. "Be seated, Sir Andrew," he begged. "Let us have the opinion of an expert. I do not care what the police think, I want to know what you think."

But Sir Henry rose reluctantly from his chair.

"I should like nothing better than to discuss this," he said. "But it is most important that I proceed to the House. I should have been there some time ago." He turned toward the servant and directed him to call a hansom.

The gentleman with the pearl stud looked appealingly at the Naval Attache. "There are surely many details that you have not told us," he urged. "Some you have forgotten."

The Baronet interrupted quickly.

"I trust not," he said, "for I could not possibly stop to hear them."

"The story is finished," declared the Naval Attache; "until Lord Arthur is arrested or the bodies are found there is nothing more to tell of either Chetney or the Princess Zichy."

"Of Lord Chetney perhaps not," interrupted the sporting-looking gentleman with the black tie, "but there'll always be something to tell of the Princess Zichy. I know enough stories about her to fill a book. She was a most remarkable woman." The speaker dropped the end of his cigar into his coffee cup and, taking his case from his pocket, selected a fresh one. As he did so he laughed and held up the case that the others might see it. It was an ordinary cigar-case of well-worn pig-skin, with a silver clasp.

"The only time I ever met her," he said, "she tried to rob me of this."

The Baronet regarded him closely.

"She tried to rob you?" he repeated.

"Tried to rob me of this," continued the gentleman in the black tie, "and of the Czarina's diamonds." His tone was one of mingled admiration and injury.

"The Czarina's diamonds!" exclaimed the Baronet. He glanced quickly and suspiciously at the speaker, and then at the others about the table. But their faces gave evidence of no other emotion than that of ordinary interest.

"Yes, the Czarina's diamonds," repeated the man with the black tie. "It was a necklace of diamonds. I was told to take them to the Russian Ambassador in Paris who was to deliver them at Moscow. I am a Queen's Messenger," he added.

"Oh, I see," exclaimed Sir Andrew in a tone of relief. "And you say that this same Princess Zichy, one of the victims of this double murder, endeavored to rob you of—of—that cigar-case."

WORKS WONDERS.

A Wonderful Compound—Cures Piles, Eczema, Skin Itching, Skin Eruptions, Cuts and Bruises.

Doan's Ointment is the best skin treatment, and the cheapest, because so little is required to cure. It cures piles after years of torture. It cures obstinate cases of eczema. It cures all skin itching. It cures skin eruptions. It heals cuts, bruises, scratches and abrasions without leaving a scar. It cures permanently. Plainfield testimony proves it.

Thomas Haskard, of 941 West Third street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I was a member of Co. A, First Regt., N. J. Vols., under Col. Montgomery. I was out in 3½ years of the Civil War and was wounded once in the leg and once in the neck. During the Rebellion I contracted itching piles and they bothered me off and on ever since. No one who has not suffered from this trouble knows what the irritation is. I tried about every salve, wash and ointment known in the hope of finding a cure but nothing helped me until I got Doan's Ointment and it took just three boxes to put me in shape so I could rest nights and cure me so that I have been free ever since from any trouble arising from piles."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

BOWLING CLUBS' TOURNEY WILL SOON BE STARTED

CENTRAL NEW JERSEY LEAGUE MAKING ITS PLANS.

Preparations are gradually being made by the Central New Jersey Bowling League to resume its annual tournament and the prospects are that the league will be fully as strong, if not stronger than before, owing to the acquisition of new material in the several clubs. Much to the regret of the other members it is expected that the Westfield Club will not continue in the league this season. Why this action was taken is not known definitely, but it is reported that the loss of the club property is the chief reason. In the meantime no efforts have been made to secure another place to bowl.

The league this year will undoubtedly be composed of the following: Jersey City Club, Newark Bay Boat Club, Elizabeth Club, Roselle Casino, Cranford Casino and the Park Club. Plans are underway now to start the games the latter part of November and complete them, as usual, during January. Roselle, Westfield and the Parks have each scored a win on the Journal trophy, which is to be rolled for again this season.

The Park Club team made its best showing last season and efforts will be made to do even better. Practice was started last night by the several candidates for the team and Captain Ball will exercise his usual good care in the selection of a team. The new material at the club this year will make it possible to have a strong combination and it is the hope of the club that it may be successful in winning the trophy a second time.

Conference of Federated Clubs.

The first conference of Federated Clubs of Union county will be held Wednesday afternoon, October 16, in the chapel of the First Presbyterian church, Elizabeth. Rev. William Torrence Stuchell, of Rahway, will make an address on "Child Labor." An attractive program has been prepared and ample time will be given for discussion of matters of local interest to each club and for the presentation of topics relative to the department work of the New Jersey Federation. The local clubs will have a large representation at the conference.

P. S. C. Will Replace the Light.

Councilman F. L. Montgomery, chairman of the light committee, has communicated with the Public Service Corporation regarding the absence of an electric light on West Third street, between Madison and Central avenues, where one is supposed to exist, and the company has promised to attend to the matter at once.

The Plainfield Art Store in the Y. M. C. A. building is the place to secure artists' materials and works of art. Picture frames of all kinds are made to order.

H. K. Lister, of North avenue, invites your attention to his large stock of Edison phonographs and Victor talking machines, and records for both machines. Prices reasonable.

FAIR ACRES CLUB'S CARD FOR SATURDAY

EVERYTHING FREE AND LOTS OF PRIZES OFFERED.

The Fair Acres Riding and Driving Association has arranged one of the strongest cards of the season for the matinee races to be held at the Gentlemen's Driving Park, Saturday afternoon. The list of entries are especially good and in the four events to be run off good horses will be seen in each. There will be free admission to the grounds, the grandstand, while the programs will be distributed without charge.

Those in charge of the races have arranged with the trolley company to have extra cars and there will be plenty of stages to carry the people to the park.

Attractive prizes have been provided for in each event. The first prizes will be sets of harness, the second $10 blankets and the third whips. In addition to the races it is expected that Miss Adele von Ohl will give an exhibition of fancy riding.

The entries follow:

Class A—Trot and pace—Billy Wonder, Ben. Butler, Lady Trivol, Flora Downing, Roan View, Bay Prince, Harry Dawson. Class B—Trot—New Haven, Maud C., Bobs, Hartwood Bell, Artistic, Aloysia. Class C—Trot and pace—Flarence D., Peruna, Helen Nelson, Daisy, Benjamin Butler, Milk Boy. Class D—Trot and pace—Alcyetta, Harmonia, Prince B., Lady Cranford, Betsy.

Excise Violations.

The Hudson county grand jury considered violations of the excise law yesterday afternoon. Samuel Wilson, superintendent of the Civic Righteousness Federation, submitted a mass of evidence which he has collected against violators of the law.

Groom Killed.

Ralph Post, whose home is at Atlantic City, where he has a bride of only six weeks, was killed at Boonton yesterday. The doctors who were summoned after he fell from the pole said he was killed from an electric shock.

Rejects Street Bids.

The New Brunswick City Council has decided to reject the bids for the repaving of a block in Dennis street with trap rock block and do the job itself at a cost of $3,000. The lowest bid presented by contractors was for $3,595.

Fire Destroys Barn.

A fire which destroyed a huge barn owned by the Lane & Lockward Tobacco Company at Caldwell, is supposed to have been of incendiary origin. The blaze broke out at midnight under suspicious circumstances.

Shocked to Death.

Adolph Peters, eighteen years old, was shocked to death at Camden yesterday. He jumped up on the rail of a railroad bridge, when a dangling electric light wire struck him. He died instantly.

The prayer and praise meeting tonight in Trinity Reformed church will be in charge of the pastor, Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck.

Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, went to Elizabeth last night to witness the exemplification of the third degree.

"GATHERING OF CLANS"

Mrs. Henry L. Hall Selects Her Aids for the Big Affair at the Casino.

The children are not to be forgotten at "The Gathering of the Clans" to be held at the Casino for the benefit of the hospital, and an entertainment will be given especially for them, but of course, the grown-ups can attend if they want to. The nominal charge of ten cents will be the admission for children and fifteen cents for adults. Three performances will be given each afternoon by professionals, and the program will include magic, a punch and judy show and chalk talk caricatures.

Each evening there will be a society minstrel show and vaudeville and something exceptionally fine is promised. Well-known members of society will take an active part in the show.

Among the outside attractions on the grounds will be the cane and knife game, baseball dodger, the pancake and hot dog man, all of which will no doubt be liberally patronized.

One of the strongest attractions will be the fancy table, where sofa pillows, jewelry, cut glass, shoes, slippers, will each have a separate table, all in charge of the committee of which Mrs. Henry L. Hall and Mrs. W. A. Pinto are in charge. There will also be the Japanese table, the Japanese rolling game and the grab bag for the children.

One thing that is sure to attract more than ordinary interest will be a painting by George Wharton Edwards, the well-known artist. This painting, valued at $300, has been donated to the affair. It will be sold to the highest bidder.

The members of Mrs. Hall's committee are as follows:

"CENTRAL PARK"

Was—Is—Will Be

IT WAS, only about a year ago, just a pretty farm.

IT IS to day the finest building site in Plainfield, with broad avenues macadamized their entire width, concrete curb, sidewalks, trees, gas, electric light, in fact all improvements. Nearly $100,000 expended in new and handsome dwellings, now ready for the market.

WHAT IT WILL BE we hardly dare predict, with contracts out for even more extensive improvements and twelve more handsome residences.

Central Park is that beautifully situated tract bounded by Park, Prospect, Hillside and Thornton Avenues.

Lots selling rapidly—Prices very low—Great investment or speculative opportunities.

JOINS THE MILLIONAIRES

F. S. Ruttmann, a Local High School Graduate, Digs Up Wealth in Mexico.

HE HAS THE TIN

Owns Only Mine on the Continent and Will Get $680 a Ton for His Metal—Tells of His Fortune.

Private letters received from Mexico indicate that Ferdinand S. Ruttmann, a graduate of the Plainfield High School in the class of 1875, and who later graduated at the Columbia College School of Mines in the class of 1880, has become a millionaire. He has been in Mexico for the last eight years, except for a few visits to his old home, and for two years he has not ventured north.

The reason for Mr. Ruttmann's long absence became known yesterday, when advices were received telling the story of his explorations in Mexico and his discovery of mines that have already made him a millionaire.

Mr. Ruttmann, who is one of the prominent mining engineers of the country, being a member of the American Institute of Mining Engineers, and of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, was left with a modest fortune on the death of his father, who was a successful New York merchant. His bent of genius was toward useful discovery, and his professional education in New York's famous technica l institution gave him added incentive to pursue it, while his independence financially afforded him the opportunity to go ahead with the drawbacks that come to equally ambitious but less fortunate prospectors.

In starting out Mr. Ruttmann found that the mountain ranges of the United States had been well exploited. There were all kinds of mines in operation almost everywhere in the country where there was a chance to operate a mine. He decided to become an explorer and sought nearby Mexico as a field for his operations. Mexico is a sealed book to most Americans, and even enthusiastic prospectors and engineers have hesitated to penetrate this land of ancient Spanish romance and hidden treasures of which there are so many legends. The difficulty of exploration, the physical hardships that would have to be overcome were more attractive than otherwise to the Columbia College man. With him he associated Edmund J. Evans, a Pittsburg man, who will share with him in the honor of being one of the two tin kings of the country—and with tin at $675 to $680 a ton and coal at $6 a ton it can readily be seen that being a tin king is better than being a coal king, especially as the supply of coal kings is much larger than the possible output of tin operators.

With his associate he has acquired control of a large section of mining territory in the State of Durango, and in the State of Zacatecas, which is just south of Durango. There are about twenty mines which are rich in copper, silver and lead in the territory, but of all of them Mr. Ruttman attaches more importance to the tin mine. His reason is in a way sentimental. There is only one other tin mine in the Western Hemisphere that is commercially profitable. That mine is in Bolivia, South America. Its ore assays for very much less than the Mexican discovery, which yields from 20 to 40 per cent. metallic tin right along, and is producing some specimens that run up to 60 per cent. The lowest percentage so far obtained is 20, and the famous Cornwall mines only show about 1 per cent. It is a question with mining engineers whether this tin mine will not be the greatest in the world, as it is now the greatest in the America.

The effect commercially will be to give Americans supremacy in the tin market. This country's manufacturers are now dependent on foreign sources of supply, except for some small quantities that come from Alaska. There is no import duty on the commodity, so that except for the longer haul on the railroads the discovery is of as much importance to the tin plate industry as if the mine had been discovered within the confines of the United States.

At present the tin used by American manufacturers is imported from England, Australia and the Dutch East Indies. The permanence of supply, the possibility of "corners" and the increasing demand for tinware have all contributed to worry the tin plate manufacturers. The discovery of an adequate supply of the most valuable of the non-precious metals within reasonable reach and controlled by Americans will do much to relieve that anxiety, especially as the discovery was made by an engineer who is already satisfied with his financial condition and who would not be likely to disturb trade conditions.

BAPTIST WOMEN GATHER

East New Jersey Association's Foreign Missionary Society in Session.

AN ALL DAY MEETING

Mrs. B. J. Shreve and Miss Dimock Make Addresses—Luncheon Is Served.

The semi-annual meeting of the Women's Baptist Foreign Missionary Society of the East New Jersey Baptist Association, is being held in First Baptist church, today, with a large attendance of delegates from the association churches. Mrs. William T. Lumbar, of Newark, president, is in the chair.

The morning session convened at 10 o'clock with devotional exercises. Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the church, gave the address of welcome, to which Mrs. Lumbar responded. The business session was chiefly routine. Miss Julia Shinn, formerly of this city, but now one of the secretaries at the headquarters of the Baptist Board in Boston, gave a talk on her work in Burmah, India and China from which she recently returned. The chief thought of her address was the willingness of the women in these countries to make large gifts for merit, and when they are converted they make great sacrifice.

"Our New Literature," was the subject of a delightful address by Miss Elizabeth Dimock, who used a novel method of introducing the Baptist missionary literature. This was done through the use of catch phrases taken from popular advertisements. The morning session closed with an interesting talk by Mrs. B. J. Shreve on the topic of "Education." The Baptist Educational Society seek to train young women for work on the foreign mission field, to be trained nurses, medical missionaries, and it was of this work that Mrs. Shreve spoke. She referred to the fact that Miss Bertha Mills, of Paterson, has just completed a course of training at the Elizabeth General Hospital for the profession of trained nurse and is now completing her course of study at the "Hazeltine House," Boston, preparatory to going to a foreign field.

The afternoon session convened at 2 o'clock, and was taken up with several address by women prominent in the foreign mission work of this denomination.

YOU GUESS HER NAME AND SHE WILL BE YOURS

BRIDE DOLL GORGEOUSLY ARRAYED TO BE GIVEN AWAY.

Among the numerous coming events "The Gathering of the Clans" to be held at the Casino for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital, is probably the most talked about. There will be no end to the attractions, and one of the features will be the booth devoted to dolls. Mrs. Dorsey W. Hyde is the chairman of the committee in charge and there will be a fine array of dolls of every description, including the wonderful bride doll. Everyone will have an opportunity to guess her name and the lucky one will gain possession of her.

Mrs. Hyde's committee is as follows: Mrs. Harry Borden, Mrs. Harry Williams, Mrs. John Drayton, Mrs. Thomas Bakewell, Mrs. Theodore D. Wilson, Mrs. Evarts Tracy, Mrs. William Griscom, Mrs. Jacob VanDeventer, Miss Mabel Pierson, Mrs. William Bache, Miss Mary Breck, Mrs. Francis DeLacy Hyde and Mrs. Louis K. Hyde.

The "cycle of fun" will delight the children. There will be fortune telling, where one can learn his or her fate by the vibration method, which is superior to the crystal reading. Ducrot, the wonderful wizard; Speedon, the cartoonist, Al. Baker, the magician and Mme. Sticku, the clever palmist, will be present to entertain both young and old. The entertainment every afternoon for the children will be well worth seeing. Three performances will be given, at 3.30, 4.15 and 5 o'clock. The admission for children will be ten cents and fifteen cents for adults.

Visitors to the show will surely want to see the "Wondergraph," which will be for sale. This is something entirely new and will please the children as it makes many designs, no two alike.

Stole Barber's Tools.

Frank Brown, colored, was arrested by Detectiv-Sergeant Flynn, this afternoon, charged with the theft of some barber tools from a Central avenue shop. He will be arraigned tomorrow morning.

ARCANUMITES CELEBRATE

Banquet at Truell Hall Marks 25th Anniversary of Plainfield Council.

STATE OFFICERS TALK

Ringing Speeches Follow Fine Dinner—Big Crowd On Hand to Join In Demonstration.

Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary, last night, at Truell Hall, with a banquet and speeches by several grand lodge officers, including Grand Regent Harry R. Ward, of Jersey City. The success of the council was reviewed with considerable pride, the organization being one of the oldest and most progressive in the New Jersey jurisdiction. It was noted that notwithstanding the trouble incident to the raising of the rates, the council had lost but a few members and since then it has been increasing.

The members held a short meeting in the council room, after which they adjourned to Truell Hall, where under the direction of Mrs. J. R. Truell an excellent dinner was served. The dining hall was elaborately decorated with Royal Arcanum colors, purple, red and gold. The hour being late when the dinner started, it was necessary to begin the speechmaking before it was concluded to allow the grand lodge officers to get away in time.

The grand lodge officers present were Grand Regent Harry R. Ward, of Jersey City; Vice-Grand Regent C. A. Colyer, of Bayonne; Grand Treasurer W. C. McKeever, of Rutherford; Grand Guide Samuel Drummond, of Bound Brook; Grand Secretary R. H. Alberts, of Hoboken; chairman state of the order, R. P. Van Zandt, of Jersey City; Supervising Deputy N. H. Regar, of Jersey City; Supreme Representatives J. D. Beach, of Bayonne and Daniel S. Horton, of Somerville. Each one was called upon to say a few words, which they did and Plainfield Council was congratulated heartily for the showing it has made in the past quarter of a century. Regent William R. Townsend, of Plainfield Council, was toastmaster and although he did not make a speech his witticism in introducing the others was enjoyed.

Perhaps, the most interesting part of the speech-making was the historical sketch of Plainfield Council given by Grand Secretary R. H. Alberts. He stated that the council was instituted October 4, 1882, in Knights of Pythias Hall, by Past Grand Regent E. B. McDowell. The charter list numbered twenty-five which was increased to thirty-one within three months. The total receipts during the first three months amounted to $207, from which $100 was expended for the charter, $48.96 for current expenses, $29 for benefits, a total of $170.90, leaving a balance of $29.31. The sum of $95.78 was paid into the women's and orphans' beneficial fund.

The first secretary of the council was Edward E. Anthony, who remained a member for twenty-three years. Since institution the council has paid into the widow's and orphans' fund the sum of $126,570.98. There have been forty deaths and 107 members have been suspended. Thirty-two members have withdrawn to join other councils and there was one final withdrawal. One member was expelled.

Mr. Alberts said that although the order lost 70,000 members when the rates were increased, today the membership is 241,000 and $100,000 is being paid in every month into the fund for widows and orphans. Mr. Alberts after giving the sketch of the council dwelt earnestly on the cardinal principles of the order and urged every member to stand loyally by it and do all in their power to increase the membership.

Following the speeches by the grand lodge officers, a short address was made by Rev. Edward Love, one of the older members. During the banquet each guest received a souvenir in the shape of a metal ash tray bearing the insignia and colors of the order. The affair was a success in every detail, which was largely due to the efforts of the committee in charge, consisting of Armstrong Mulford, Wheaton S. Lowry and Fred'k J. Pope.

Prior to the banquet an informal reception was held in the ball room, when an opportunity was given the members to meet the grand lodge officers. Fred'k J. Pope also favored the guests with several baritone solos. At the conclusion of the banquet many remained for a social half-hour.

Steam Roller Mired.

The city steam roller, while trying to make the turn from West Fourth street to Park avenue, early this morning, became mired in a soft spot of earth and it required the combined efforts of a large gang of men to place the roller on solid ground.

ACKERMAN'S MEASURE IS PASSED BY SENATE

CIVIL SERVICE BILL GETS A SOLID VOTE.

The New Jersey State Senate this afternoon passed the Ackerman Civil Service bill. The vote was unanimous. Senator Colby made a ringing speech in favor of the Union county stateman's measure and the Democrats were solid for it. The bill now goes to the House.

In presenting his bill, Senator Ackerman said incidently that on two previous occasions civil service bills had been passed during the present session by the Senate but that they had been killed in the House. He gave the assemblymen credit for defeating the legislation purely on its merits. The new bill, he said, embodied the features of the Colby, Thompson and Hillery bills and had been carefully prepared after consultations with recognized authorities and after studying the provisions of other similar measures in force elsewhere. He believed that the House would give the new bill the utmost consideration and added that it was up to the Senate to fulfill its obligation to the people by using every endeavor to get a civil service bill on the statute books.

The Best Investment.

The Union Building and Loan Association, one of the most progressive in the State, makes this kind of an investment the safest and best for the wage-earner or any person of moderate means. Attention is called to the advertisement of the association in another part of the Daily Press announcing the opening of a new series on Monday, October 14. Through an error the name of "The Home Building and Loan Association," appeared in the Daily Press of yesterday, for "The Union Building and Loan Association." The office of the association is 146 Park avenue, and J. V. E. Vanderhoef is the secretary.

Punish "Black Hand."

Eighteen members of the New Castle, Pa., Black Hand gang, two of which were caught in this city, were arrigned in court yesterday and sentenced to terms in prison aggregating seventy-one years. They ranged separately from three to ten years, the two leaders who were bagged in Plainfield getting the maximum penalty. There are others awaiting trial who will probably get severer penalties as they are the ones who were implicated in the several murders committed by the gang.

Church Delegates Coming.

Rev. Walter Roe and Rev. Frank Wright, the latter an Indian, representing the Reformed church in the Indian work in Oklahoma and the Indian territory, will make a visit East soon and they have arranged to speak in Trinity Reformed church on Wednesday night, October 30. They will no doubt meet a large audience and in return they will speak entertainingly of the good work among the Indians.

Old Resident Returns.

William A. Preston, who twenty years ago resided on Seventh street, near Monroe avenue, and who has ever since been abroad, returned to this city on Wednesday to visit friends. Mr. Preston has been practicing law in Paris for several years and is arranging to remove his offices to New York. His father was at one time president of the New York Produce Exchange.

Surprised On Her Birthday.

Relatives and friends of Mrs. Sophie Stahl, of Grove street, to the number of twenty-five, informally "dropped in" on her last night, tendering a most enjoyable surprise. The occasion was the sevtieth birthday of Mrs. Stahl, and several of those who came brought gifts. At the conclusion of an enjoyable social evening, refreshments were served.

Matinee at Hope Fair.

The first "matinee" of Hope chapel's Industrial Fair was held this afternoon and was attended by a large number of school children. Special attractions were provided for their amusement, one of which was a Punch and Judy show. The attendance last night continued good and indications point to a record-breaking crowd tonight.

Men's Club Active.

The Men's Club of Grace Episcopal church will meet at the bowling alleys, the Casino, Monday night, and as there is considerable business of importance a full attendance is desired. At the November meeting the committee on entertainment is planning to give a series of living pictures.

—Bright boy can get position as messenger by applying at Postal Telegraph office.

—A special big display of fruits and vegetables at Neuman Brothers' tomorrow. Make sure you see it as there will be lots of good things included.

WEDS NEW YORK LAWYER

Miss Euphemia J. Johnson the Bride of William Whitwell Robison.

MANY FRIENDS PRESENT

Rev. Dr. A. T. Atterbury, of New York, Officiates—Bride a Daughter of Alexander Johnson.

Miss Euphemia J. Johnson, daughter of Alexander Johnson, of Grant avenue, and William Whitwell Robison, of New Rochelle, N. Y., were married at 7 o'clock last evening at the home of the bride's father in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends from New York, New Rochelle, Nyack, N. Y., and this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Anson T. Atterbury, pastor of the Park Presbyterian church, New York.

The bride was gowned in white satin, trimmed with real lace. She also wore a tulle veil and carried a shower bouquet of roses. She was attended by Miss Lillian McCabe, of New York, as maid of honor, who wore a gown of pink messaline, trimmed with gold lace. She carried white chrysanthemums. Miss Dorothea Hall, of New York, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a dress of white silk and carried a basket of flowers. The best man was Charles D. Robison, of Nyack, N. Y., a brother of the groom, and the ushers were Clark M. Spoor, of New Rochelle, and Herbert M. Johnson, a brother of the bride.

An effective and pleasing part of the affair was a vocal duet by Miss Louise Heil, soprano, and Miss Ella Hopkins, contralto soloist at St. Bartholemew's church, New York. They sang a selection entitled "Love," just previous to the playing of the wedding march by Prof. Suhr's orchestra. The bridal party remained in waiting until after the singing and then as the wedding march was being played entered the parlor, where the ceremony was performed. The ushers led the way, followed by the flower girl, maid of honor and the bride, accompanied by her father, who gave her in marriage. The groom and best man entered from another room, all meeting the officiating clergyman in the parlor.

Following the ceremony the couple received the congratulations of the guests and then supper was served. Later the couple left on a wedding journey, and upon their return they will reside on Grant avenue with the bride's father.

The home was attractively decorated for the wedding, there being a profusion of pink and white chrysanthemums. These were used with good effect in the parlor, the reception hall, while in the dining room the table was garnished with roses.

The bride received a wealth of wedding gifts, including silverware, cut-glass, furiture, linen and many other articles. She has been a resident of this city but a comparatively short time, moving here from the metropolis. The groom is engaged in the practice of law in New York. He was graduated from Hobart College, Geneva, N. Y., in the Class of 1900, and from the New York Law School, Class 1902.

Sutterlein Secures Bail.

After remaining in jail since his arrest Wednesday night, Augustus Sutterlein secured his release this morning. The $250 bail imposed by Judge Runyon was produced by his mother. The police yesterday secured the shawl that Sutterlein took from a trolley car but John O'Neil, who helped to get away, is among the missing. He evidently got wind of the fact that he was wanted and "dusted" out.

Lecture on Egypt.

Wednesday night, October 23, Dr. Charles E. Moldenke, the well known Egyptologist, will deliver his third lecture on Egypt for the benefit of St. Peter's Lutheran church on Grove street. This will conclude his discourses on the land of the Pharaohs. The lecture will be illustrated with many of his own photographs. The theme is: "In upper Egypt and Nubia, from Thebes to Wady Halfa."

Sunday-school Teachers' Meeting.

An adjourned teachers' meeting of the Sunday-school of the First Baptist church was held in the lecture room last night. Besides the routine business transacted, resolutions were drafted and adopted in recognition of the valuable services of Mrs. Edith Cairns Wightman as superintendent for eight years of the Junior Department and expressing regret at the severing of her connection with the school on account of removal to New York.

Miss Grace Johnson, of Duer street, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Robert Miller and niece, Miss Grace Miller, in Illinois, for the past two months, is expected home today.

PLANS FOR PLAYGROUND

Landscape Artist Inspects Site for City's Proposed Park.

MRS. MALI AT WORK

President of Improvement Association Originates Idea—Mr. Brinley Favorably Impressed.

Plainfield's small boy will have a playground if the plans of the city authorities do not miscarry, for a scheme is now being considered to convert the city's unused grounds in the West End into a recreation park for the youngsters. The tract to be improved for this purpose includes the North-East corner of West Front street and Rock avenue, having a frontage of 400 feet and running back to the brook. It is opposite the poor farm and septic beds. The plans include the removal of the isolation hospital to another locality for it is proposed to improve the entire tract on the side of the street where it stands.

In company with Mayor C. J. Fisk, who is said to be in hearty favor of the idea, John R. Brinley, of New York, a member of the firm of Brinley & Holbrook, lanscape artists, visited the site this morning. When seen by a Daily Press reporter later, Mr. Brinley was enthusiastic over the scheme. He said that it would make an ideal spot for such a park and its improvements could be brought about at a reasonable expense. Mr. Brinley's ability as a landscape artist is to be seen at the Bronx Botanical Gardens in New York, which he laid out.

Mrs. Pierre Mali, president of the Plainfield-North Plainfield Town Improvement Association, originated the idea and is its warmest advocate. She says that for a long time there has been great need of a place for boys to play and that the present condition of the proposed site is a disgrace to the city. If improved in the manner she suggests will present a pleasing sight to one who enters the city's limits from the west.

The proposition will be considered by the Common Council at an early date.

DEATH ENDS CAREER OF "UNCLE JOHN" TINGLEY

WELL KNOWN DUNELLEN RESIDENT DIED AT HIS HOME TODAY.

John T. Tingley, better known for a radius of twenty-five miles about Plainfield as "Uncle John," died today at his home in Dunellen. He had been ill for several months past and there were several times when it was thought he could live but a few hours. For the last few days he had been sinking slowly and the end came early this morning. Peritonitis is ascribed as the cause of death.

"Uncle John," as everybody, both young and old, called him, was born at Dunellen seventy years ago and was the son of Joseph Tingley, an old Piscataway settler. He learned the butcher's trade when a youth and at one time conducted a market on West Front street, in later years known as the Coriell place. Retiring from this line of business, he took up market gardening at the Dunellen homestead and continued it successfully until his health failed. Since then he had visited all the markets in Plainfield, Elizabeth, New Brunswick and other places at regular intervals, to file the saws and other implements. His coming was always awaited with pleasure as he kept up a continual flow of witticisms while at work and was never at a loss for a new story.

He leaves a wife and two sons, Ulysses G. Tingley, of Pittsburg, and John Tingley, of Bound Brook; also three daughters, Mrs. William Clawson, of South Plainfield; Mrs. Elmer GaNun, of North Plainfield, and Mrs. Jacob Byers, of South Bound Brook. Mr. Tingley and his wife celebrated their golden wedding a short time ago.

The funeral will be held at the late home, Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Observed Sixteenth Anniversary.

The sixteenth anniversary of the founding of the chapter of Epworth League was celebrated at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, last night. The program included a number of selections by Prof. Martin A. Korff's orchestra and an address by the pastor, Rev. E. E. Roberson, who reviewed the history of the chapter in an interesting way. Refreshments were served after the program.

Ralph P. Bache, formerly of this city, but now manager for the Colorado Springs Light and Power Company, is visiting friends in town.

REPUBLICANS NOMINATE

Montgomery, Suydam and Randolph for Councilmen-at-large, Vote 15 to 12.

REGULARS TRIUMPH

New Idea Tries in Vain to Get Control—Organization Solid for Runyon and Lovell, Renominated.

An attempt on the part of the New Idea faction to overthrow the 15 to 12 majority of the regulars by the disqualification of two or three of their delegates proved unsuccessful, and the regulars' ticket was ratified by the party at the Republican City Convention held last night. The fight was over the candidates for councilmen-at-large, and the names of Francis L. Montgomery, of the Second ward; Charles Randolph, of the Third ward, and Harry B. Suydam, of the Fourth ward, as the choice of the regulars, appear on the ticket where the New Idea faction would have had R. Henry Depew, of the Second ward, and Duncan W. Taylor, of the Third ward. William N. Runyon, for city judge, William F. Arnold, for city treasurer, and Leander N. Lovell, for member of the Board of Education, received the unanimous endorsement of both factions.

The attempt to secure the balance of power as conceived by the New Idea delegates was based on a legal technicality. It was alleged that in several cases where proxies appeared for the elected delegates among the regulars, the legal method of electing the proxy by vote of the other delegates of the district had not been employed, but that the original delegate had appointed his own proxy. But the last home of the New Idea faction to name councilmanic candidates was lost early in the convention, where Stephen H. Higham, chairman of the committee on credentials, reported that the credentials were correct and there were no contests. The endorsements throughout were unanimous by wards, the six delegates of the First and the nine of the Fourth, being the regulars, and the six from the Second and the six from the Third representing the New Idea faction.

Previous to the meeting there was a gathering of politicians of both factions at the Casino, the regulars confident of their power and the New Ideaists planning their challenge of credentials under the leadership of G. W. V. Moy. City Chairman W. S. Angleman called the meeting to order at shortly after 8 o'clock. Judge W. R. Codington was elected to the chair, Frank P. Stone was made convention secretary and read the formal call. On the motion of Howard C. Tracy, the chairman appointed Stephen H. Higham, A. W. Matthews, Amos Andrews and C. W. Runyon as a committee to investigate the credentials of the delegates, and Mr. Tracy, Dr. H. H. Lowrie, Aivah Carey, David B. Martin and John Carty as a committee to frame rules for conducting the convention. Upon the report of these committees, Judge Codington was elected permanent chairman, Clarence Goss and Boardman Tyler appointed to assist the secretary and the making of the ticket formally begun.

According to the committee's rule that the nominations be by wards, Amos Andrews, as chairman of the first district, First ward, nominated Charles Randolph and Francis L. Montgomery as candidates for Council and the choice was endorsed by the entire ward. Chairman Tracy, of the first district, Second ward nominated R. Henry Depew, the second district endorsing him. In a somewhat lengthy speech, in which he said he favored home rule in the choice of a candidate by the voters in the ward from which the nomination was made, George W. V. Moy, of the first district, Third ward, nominated Duncan W. Taylor, in opposition to Mr. Randolph, from the same ward. Stephen Higham seconded the nomination in behalf of the second district. Chairman A. W. Matthews of the first district, Fourth ward, nominated Harry B. Suydam as councilmanic candidate, and the other districts had no nominations. When the voting was done by calling the roll by wards, the chairman of the First and Fourth wards together cast their fifteen votes for Messrs. Randolph, Montgomery and Suydam, while the Second and Fourth wards supported Messrs. Taylor and Depew with their twelve votes.

In the naming of a candidate for City Treasurer, Amos Andrews announced when called on for a nomination that the First ward would give way to the Second ward. Mr. Tracy then nominated William F. Arnold, whose candidacy was endorsed by the entire convention and for whom the chairman cast a formal ballot of endorsement. In the nomination for city judge, the regulars again "gave way" and Mr. Tracy for

Those Splendid Watson-Made Light Overcoats Are Reduced

A sale of Watson-made Lightweight Overcoats right in the middle of the season. It's almost unbelievable, yet the Weather Gods have made it necessary.

This is the story: We have by far too many of these lightweight overcoats on hand, and, as it is against the policy of the Watson store to hold any over, it becomes necessary to name these prices. Here are two sample values:

$20 Overcoats — $15.00

Materials are Oxford, Vicunas and Brown Mixed Cheviots, in mostly three-quarter lengths, some silk lined, the perfect collar and lapels easily place this in the $30 custom-tailored class.

$15 Overcoats — $12.00

The medium length models are numerous, and the Watson tailors gave full expression to the styles. The patterns are exclusive in unfinished worsteds and cheviots.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The complaint of Mr. Pyatt against Jessie Terrill, George Pace, Harry Hamin, Thomas Duffey and Harry Sofield for malicious mischief during a masquerade given at Mr. Pyatt's home, was heard in Justice Smith's court last evening. Isaac Runyon, of Plainfield, was counsel for the boys while Mr. Pyatt defended himself. After hearing both sides, it was decided that the evidence was not strong enough for conviction and the case was set aside, with only good advice, and a severe reprimand from the Judge.

The candidates of the Republican party met Hon. Judge Fort, candidate for Governor at R. B. Manning's store, and gave him a hearty welcome, and a warm reception. He arrived there five minutes earlier than scheduled and many were disappointed upon arriving too late to find he had been and gone.

There will be an entertainment in Washington Hall of moving pictures this afternoon and evening. Admission, adults 25 cents; children 15 cents.

DUNELLEN.

Judge Fort did not need to come to Dunellen to get votes. The Dunellenites are solid for the Republican candidate for governor and turned out in force to meet him yesterday morning. The members of the automobile party were introduced to the members of the crowds gathered at the postoffice corner by Henry S. Garretson and Constable Robert Pierce, of New Market. Mr. Fort was cordial to all, heartily greeting all those introduced to him. He only stayed ten minutes, but when the auto whisked away there were plenty of Fort buttons adorning coat lapels and a marked increase in Fort enthusiasm, which is destined to last till voting time.

Work on the new front to be built to the postoffice block was begun yesterday morning, Rimmer; Apgar and Cruzen being the contractors. A. A. Gray, the owner, will have the cornice of the building taken off, the first floor exterior on the North avenue side entirely made new, and five plate glass windows, six by eight feet, installed, making a "plate glass front" similar to the appearance of the bank. The postoffice is to have three windows, two in front and one on the side, and two windows will be used in the adjoining store. The improvements are to cost $800 and, with a force of seven men at work, should be completed in two weeks.

COPPERHEAD SNAKES GIVE HUNTER HARD FIGHT

MADE REPEATED ATTEMPTS TO BITE HIM BEFORE THEY WERE KILLED.

Beating through the underbrush of a heavy woods in the Passaic Valley, yesterday, Robert Rogers, the well known Berkeley Heights baseball enthusiast, encountered a hair-raising experience with two copperhead snakes. Despite the lateness of the season, the reptiles were unusually active and it was only after a hard fight that both were dispatched.

Rogers was in search of woodcock when he suddenly came upon the snakes and one coiled itself about his right leg before he fully realized their proximity. Knowing the deadliness of their bite, he was very much frightened but kept his presence of mind and sought to prevent it from striking him while he released its grip. The other remained on the ground, darting at him again and again but failing to sting him. After leaping about for several minutes, the huntsman succeeded in getting the reptile uncoiled fro mhis person and blew its head off with a shot from his gun. The other one suffered a similar fate in short order.

Rogers has had many a fight with snakes but he declares yesterday's battle to be the worst of all. The experience so unnerved him that he gave up the hunting trip and returned to his home. The copperheads were each about five feet in length.

PERSONAL.

James H. Huntington, of Pearl street, is detained at home with heart trouble.

Shinn, who after seven years' successful service as a missionary in Burma, is temporarily acting as corresponding secretary of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Board at Boston and who addressed the all-day missionary meeting in the First Baptist church today, was the guest of Mrs. George H. Bachelor, of West Seventh street.

Will Open Park Avenue Monday.

The brickmen began yesterday afternoon the work of cementing the brick pavement on Park avenue, and it is expected that this will be finished today. After that a half-inch of sand will be thrown over the surface. It is the intention of City Engineer Gavett to throw the avenue open for general traffic on Monday, unless rain should interfere. Contractor Meeker resumed the work of laying the concrete foundation on Park avenue, this morning, and he hopes to complete this in time for the brickmen to go right on without much delay.

An Unfortunate Interruption.

"And what happened?"

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

The windup of the local season will occur tomorrow at Crescent Oval, when the Clinton Avenues will play a double-header. The first game will be called at 2 o'clock with Scotch Plains and the second at 4 o'clock with the Y. M. C. A.

Physical Director Listman, of the Y. M. C. A., expects to receive the Inter-City Amateur League pennant in a few days and arrangements will be made to present it to the champions, the Clinton Avenues. It is regretted that plans could not have been made to have all the teams of the league in attendance when the pennant is presented, but this seems impossible.

FOOTBALL.

Coach Hutchins, of the Wisconsin eleven, has devised a play in which the whole line takes part, called the pinwheel. The hope is that it won't fizzle out.

The game scheduled for today between P. H. S. and N. P. H. S. has been called off by the borough eleven. The players were not able to get ready for the contest, but hope to meet the Plainfield eleven in the near future.

The Orange Field Club is getting ready for an active season and a strong schedule is being prepared, which includes some of the strongest teams in the State.

The next two games to be played by the Navy are of a distinctly different nature from the two that have been played and will go much further toward establishing the Navy's strength. Vanderbilt is to be played tomorrow and Harvard the following Saturday. In consequence, the practice takes on additional zest and seriousness. The Navy has been through the fire of hard games with Princeton, one of them being a victory over Nassau, and therefore won't be at all overawed by the Cambridge eleven. To find a quarterback was one of the early season problems at Annapolis, but the showing of Lange in that position makes the powers that be very hopeful that the question of finding a worthy successor to Norton has been answered. The Navy's chief rival, West Point, has had no brilliant quarterback since Daly's day, but has a steady, heady player in Mountford, and one who has the advantage of being a seasoned campaigner.

GOLF.

Somewhat out of the ordinary is an invitation tournament for women golfers of the Metropolitan Golf Association district. It will be held over the course of the Essex County Country Club at West Orange, where Mrs. Manice beat Mrs. Stout for the metropolitan championship some years ago. All entries for the coming tournament should be sent to Mrs. E. F. Sanford, 12 West Seventy-second street, Manhattan. The play will be on October 15, 16, 17 and 18, with a varied programme to bring forward golfers of the scratch or higher handicaps.

Apropos of the rules, revisions and the British fear of American innovations, Field treats at some length in an editorial on the fundamental differences between the golfers of the two lands. We are iconoclastic, it would seem, and too much given to analysis. Even to play over all the best holes and hazards now being arranged by C. B. Macdonald will be in the minds of the British conservatives, an instance of snatching a fearful joy." The conclusions of the essay are:

"Britains are less anxious to start acute problems and to bustle restlessly in search of unsatisfying solutions. We play the game much in the same condition that our forefathers handed it on to us, and out of it we contrive to extract a vast deal of enjoyment for the body and repose for the spirit. British golfers have not yet been educated to drag to the front the extracting analytical side of athletics and to study every phase of the game as if it ought to be made the absorbing business of a life's serious study. We are fonder of it as a relaxation in the open air and the sunshine, as an inspiring foil to the care and humdrum sorrows of the ordinary working day. But those who have watched the many American golfers who have been lately in our midst and welcomed with cordiality on all our links could not fail to be struck by the settled methods of their play according to a system of training carefully thought out and scrupulously applied in all its details. The majority of them played the game really well and with even more than British ardor, but withal there seemed to be an absence of that insouciance which is so marked a feature of the British holiday golfer when he finds himself at the seaside.

The American player always seems to be thinking of a catchword in the chain of his previous study before he plays the next shot, to be always mentally on guard lest he has forgotten some trifling detail which shall throw the whole of his system out of gear. The British player, on the other hand, is more devil-me-care more intent upon the fun to be got out of the game at the moment, less careful of his style, more anxious to enjoy the passing benefits of the relaxation. On the one side elaborate care to apply principles carefully thought out beforehand; on the other side, a certain amount of carless, buoyant recklessness, which is joyfully expressed as long as the ball is fairly well hit. That seems to mark the distinction between American and British golf.

Women's Dress and Women's Homes

On a morning walk an English woman said to the writer in one of our western cities especially given over to the national passion for dress: "Any countrywoman of mine dressed as that woman is, or that, would be in her carriage. She would return to a substantial home, the door would be opened by a man in livery, every item of her environment would match the elegance of those furs, that frightfully expensive hat, that very sart broadcloth walking suit, whereas the chances are (you see I've been keeping my eyes open) that she came in a street car and will go home in one. She lives either in tiny lodgings—I beg your pardon, flat—and will open her front door with a pass key, or else she lives in one of the suburban towns in a very trumpery sort of little house which does not in the least match those furs or that hat. And a slovenly 'slavey' attends the door when she rings for admittance"—

"Or, what is much more likely, her daughter or her mother," added the American.—Anna A. Rogers in Atlantic.

Hit Him With the Text.

"On a visit to Scotland I went to the old United Presbyterian kirk at Savoch," said a clergyman, "and I heard a good story about a former minister. His name was the Rev. David Caw, and he was very diminutive, standing only about five feet two inches. He led to the altar a strapping, handsome lass some five or six inches taller than he, and her name was Grace Wilson.

"The Sunday after the wedding he got a neighboring minister to preach for him, so that he could sit with his bride on the first Sunday. The minister was a good deal of a wag, so Mr. Caw made him promise faithfully that he would not allude in his sermon to himself, his bride or the fact of the marriage. So he promised that in his sermon he would make no allusion of that kind whatever, but Mr. Caw nearly sank through the floor when the text was given out—Ephesians iii, 8, 'Unto me, who am less than the least of all saints, is this Grace given:'"

Quite a Difference.

"I am afraid you are not so strong as you used to be, John," said a fond wife to her husband. "I think it is about time you were getting some insurance on your life."

"Insurance on my life! What are you talkng about? I am as healthy as ever I was. Insurance, indeed!"

"Well, dear, I only mentioned it, you know, out of respect to yourself. I thought you were failing."

"And what in the world put it into your head that I am failing? Me failing? Why, I am as strong as a horse and can run up these flights of stairs without taking a breath."

"Well, that may be so, but I am afraid you are deceiving yourself."

"Deceiving myself! Goodness gracious, woman, what do you mean?"

"Don't be so impatient. What makes me think you are failing is this: When you were courting me you could hold me on your knee for three hours; now you cannot hold the baby on your lap three minutes."—Pearson's.

BOROUGH SEWERS ARE AGAIN BEING AGITATED

SPECIAL COMMITTEE CIRCULATING PETITION AMONG PROPERTY OWNERS.

Borough Tax Collector George F. Brown, as member of the North Plainfield committee to bring the matter of sewering the borough before the people, has completed a list of tax payers of the borough, together with the location of their property and the amount of their assessment as a step toward the holding of a special election to vote on the question of installing a sewerage system in the borough. In order to legally have such an election to vote on the question, it is necessary for the owners of more than half of the assessed value of borough property to sign the petition now in the tax collector's office, and if a sufficient number of property owners sign, the committee will appeal to the borough council for a day to be set aside to vote on the question.

Certain members of the sewer committee appointed after the dissolution of the committee of fifty, are agitating the matter of sewering the borough, and in order to bring the matter to a head, its members are circulating copies of the petition among the property owners across the brook. The committee consists of Ex-Councilman Charles A. Lee, William G. Debele, George F. Brown, A. E. Kenney and J. V. E. Vanderhoef. Several copies of the list have been made, and the committee will shortly hold a meeting at which time each member will take upon himself the work of seeing a certain number of the largest property owners for the purpose of securing their signatures to the petition for special election. In this way the work will be completed most quickly and it is possible that the election will be held November 5.

FRANKLIN COUNCIL'S 20TH ANNIVERSARY

JR. O. U. A. M. MEMBERS HAVE A BIG TIME.

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., celebrated its twentieth anniversary in Junior Hall, last night, in an informal way. There were guests from Plainfield, Somerset and Benevolent Councils, Jr. O. U. A. M., who enjoyed a program presented by a trio of professionals from New York. The numbers included impersonations and selections on all kinds of musical instruments.

A feature of the evening was a short patriotic address by Rev. E. E. Roberson, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church. He congratulated Franklin Council for its twenty years of success in promoting the cardinal principles of the order. After the program refreshments were served under the direction of the good and welfare committee of which Roy DeCamp is the chairman.

Franklin Council was instituted on October 6, 1887 with a charter membership of nearly fifty. Today the membership is 357 and is constantly increasing. One new member was elected last night and several propositions will be received at the next meeting. The council has been very successful financially and otherwise and is today the oldest among the councils of that order in the city.

the New Idea faction named Judge William N. Runyon for re-election. The nomination was formally voted on by wards, receiving unanimous endorsement. Leander N. Lovell was nominated as New Idea candidate for member of the Board of Education by William Taylor. The regulars named no candidate and the nomination was ratified by formal vote.

Previous to adjournment, Judge Codington appointed Amos Andrews, Howard Tracy, Stephen Higham and C. W. Runyon as a committee to fill vacancies which might occur before election. This was on motion of Mr. Andrews that one member of the committee be chosen from each ward.

In one of his letters, Mr. Ruttmann explains his silence. It is a personal letter to a Princeton College man who was a classmate with him in the Columbia School of Mines. Briefly, when he had penetrated the wildernesses of Mexico and found what he sought he kept his own counsel until he had made absolutely sure that his efforts had been successful. He has gone so far with the tin project now that the pig metal will soon be in the market for sale, "just," as he remarks, "as a farmer would offer his products." There will be no stock company exploitations and no notoriety or publicity if Mr. Ruttmann can avoid it.

In this letter he says that as there is no longer any reason for keeping the secret of his discovery he presumes it will become public and authorizes the recipient of the letter to make public the statement that it will be useless for others to invade the region in which he has prospected, as he has held the secret until he could arrange so there would be no competitors digging into his veins or starting litigations or doing other things that have at times made mining a source of trouble in Montana and other mining States.

Mexican miners get $1 a day, or 50 cents American money, which will hardly tempt residents of the United States. There is practically nothing else in the Durango wilderness for Americans, who are good at anything, and he feels that this fact ought to be made prominent in anything that may be published about his discovery.

This is an extract from one of the new tin millionaire's letters:

"My long tour of engineering duty does not seem to have been without result. As you know, I came to Mexico to find gold and silver, but I have discovered something quite as good in a way. Outside of Alaska, which is only accessible part of the year, there is no tin produced in the United States. One of the mineral properties which I have discovered yields an assay from 20 to 40 per cent. metallic tin, while the average ore from Cornwall is only 1 per cent, and that is one of the chief sources of supply for the American tin plate industry. Some pieces of ore have have assayed as high as 60 per cent., but the lowest is so much higher than other mines produce than this one is undoubtedly a bonanza.

"It may interest you to know that the ore occurs as cassiterite, and the hitherto rare mineral durangite is quite plentiful in the ore. Free gold and silver are found in the ore, which is taken from granitoid rock composed chiefly of quartz and a pink-colored feldspar. Topaz also is found associated with the ore, a significant fact. At the location of this mine the igneous overflow has been eroded, laying bare the outcrop of the granite:

"On either side of this property the trachyte and diorite rock rises in precipitous cliffs for hundreds of feet, showing the depth to which the granite is covered at this point, or, to make it plainer to you, except for the denudation of the overlying igneous rock at this point this exceptional deposit might have remained undiscovered for centuries to come."

A Big Attraction.

Mortimer M. Theise' newest musical comedy, "The Two Islands," which holds the boards at the New Plainfield theatre tonight, is one of the best attractions booked for the present month. The principals have been selected from among Broadway's best known singers and dancers and the chorus is said to be a "Blue Ribbon bunch." The production is handsomely staged and costumed and is replete with comedy and good music.

'Squire Hand Acts As Cop.

William Jeroloman, a well known borough resident, was arraigned before Judge Runyon, this morning, charged by Justice Hezekiah Hand with drunkenness and disorderly conduct. The justice claimed that the defendant had made a nuisance of himself on the street and he had steered him to police headquarters. Sentence was suspended with a lecture.

BISHOPS' LAW MUST STAY SAYS NOMINEE

ASSEMBLYMAN CANDIDATE WANTS NO EXCISE CHANGE.

It has remained for Adolph Steengrafe, Jr., of South Plainfield, to become the first candidate of the Republican party in the present campaign to make an unequivocal declaration on the excise situation. Mr. Steengrafe is a candidate for Assembly in Middlesex county and he declares that he wants the people to know just where he stands on the questions that will confront the next Legislature.

"You just put it in as big type as you want that if elected I will never vote to make any change in the Bishops' law as it is on the statute books today. It's there and it's going to stay there if it depends on my vote. I stand firmly on each and every plank in the Republican platform and I won't beat around the bush. I'll not only stand by them but will fight for their fulfillment. Furthermore, I'll uphold Mr. Fort in everything he does or wants to do."

Installed As Pastor.

Rev. R. A. Mark, who was admitted to the ministry by the Elizabeth Presbytery last week, was installed as pastor of the Woodbridge Presbyterian church, last night. Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of this city, acted as moderator. Rev. Mr. Mark was the candidate whom was called upon to preach a sermon for his admission was decided upon and gave an excellent discourse.

His Threat to a Conductor.

Some time ago a man at Ypsilanti, Mich., became crazed on the subject of hypnotism and was sent on a Michigan Central train to an asylum. When the conductor asked for tickets the crazy man began telling of his hypnotic powers.

"I'll hypnotize you," he said.

"Fire away," replied the conductor.

The man made several passes before the conductor's face.

"Now you are hypnotized," he said.

The conductor looked the part as best he could.

"You're a conductor," the hypnotist said.

"That's right," replied his victim.

"You're a good conductor," went on the hypnotist.

"Right again," said the conductor.

"You don't smoke, drink or swear at passengers. You are honest. You turn in all tickets and money you collect from passengers. In fact, you do not steal a cent."

"That's right," assented the conductor.

The hypnotist eyed him a moment, then said:

"What an awful fix you'd be in if I left you in this condition!"—Kansas City Star.

A Corporal's Lesson.

During the Revolutionary war the captain of a little band of soldiers was giving orders about a heavy beam that they were endeavoring to raise to the top of some military works which they were repairing. The weight was almost beyond their power, and the voice of the superintendent was often heard shouting at them. An officer not in military costume was passing and asked the superintendent why he did not render a little aid. The latter, astonished, turned around, with the pomp of an emperor, and said, "Sir, I am a corporal!"

"You are, are you? I ask your pardon, Mr. Corporal," and, taking off his hat, he bowed, saying, "I was not aware of that."

Upon this he dismounted and pulled until great drops of perspiration stood on his forehead. When the beam was raised, turning to the little great man, he said, "Mr. Corporal, when you have another such job and not enough men send for your commander in chief and I will gladly come and help you a second time."

The little corporal was thunderstruck. It was Washington who thus addressed him.

Lights Out!

An irascible sergeant, going his nightly round of the barracks in order to make sure that all lights had been extinguished, noticed that a window was illuminated. He roused the occupants of the room. "Put out that light," he ordered, "and be quick about it!"

"But it's moonlight," explained a private.

"I don't care what it is," roared the sergeant; "put it out!"—London Graphic.

4 Wholesale Clothiers'

Entire Stocks to be Sold by Us at About ½ Manufacturers' Cost.

THEY HAD TO RAISE CASH AND CAME TO US.

Although wholesale Clothiers have been doing an immense business during the past three months and have shipped Fall and Winter Merchandise East, West and South, some of them find themselves in a "Tight Place," Pushed for Ready Cash. They have received very scant remittances up to now, besides they couldn't raise money on account of the tight money market. Their wealth is on their books—ready cash is what they require. In their trouble they came to us, knowing our capacity to handle large stocks for spot cash if the merchandise was attractive in price.

We offered them less than half the usual manufacturers' prices, and they refused positively to accept our ridiculously low offer until last Monday, when a conference of all four makers was held at our Twenty-third street store, New York, and

Mortimer M. Thiese's new musical comedy, "The Two Islands," will be presented at the New Plainfield theatre tonight. The play will go direct from this city to the Circle theatre New York, for a long run.

Laughter, smiles, tears, showgirls, comedians, tuneful, musical, dramatic situations, elaborate costuming and scenic display, are all promised local theatre-goers when Broadway's favorite comic opera star, Grace Cameron, makes her appearance in C. H. Kerr's latest, biggest and best success, "Little Dollie Dimples," which is now in its second year of great success, at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow afternoon and night. This piece cannot be termed a "musical comedy," nor is it hardly after the style of the old-fashioned comic opera, but is classed more in the line of a musical drama. Miss Cameron whose voice is that of the lyric or coloratura as well as a dramatic soprano, will be heard to great advantage in the various solos and finales, which are far better, musically speaking, than the average musical comedy or comic opera affords.

Miss Grace Cameron, at New Plainfield Theatre, Saturday Afternoon and Night, Oct. 12.

If you enjoy a really dainty, tuneful and artistic musical production, "Woodland," which Henry W. Savage will present at the New Plainfield theatre next Tuesday night, will surely please you. This delightful musical play, which has been termed a "fantasy of the forest," is by Frank Pixley and Gustav Luders, the authors of "The Prince of Pilsen" and "Kind Dodo," is original in them and has not a dull or tiresome moment. A strikingly beautiful singing chorus and a large and well balanced orchestra lend to the appeal of this beautiful musical novelty.

Laura Burt and Henry Stanford, for several years playing leading business for the late Sir Henry Irving, have been engaged to co-star in the London and New York success, "The Walls of Jericho," which will be at the New Plainfield theatre next Thursday night. Alfred Sutro, the author of "The Walls of Jericho," before its production, had for many years been struggling to gain recognition as a dramatic author. Play after play was ejected until he hit upon the idea of presenting to the British public a picture of the doings of the social world, which he called, "The Walls of Jericho." From the first this play met with great favor and enjoyed popularity for over two years at the British capitol. Later it was brought to America and presented in New York, where its success was just as emphatic and secure.

—Mr. Alex. Newman, local manager for King's, the clothiers, corner Market and Halsey streets, Newark, has again shown his aggressiveness and business acumen, he having induced his firm to inaugurate one of the greatest clothing sales ever heralded in or about Newark. Four reputable clothing manufacturers, whose names for various reasons are withheld, but whose merchandise will readily be recognized by good dressers, needed ready money and came to King to dispose of their stocks for a cash consideration. The deal was gigantic but was an opportunity not to be cast aside. King purchased the combined stocks at 40 cents on the dollar. Every garment is new and up to date and would easily bring regular prices. Mr. Newman at once saw the possibilities presented, and urged the sale that commences Saturday morning, October 12, at 9 a. m., at their Market and Halsey street store, Newark. The entire stocks will be sold at a close margin giving their patrons clothing at half the actual cost of manufacturing. The merchandise comprises all the new fall suits and overcoats for men, young men and children. It will certainly pay you to visit King before purchasing your winter outfit. Sale will start Saturday, October 12, at 9 a. m.

REMOVED TO 112 WATCHUNG AVE.

Costly Monotony in Dress.

Our clothes are all alike, and this monotony has led to unlimited extravagances. What has not bee done to make the eternal pinafore frock look original? New elaborations are invented daily, each one more expensive than the last, but nobody is deceived. It is still the old pinafore, only a little madder, a little dearer every day.—London Graphic.

Used Up.

Digby—How long did it take you to learn to run a motor car? Skorcher—Oh, five or six. Digby—Five or six what—weeks? Skorcher—No; motor cars.—Catholic Standard and Times.

Anatomy.

The Professor—Some of you gentlemen are not giving me your closest attention. Mr. Biggs, what do you find under the kidneys? Future M. D.—Toast, sir.—Puck.

MANAGER COUNIHAN'S NEW THEATRE OPENED

With every seat in the house occupied and standing room at a premium, Manager William J. Counihan's New Majestic theatre at Perth Amboy was opened last night. The Lew Fields' show "About Town," which appeared here Wednesday night, was presented as the initial attraction and gave every satisfaction to the audience. The patrons included many of Mr. Counihan's Plainfield friends who journeyed over by auto and carriage to aid in giving the house a proper "send-off."

Perth Amboy's officials were in evidence at the performance and the mayor made an opening address previous to the rise of the curtain. He congratulated the people of the city on their possession of a handsome play-house playing standard attractions and wished Mr. Counihan every success in his newest enterprise. Following the close of the show, the city officials, several New York theatrical managers and a dozen well known Plainfielders were guests of Mr. Counihan at a banquet. The affair took place in the Packer House and was the occasion for several informal speeches.

The New Majestic is built somewhat on the lines of the Plainfield theatre and has a slightly larger capacity. It stands on Madison street, a short distance from the New Jersey Central station and is in an ideal location. Michael L. Shannon, who was formerly advertising manager for the local house, will be resident manager, and Leonce Texier, also a member of the Plainfield staff up to the present, will be treasurer.

Was——Is——Will Be

IT WAS, only about a year ago, just a pretty farm.

IT IS to day the finest building site in Plainfield, with broad avenues macadamized their entire width, concrete curb, sidewalks, trees, gas, electric light, in fact all improvements. Nearly $100,000 expended in new and handsome dwellings, now ready for the market.

WHAT IT WILL BE we hardly dare predict, with contracts out for even more extensive improvements and twelve more handsome residences.

Central Park is that beautifully situated tract bounded by Park, Prospect, Hillside and Thornton Avenues.

Lots selling rapidly—Prices very low—Great investment or speculative opportunities.

Somerville's fire department conducted its bi-annual inspection and parade yesterday. Twenty companies were in line with various apparatus and the number of marching men was close to 1,000. Colonel Nelson Y. Dungan was grand marshal. IN THE FOG

BY

Richard Harding Davis.

COPYRIGHT, 1901, BY ROBERT HOWARD RUSSELL.

"And I give you my word, I was such an ass that I did open the case and looked all through it. She must have thought I was a Juggins. I get hot all over whenever I remember it. But in spite of my dulness, and her cleverness, she couldn't gain anything by sending me away, because what she wanted was in the hand bag and every time she sent me away the hand bag went with me.

"After the incident of the dressing-case her manner changed. Either in my absence she had had time to look through it, or, when I was examining it for broken bottles, she had seen everything it held.

"From that moment she must have been certain that the cigar-case, in which she knew I carried the diamonds, was in the bag that was fastened to my body, and from that time on she probably was plotting how to get it from me.

"Her anxiety became most apparent. She dropped the great lady manner, and her charming condescension went with it. She ceased talking, and, when I spoke, answered me irritably, or at random. No doubt her mind was entirely occupied with her plan. The end of our journey was drawing rapidly nearer, and her time for action was being cut down with the speed of the express train. Even I, unsuspicious as I was, noticed that something was very wrong with her. I really believe that before we reached Marseilles if I had not, through my own stupidity, given her the chance she wanted, she might have stuck a knife in me and rolled me out on the rails. But as it was, I only thought that the long journey had tired her. I suggested that it was a very trying trip, and asked her if she would allow me to offer her some of my cognac.

"She thanked me and said, 'No,' and then suddenly her eyes lighted, and she exclaimed, 'Yes, thank you, if you will be so kind.'

"My flask was in the hand bag, and I placed it on my lap and with my thumb slipped back the catch. As I keep my tickets and railroad guide in the bag, I am so constantly opening it that I never bother to lock it, and the fact that it is strapped to me has always been sufficient protection. But I can appreciate now what a satisfaction, and what a torment too, it must have been to that woman when she saw that the bag opened without a key.

"While we were crossing the mountains I had felt rather chilly and had been wearing a light racing coat. But after the lamps were lighted the compartment became very hot and stuffy, and I found the coat uncomfortable. So I stood up, and, after first slipping the strap of the bag over my head, I placed the bag in the seat next me and pulled off the racing coat. I don't blame myself for being careless; the bag was still within reach of my hand, and nothing would have happened if at that exact moment the train had not stopped at Arles. It was the combination of my removing the bag and our entering the station at the same instant which gave the Princess Zichy the chance she wanted to rob me.

"I needn't say that she was clever enough to take it. The train ran into the station at full speed and came to a sudden stop. I had just thrown my coat into the rack, and had reached out my hand for the bag. In another instant I would have had the strap around my shoulder. But at that moment the Princess threw open the door of the compartment and beckoned wildly at the people on the platform. 'Natalie!' she called, 'Natalie! here I am. Come here! This way!' She turned upon me in the greatest excitement. 'My maid!' she cried. 'She is looking for me. She passed the window without seeing me. Go, please, and bring her back.' She continued pointing out of the door and beckoning me with her other hand. There certainly was something about that woman's tone which made one jump. When she was giving orders you had no chance to think of anything else. So I rushed out on my errand of mercy, and then rushed back again to ask what the maid looked like.

"'In black,' she answered, rising and blocking the door of the compartment. 'All in black, with a bonnet!'

Symptoms of Worms
This condition exists much more generally than most parents are willing to admit. And yet it is perhaps the most insidiously dangerous disorder of childhood.
Watch for flushed cheeks, lassitude, lack of appetite, picking of the nose by growing children, and have always ready in the house. It is not merely a worm-expelling agent—it is the most efficient general tonic ever prescribed, and has been since thirty years before the Civil War.
DR. D. JAYNE'S TONIC VERMIFUGE
Sold by all first-class druggists in 50c. and 35c. bottles.
Jayne's Expectorant is the oldest and most reliable remedy known for Coughs, Croup, Whooping Cough, Cold in the Chest, Bronchitis, Pleurisy and similar ailments.

One of our clients owed $48 between four people. His salary is $14 weekly; rent $12 monthly. To have paid $2 weekly to each creditor, combined with rent, would have left only $3 per week to meet expenses, buy clothing, etc.—an impossibility you will agree. He borrowed $50, paid all his creditors, made his future credit good, if ever needed; pays his rent, the loan payments, and has $9 each week to use as his judgment dictates.

MINER MIDAS IS EX-PATTERN BOY

SUPPOSED MILLIONAIRE LEAVES GOLDEN TRAIL OF HOPES DEFERRED.

BANK ACCOUNT FAILS SUDDENLY

"Jack West" Known by His Parents as Jacob Wolinsky Creates Furore at St. Joseph, Mich.—High Roller Pro Tem.

Chicago.—The original "hallroom boy" has come to grief. His two fancy vests really ought to go to the cleaner, but when a chap buys a good town like St. Joseph, Mich., and a maze of diners down at little old Gotham, he shouldn't be blamed if his dollar bills are all gone.

That is just what has happened to "Jack West," whose parents always called him Jacob Wolinsky, because Wolinsky happened to be their name.

Wolinsky sounded good enough for the youth when he was drawing "$20 per" as a bookkeeper in the pattern plant of a fashion publishing company when he married a pretty little girl who wasn't a bad pattern herself. But the name was far too vulgar for a man with a mysterious mine of a million.

So when Wolinsky came buzzing back from Goldfield, Nev., with two dazzling vests and a bundle of bills he assumed a name more fitting to his station—"Jack West." Not that "West" rhymed with "vest," but that Wolinsky didn't sound at all musical to the aesthetic ears of the whilom pattern boy.

Meanwhile Miss Shapiro, the girl who had married the pattern boy waited out on Taylor street and wondered what had become of her beardless husband. Now she is playing the part of Mrs. S. Holmes, detective, and following the littered trail of the youth who left her love eight months ago.

"West" arrived at St. Joseph, Mich., a few days ago and began operations by buying up the town. Word soon spread that "Scotty" had come, but when questioned "West" told his new acquaintances to perish the thought. He even intimated that he might engage the cowboy Croesus as his valet before he was through spending money.

St. Joseph accepted "West" and his fancy vests without further investigation. True they couldn't find him in

"Jack West."

Bradstreet's but then fortunes move fast these days at Goldfield.

It was particularly noticed, however, that none of the bellboys at St. Joseph were staggering under the burden of "Jack West's" tips. But the meteoric millionaire had gone when this was discovered and his dupes decided dumbness would be discreet and nursed their injured feelings in silence.

"West" next went to New York, where he began negotiations for the purchase of the Egyptian obelisk in Central park. He said he thought the shaft would well serve the purpose of marking the entrance to his gold mine in Nevada.

The urbane Gothamites began to pay homage to the supposed incipient Rockefeller. He was free to stroll among the luxurious mural decorations of the exclusive restaurants along the "Great White Way."

But suddenly it was discovered that "Jack West" was after all only an ex-pattern boy. That his bank account consisted only of a few hard-earned bills now completely exhausted. And that the debonnaire bon vivant was a high roller only pro tem.

Exit "Jack West" with fancy vests.

Child's Remarkable Escape.

London.—A child of 4 has had a remarkable escape from death on the line between Clacton-on-Sea and Colchester, having fallen from a train while it was traveling at thirty miles an hour. Mrs. Readewell was journeying to London with her three children, when the carriage door flew open and her little boy, Alfred, fell on the line. Promptly pulling the communication corn, Mrs. Readewell had the train stopped, and a number of passengers proceeded along the railway to search for the child. To their astonishment they met the child walking along the line toward them, and subsequent medical examination showed that he was not dangerously injured.

RANCHMAN RODE LIKE WIND TO HELP A GIRL

PITTED HIS PONY AGAINST TRAIN IN RACE FOR CLAIM AND WON IT FOR HER.

Grand City, S. D.—No knight of old ever served his lady better than has Belleman Skaife, of the famous Skaife ranch, served Miss Bae Mills, of Southern Illinois, a total stranger to him. Riding his horse across the plains forty-five miles in a race against a railroad train he saved for her a homestead upon which she had set her heart and which another had tried to take from her. Her competitor for the fine farm arrived by train, but five minutes after the almost exhausted horse stumbled with his rider at the door of the land office in this city.

Miss Mills came to Washta, forty-five miles east of here, to take up a claim, and, finding one much to her liking, determined to make entry upon it. Her purpose became known, and another homeseeker, a man, early in the morning filed on the same piece at Washta. The young woman's disappointment was keen, and her tears attracted to her the sympathetic Belleman Skaife. She told him her story. He looked at his watch and said simply:

"I'll save it for you. That fellow's filing here is not final; he must first make entry at the Rapid City land office. Give me your papers."

Miss Mills quickly made her preliminary local filing and gave the papers to Skaife, who said he would beat the train to Rapid City and hand the papers in ahead of the rival for the land. The latter had not left town yet, but the train was about due. Skaife started and in less than three hours he had reached his destination, while the train, which had to go farther around, came puffing in about neck and neck with Skaife's plucky horse.

He wired back to Miss Mills his victory, and her delight was expressed in a voluble and most approving manner of the knight who has won her a home.

BOY BECOMES CALLIOPE.

Swallows Tin Whistle and Learns to Play Tunes.

Des Moines, Ia.—Lars Larson, seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Larson, living near here, is achieving fame as a human calliope.

The lad, who is of an imitative turn of mind, swallowed a small whistle a few days ago, after seeing a calliope that a traveling circus brought here. He said he could become a whistler of note if he had lungs as strong as the steam chest of the calliope, and so, when he obtained the whistle, which was made of tin, he promptly swallowed it.

Much to his satisfaction the whistle became fixed crosswise in his throat, and now the youngster can make music that can be heard half a mile away. He is gradually learning to play tunes on the whistle, and his practice, in which he insists in indulging at night, is keeping his father and mother and all the neighbors wide awake.

"The boy is in no danger," says a surgeon who has examined him, "and possibly he will soon be able to draw a big salary from a museum as the only living calliope. As he has an ear for music, there is no reason why he should not play tunes on the whistle by breathing in the proper manner."

Live Wire Disrobes a Woman.

Atlanta, Ga.—Alleging that she was completely disrobed by a live wire, Mrs. Maude S. Orr has sued the Georgia Railway and Electic company for $10,000 damages. Mrs. Orr was shopping on Whitehall street when the broken end of a guy wire, which had been charged in some way touched her belt. The shock tore off the belt and most of Mrs. Orr's clothing. In addition to this humiliation, Mrs. Orr alleges that the shock caused her serious physical injury.

Drunkenness in 1600.

An English traveler, writing in the year 1600, said that there were more saloons in Dublin than in any other city in the world. The Irish, he said, always got drunk at wakes, weddings and fairs. The English were not far behind them, and over on the continent alcohol was also making great headway. Here in America, too, drinking was becoming a popular sport

UNRIVALED BILL AT FETE

Among the Many Shows the Clans Will Produce Minstrelsy and Vaudeville.

REAL LIFE PORTRAITS

Society Women to Pose In Depicting Gainsboroughs and the Like —Supper a la Martin.

Among the noteworthy features of "The Gathering of the Clans," to be held at the Casino, next week for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital, will be an exhibition of eight noted portraits. Each one will be impersonated by a prominent Plainfield woman, and among the portraits to be shown are the following: "The Broken Pitcher," "Princess D'Este," "The Lady with the Muff," "The Duchess of Devonshire," "Ruth," "Mrs. Cecil Lowell," "The Maid of the Manor." Mrs. Frederick H. Andrews is the chairman of the committee in charge, and her assistants are Mrs. Charles E. Brooks and George Wharton Edwards, who will lend skill in arranging and posing the pictures. The exhibition will be given Thursday night, October 17, and Monday night, October 21.

Local folks are advised not to purchase their winter supply of plants for the home until they inspect those to be offered for sale in the flower booth. Every dollar spent there will mean not only brightness and beauty for the spender but comfort and relief for some sufferer in the hospital. The first and last call when attending the affair should be at the flower booth, where will be found a large assortment of palms, rubber plants, potted plants, bulbs, choice seeds and cut flowers. Mrs. Henry C. Ireland is chairman of the committee in charge and her assistants are Mrs. J. C. Gilbert, Mrs. Edward T. Vanderveen, Mrs. J. M. Shellabarger, Mrs. Benjamin Wood, Mrs. George S. Riley, Mrs. Harry Lovell, Mrs. George Benton, Mrs. Alfred Streuli, Mrs. Thomas Beard, Mrs. Howard Beebe, Mrs. Arthur Otterson, Miss Elsie Martin and Miss Otterson.

One of the booths that proved to be a great attraction at previous fairs and carnivals for the hospital was the "welsh rarebit booth," and once again, Mrs. John B. Dumont and her committee feel assured of another success at "The Gathering of the Clans." There will be delicious golden brown rarebits at this booth, graham cakes, a specialty of the Adirondacks, most spicy grandmother's pickle, to be sold in jars and also to be served with the welsh rarebit, as a relish. Plates decorated with rabbits are to be on sale, to be used when serving this special dish.

There will be a cigar counter in connection with this booth, which will enable gentlemen to enjoy a smoke after their repast and have "all the comforts of home." MISS JOSEPHINE JOSEPH NOW MRS. H. M. WOODARD

Announcement was made today of the marriage of Miss Josephine E. Joseph, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen B. Joseph, of Willow avenue, the borough, and Herbert M. Woodard, of Greenfield, Mass. The ceremony was performed in New York, Thursday night, by Rev. F. E. Stockton, pastor of a Presbyterian church in that city. After the wedding the couple went to Newburg, N. Y., where they have been since that time. They expect to visit the bride's parents in a few days.

The bride is well-known here in a large circle of acquaintances. She has been especially active in church affairs at the Park Avenue Baptist church. The groom is engaged in the real estate business in New York and the trip to Newburg was partly on business and partly as a honeymoon.

HOPE CHAPEL'S FAIR TO CONCLUDE TONIGHT

Hope chapel's Industrial Fair which has been in progress since Tuesday will draw to a close tonight. The attendances have been large every evening and the financial success is already assured. Last night's patronage was the best of the week and every volunteer worker was kept busy until after 11 o'clock.

An event not on the program for last evening was the presentation to Judge William N. Runyon of an Inverness shepherd's crook by members of the chapel in recognition of his work at the fair. It was brought from Scotland last summer by a member of the Women's Bible class and was adorned with a Scotch plaid and a sprig of heather. A silver plate suitably engraved was also on it. The gift was decidedly unique and coming unexpectedly, was doubly appreciated by the receiver.

A feature of the fair tonight will be an elaborate supper served by members of the Ladies' Aid Society, with Mrs. Robert Hangliter acting as head chef." Diners will be welcomed from 6 until 9 and they will have the following excellent menu: Fricasseed chicken, mashed potatoes, cold slaw, boiled ham, potatoe salad, baked beans, cake, pie, tea and coffee. The bakery department, an auxiliary to the dining room, will present an array of Boston brown bread, home-made bread, cake and other good things that will be sure to find many purchasers. This department is in charge of Mrs. Walter Bradford and an able corps of assistants.

The proceeds from the affair will be devoted to the organ fund of the chapel.

FALLING INTO EXCAVATION JUDGE CLARK BADLY HURT.

While crossing Front street, Scotch Plains, last night, in front of the home of Parker Miller, Judge Joseph Clarke fell into a trench and dislocated his left leg. The excavation, which was marked by no lights in the dark, was where a gang of men are making the water connection from the street main to Miller's house.

The accident happened about seven o'clock. Bystanders helped the Judge home and County Physician F. W. Westcott was summoned. An examination showed that the limb had been dislocated just below the knee. The Judge is also suffering from the shock and will be confined to his house for several weeks.

Y. W. C. A. Gym Work.

Many of those registered for the gymnasium classes at the Y. W. C. A. met at the association Thursday night for physical examination by Dr. Francis DuBois. Navy blue has been decided upon as the color of the gymnasium suits for the class, and several spent part of the evening working on their suits. Classes will be held Monday, Tuesday and Friday evenings. Thursday evening is to be reserved for special practice time, with possible basket ball games and indoor baseball.

Will Act on P. S. C. Petition.

There will be an adjourned meeting of the Common Council Monday night when it is expected that definite action will be taken regarding the petition of the Public Service Corporation to double track East Front street and Watchung avenue. A petition will also be received from property-owners protesting against the improvement.

Will Dedicate New Chapel.

The dedicatory services of the new Warren chapel will be held at the chapel tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock, when several prominent speakers and special music will be features. The handsome new organ will also be used for the first time at a regular service. The pastor, Rev. J. O. McKelvey, will be in charge of the exercises.

LEGISLATURE ENDS WORK

House Kills the Senate's Public Utility and Civil Service Measures.

FOR DIRECT PRIMARIES

Popular Choice of United States Senators Heretfter—Ackerman Active.

By a unanimous vote of 19, the Senate at Trenton yesterday fulfilled one of the platform pledges of the Republican and Democratic parties in the State by passing the civil service commission act introduced by Senator Ackerman.

The measure provides for three commissioners, and Governor Stokes announced when the measure was before the last session that when it passed he would name James Kerney, of Trenton; Edward W. Gray, of Newark, and the Rev. Adolph Roeder, of Orange, the commissioners, at $3,000 yearly salaries and $500 for traveling expenses a year.

No employes of the State now in office will be required to pass examinations before the commission, and the act is not effective in county and municipal affairs until the voters of the county or the municipality shall have accepted it at a regular election.

The House defeated the civil service bill. It was amended in the House by making the commission elective whice instead of taking the question from politics would have had the opposite result. On the vote in the House the bill was beaten.

A conference between the Senate and the House was held on the Public Utilities Bill. It was agreed to abolish the Railroad Commission. It was agreed to abolish grade crossings. The Senate agreed to the report of the conference committee. Senator Colby voting in the negative because the Senate had rejected a rate making amendment.

The House refused to abide by the report of the Conference Committee. It amended the act with a rate making section but on final passage the bill was defeated in the House because the Democrats could not control a majority to pass the measure.

Popular Senatorial Election.

The bill providing for election of United States Senators by the people was passed by both houses. The measure provides that the choice shall be at the party primaries and does away with the objectionable feature of making it necessary for a Democratic legislator voting for a Republican or the reverse.

Senator Avis offered an amendment requiring the head physicians of State institutions be added to those to take the examinations before being eligible to office, which was adopted.

Referendum Clause Remains.

UPPER COURT SUSTAINS SQUIRE CLARK MUNDY

Judge Schenck sat in the Quarter Sessions Court at Somerville yesterday afternoon, hearing one case and postponing two others until a later date.

The case tried was that of the State against James Gunn and was an appeal from Justice Clark Mundy's court. The defendant lives at Watchung in North Plainfield township and was "jacked" up before Justice Mundy some time ago on a charge of allowing a hunting dog to run loose during the closed season for taking game, but Justice Mundy refused to impose the usual fine of $20, deeming the evidence not sufficient to convict.

The case was carried up by the State and the appeal was tried yesterday afternoon. Codington & Swackhamer, of Plainfield, represented the defendant and Mr. McGee appeared in behalf of the Attorney General's office.

Mr. Gunn admitted that his dog had run loose a short time during the closed season, but he declared through no fault of his. He declared that before he went away from home for a day he had tied his dog up securely, but in some way it had broken loose and run at large. Then when he got home he had caught the dog and locked it fast in the hog pen. Another witness corroborated the defence, insomuch as having seen the dog securely tied the day before it was found running at large.

In his decision Judge Schenck sustained Justice Mundy. Judge Schenck said the defendant was not to blame, as far as he could see, for the dog's breaking loose. He had taken every precaution when he went away by tying the dog fast. Therefore Judge Schenck refused to impose the $20 fine.

WM. R. SWEENEY MARRIED

Ambitious Young Plainfielder Weds Wealthy Sister of the Countess de Bruyn.

AT LIVERPOOL, ENG.

Nursed Back to Health By Bride—Honeymoon in Paris—Reception Here.

Cards received in the city today, announced the fact to relatives and friends that William Ralston Sweeney, a former well known Plainfield resident and eldest son of Mrs. Margaret Sweeney, of Liberty street, had married Miss Harriet Eunice de Witt Berry, of New York. The ceremony was performed in Liverpool, England, on September 21, by Rev. Dr. Fenton, pastor of a church in that place. The wedding was very quiet and the formal announcement was made by the bride's sister, Countess de Bruyn, whose permanent residence is in London.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Sweeney proceeded to Paris and spent a two weeks' honeymoon in an automobile tour of the provinces. They sailed for home last Saturday and are due to reach New York today.

While the announcement cards give only the customary information, the romance leading to the nuptial event reads like a chapter from a story book and again brings into prominence a young man whose career is without parallel in the city. Mr. Sweeney studied law in the office of William K. McClure and leaving Plainfield about four years ago, entered the employ of the Trenton Abattoir Company in the legal department. He was very successful in adjusting affairs for the concern and was advanced to a position of great trust by the head member, Petre Slicker. He was sent at various times to England, Italy, Argentine Republic and other countries in which Mr. Slicker has extensive mining and railroad interests and on several occasions organized companies to take up new enterprises, in several of which he is a director.

He sailed for England last June and before reaching the other side was stricken with typhoid fever. The ship officials had him removed to a hospital at Liverpool but he continued to grow worse and it was thought for a while that he had no chance to live. At his direction, the matron cabled to Miss Berry, the two having been fast friends for some time. She immediately sailed for England, taking with her a Trenton physician, who had treated the young man before his departure, and they took charge of the case as soon as they arrived. The Trenton physician prescribed for the fever and Miss Berry supplemented the regular nursing staff by her almost constant attendance. The patient's condition soon changed for the beter and when he left the hospital it was to proceed to Dr. Fenton's home for the ceremony that united he and Miss Berry in matrimony.

Miss Berry is a member of a prominent New York family and is wealthy in her own right. She owns a handsome residence at 127 West Forty-fifth street and it will probably be Mr. and Mrs. Sweeney's permanent home.

PERKINS' LOVE REJECTED.

In the city court, this morning, Ben Perkins, a well known local colored man, was fined $5 for too strenuous love-making on Liberty street, last night. He encountered a dusky lady friend and after a formal greeting insisted on embracing her, greatly to the amusement of some onlookers but to the embarrassment of the victim. She appealed to the police and a cop hauled the affectionate Ben to jail.

Harry Gunzelman, arrested by Officer Vanderweg last night, for disorderly conduct in Pruden's alley, was released on suspended sentence. Similar disposition was made of the case of Beverley Wisner, a Philadelphia youth who dropped into town to visit friends and got blind drunk on the brand of booze handed out to him. His usual Quaker City quietness left him and he whooped and hollered so bad the cops at first thought he was a wild man of the west.

Alarm But No Fire.

Sparks from a tinner's fire-pot, left on the roof of the building at 206 West Front street, led to the belief at 6:35 last night that a fire was in progress. A passerby turned in an alarm from box 12 but the department had nothing to do beyond removing the spark-producer. On returning to headquarters, the apparatus was sent to the rear of the Friends' Meeting House on Watchung avenue to extinguish a pile of buring grass that had been carelessly left there.

USED RAZOR AS WEAPON

Italian Youth Swung Blade When Adversary's Friends Pounced Upon Him.

LEADER BADLY GASHED

George Schuck, Who Invited Leonardo Russo to Fight, Cut in the Arm and Leg.

George Schuck and Leonardo Russo, two young men employed at the Pond Tool Works, became engaged in a quarrel while at work yesterday afternoon, and in order to settle their differences, went over into North Plainfield for a fight. They selected a spot on West End avenue and were about to square up when a friend of Schuck's, one of several who had trailed behind, struck Russo from the rear. He was knocked down and was getting kicks and cuffs from all sides when he drew a razor to ward off his assailants.

Schuck happened to be the nearest to him and the blade was drawn across his right leg, cutting a gash eight inches long. Another slash inflicted a long slit in his arm and with cries of fright Schuck and his companions sprang back. Russo ran back into Plainfield with his victim's friends after him and he took refuge in the basement of a West Front street residence. The occupant drove off his pursuers and in response to a telephone call, Detective-Sergeant John Flynn was hurried to the scene.

Schuck's wounds were severe and he was removed to his home on New street after Dr. J. K. Brennan had attended him. Russo was locked up at police headquarters but as the cutting had taken place in North Plainfield he was turned over to the authorities there this morning. When first questioned he denied using a razor but the blade was found in the basement where he had taken refuge.

Russo is a young Italian and very much smaller than Schuck. His testimony that several of his fellow-employes at Pond's have made it a practice to pick upon him, Schuck in particular, has been corroborated. It was also made plain that he was given no opportunity to settle in a fair way his difference with Schuck and his wielding the razor was his only recourse to escape a bad beating.

Russo will probably be arraigned before a justice this afternoon.

TO NAME HETFIELD SR. AS RUNYON'S OPPONENT

The Democratic City Convention will be held tonight, when theparty hopes to place in nomination a ticket for the coming election. The only candidate thus far decided upon is that for the office of City Judge and Walter L. Hetfield, Sr., will undoubtedly be the choice of the convention.

It is impossible to get any line on the probable nominees for Councilmen-at-large. Inquiry among prominent members of the party this morning developed the fact that not a single person has been considered for the nominations. It is possible that three candidates may not be chosen, although there is a strong sentiment in favor of nominating a man to oppose Councilman F. L. Montgomery in the Second ward. No candidate for the office of city treasurer has been considered and the chances are that William F. Arnold will have no opponent.

Word was received this morning that the members of the Democratic County Committee will visit Plainfield Monday night when definite plans will be made for opening the campaign in this city and throughout the county.

Miss Williams to Wed.

Announcement is made of the approaching marriage of Miss Eleanor Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Williams, of West Seventh street, and G. Harry O'Donnell, of Newton, Sussex county. The ceremony will take place at Truell Hall, on Friday, November 1. The groom is a recent graduate of Princeton College, and the bride is a favorite in local society.

Mrs. Peter F. Randolph.

Mrs. Ann Eliza Randolph, wife of Peter F. Randolph, died at her home in Piscataway township, this morning. She was in her eightieth year and had resided in that section for a long time. The funeral will be held at the residence of Alexander F. Randolph, Piscataway township, Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Frank Meyers.

Frank Meyers, a resident of Warren township, died at his home yesterday, in his thirty-second year. The funeral arrangements have not been made.

WATER COMMISSION GETS VALUABLE DATA

The Plainfield Water Commission's Engineering Committee last night compiled the data collected during the past few months. As a result the committee is now able to show the quantity of water pumped and used from the Netherwood wells during each month of the past twelve years. This information is accurate and indisputable.

It is not the purpose of the commission to state facts until they can be proved beyond a doubt and it is largely for this reason that nothing has been given out before. The engineering commission is now at work collecting data as to the relative cost of the local plant when established and what it would cost to replace such a plant today. Although little has been heard concerning the work of the commission or the engineering committee, they have both been busy and it is said that when the final report is made it will be one of the most complete of the kind ever presented.

MISS LILLIAN FANCHER EDWARD F. HOWE'S BRIDE

A society event of considerable interest will be the marriage this evening of Miss Lillian Fancher, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. F. W. Westcott, of Fanwood, and Edward Frank Howe, of Troy, N. Y. The ceremony will be performed at 7 o'clock at the Baptist church, Scotch Plains, by the pastor, Rev. T. Moore-Smith, in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends.

The groom is a son of Frank E. Howe, president of the National Bank, of Troy. He is a graduate of Williams College, and was president of the college Good Government Club. He won his class numerals as a member of the football team. He is a member of the Sig Phi fraternity. For his best man and ushers, Mr. Howe selected Williams College men. The best man will be Payson Stone Douglass, of West Orange, '08, and the ushers will be Stillman F. Westbrook, Ogdensburg, N. Y., '09; John Bright, Lord, of Brooklyn, '05; Francis B. Sayer, of New York, '09, and Edward C. Fancher, of Fanwood, brother of the bride.

Miss Fancher is well-known in Plainfield and New York society, and has taken a prominent part in many social functions here. Her only attendant will be Miss Josephine Wright, of Berlin, Wisconsin.

After the ceremony a large reception will be held at the home of the bride's parents in Fanwood, and at the conclusion of an extended wedding trip the couple will reside at Troy, where the groom is engaged in business.

NEW CARS FOR THIS CITY.

The Public Service Corporation has arranged to place a batch of new cars on the focal lines, outside of the main division. The first one of the consignment reached the city Thursday noon and was placed in charge of Motorman M. J. Walsh and Conductor Patrick Marron on the Fourth street line. Two others came yesterday and the remainder will arrive at intervals during the coming week.

The cars are a little larger than the ones that have been doing service for the past ten or fifteen years and are fitted with all up-to-date equipment.

Buys Market Building.

Fred Ivamy, the sea food dealer, has purchased the building occupied by him on West Second street. The building in its original state formerly stood on Park avenue, where the Stirling building is now located, and was occupied by Charles Schanz. It was afterward purchased by Charles W. McCutchen, who erected the Stirling, and removed to its present location on West Second street, where it was thoroughly remodeled and improved.

Will Relate Unusual Experiences.

The Men's Club of the First Baptist church will hold its first meeting of the season at the church Monday night. Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue church, will make an address telling of his travels abroad last summer and relating some unusual experiences and observations of interest. It will be an open meeting and the women of the church and congregation will be welcome.

Will Move to Central Avenue.

H. B. Hibbard, 110 East Fifth street, has purchased the house at 420 Central avenue, owned by Mrs. Anna R. Rhoades, wife of Gilbert T. Rhoades. He will take possession about December 1.

Mr. and Mrs. William Saylor, of Convoy, Ohio, returned home today after a visit of one week with Mr. and Mrs. Julius Stahl, of Grandview avenue.

R. M. FOUNTAIN KILLS HIMSELF

Prominent Boroughite, While Temporarily Deranged, Ends Suffering.

AN INVALID LONG

Crazed By Pain He Jumps from Sick Bed and Puts Bullet Through His Temple.

Rendered temporarily insane by the pain of sickness which had kept him in agony during the entire night, Robert M. Fountain shot himself through the right temple at his home, 73 Jackson avenue, at about 10:30 this morning. Death was instantaneous. Mrs. Fountain, who had been sitting up with her husband much of the night, had been at his bedside in the morning, but had left the room to get a glass for some medicine.

In the few moments that he was left alone, Mr. Fountain, crazed by pain, jumped from the bed and dashing to the bureau, seized his revolver from the drawer and holding it to his temple, fired the fotal shot. His wife, hearing the noise of the discharge, rushed to the room to find Mr. Fountain stretched lifeless across the bed.

For the past two weeks, Mr. Fountain has been confined to his bed, under the care of Dr. Adams. Suffering from a complication of diseases of the liver and bladder he had been suffering intense pain, which doubtless rendered him temporarily insane. When seen by his brother-in-law, Charles P. MacNabb, this morning, a few hours before the fatality, Mr. Fountain had told him of the intense pain he was suffering, and said that the pain during the night was almost unbearable.

Dr. J. C. Anderson, who was driving past the house at the time, was summoned to the house by the grief-stricken wife. He found that death had been instantaneous, the bullet, of a .32 calibre, passing through the brain, and was found on the floor near the body. Chief Marshal George Weiss, of the borough force, was summoned, and County Physician W. H. Long, of Somerville, notified.

Mr. Fountain was a prosperous stationer, conducting a printing and stationery business at 65 Fulton street, New York city. He took to his bed two weeks ago today, and Dr. D. C. Adams has been in attendance at the home since. He has been a resident of this city since April, 1891, having moved here with his wife and family from Brooklyn, erecting for his occupancy the house on Jackson avenue, where he has lived ever since. He was a member of the borough Board of Education for three terms, beginning in 1886. He acted as district clerk on the Board during the entire nine years. He was a past officer of Anchor Lodge, F. and A. M., of which he has been a member since shortly after his coming to North Plainfield. He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Charles J. MacNabb, of East Fifth street; Miss Mildred Fountain and Miss Ida Fountain. Miss Ida Fountain is at present in the Adirondacks, where she went several weeks ago to recuperate from a recent sickness. A fourth daughter, Sadie, died about two years ago, and her lass was always felt as a keen blow to Mr. Fountain.

No arrangements have as yet been made for the funeral.

Boys Destroy Property.

As a result of some sort of rivalry between the girls and boys of the Watchung school, the girls' basket ball grounds in the school yard have been visited by night recently and great damage done. The iron rims of the baskets have been broken and the posts pulled up and chopped to pieces. The girls' property was in some instances destroyed or else hidden around the building. The girls' basketball play has been permanently discontinued, for the money for the grounds were given by a boroughite and the girls are not organized to supply money to make up the loss. There has been no practice since the damaging visit of the boys. The girls had just secured a coach and had a game scheduled with the girls of the city high school.

J. W. Hamilton will conduct the W. C. T. U. meeting at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

An Illustration

One of our clients owed $48 between four people. His salary is $14 weekly; rent $12 monthly. To have paid $3 weekly to each creditor, combined with rent, would have left only $5 per week to meet expenses, buy clothing, etc.—an impossibility you will agree. He borrowed $50, paid all his creditors, made his future credit good, if ever needed; pays his rent, the loan payments, and has $9 each week to use as his judgment dictates.

Events at the Plainfield Country Club today include the weekly competition for the Golf Committee and Green Committee cups, the continuation of play for the Autumn cups, classes A and B, handicap.

Charles B. Morse and R. V. Carpenter, it is expected will play off the tie today in the final competition for the September cups. The winner of the match will play W. V. Beard.

A strong field of amateurs, including Jerome D. Travers, the national champion, have announced their intention of taking part in the invitation tournament which began yesterday at the Montclair Golf Club. According to the conditions the golfers will qualify in three eights. Others who will compete are Archibald Graham, runnerup in the last national championship tournament; Ellis Knowles and Dwight Partridge, of Yale; George T. Brokaw, of Deal; Frank Jennings, Garden City; F. R. Dixon, Jr., of Baltusrol; J. Whitney Baker, of Plainfield; W. B. Rhett, Baker Meadow; A. T. Dwight, Seabright; C. W. O'Connor and C. F. Watson, Essex County, and Paul E. Hasler, Forest Hill.

T. B. Barrett, of Fox Hills, won the president's cup of the Eastern Golf Association for the third time in the tournament at the Ardsley Club Thursday, and it became his permanent property. Twenty-one qualified at medal play in the morning and kept on at scratch medal play for cups in four classes in the afternoon.

DIAMOND DUST.

The purses of the players taking part in the world's series baseball games are being nicely lined. Favorable weather has made big crowds and rich receipts. The total attendance for the first two games in Chicago was 46,278, meaning gross receipts of $55,592.50. The share of the players for the two games is $3[illegible]019.95, the owners' share being $2[illegible]013.30 and the national commission's $5,559.25.

Severe criticisms of the umpiring of O'Day and Sheridan in the second game in Chicago were made Thursday by a number of experts on the spot.

Since the national commission took hold of the world's series games the team that scored the first victory failed to recapture the pennant of its own league the following season. This was the case with the New York Nationals, and the Chicago Americans. Ergo, the Cubs are out of it for next year.

The National League crower already is at work telling how easy the Detroits would be in his league. Yet his club could not beat the American League winners a few seasons ago when it had the chance.

FOOTBALL.

The officials for the Yale-Princeton game are composed of an entirely new array for that contest. Dartmouth, Cornell and Lehigh furnish them. Whiting, the referee, is a Cornell man, as is Young, the timer and linesman. Okeson, the umpire, is a former Lehigh player, and Hall, the field judge, is a Dartmouth product and a member of the football rules committee. Hall was head linesman at the Harvard-Yale game last year, has had much experience in officiating and being one of the framers of the new playing rules has had exceptional opportunity to become thoroughly conversant with them. Whiting is another experienced official, both in big and little games. Less is known of Okeson, but he is well spoken of and has had several seasons' experience. He umpired the Princeton-Annapolis game last year, and at the meeting of officials the other night he spoke as one who knew what he was talking about.

Fees for officials this season run all the way from $15 a game to $100 or more. There are $25 fees and $50 fees, the average probably being something over $25—not bad for one day's pay. Nevertheless those officials should master every detail of the rules governing whatever they get. There hardly is a game at which some new point does not arise. Two officials going to the same game met on a train the other day. "Suppose," said one, as he thumbed a much thumbed rule book, "there is a quarterback kick and a player on the other side signals for a fair catch. Has one of the opposing backs who was offside the right to interfere with the catch?"

And so on, ad infinitum.

The Cornell freshman football team is the scrappiest, most aggressive and brawniest aggregation he has ever seen among freshman teams, says Coach Gibson, who is looking after the Cornell youngsters. Impson and Whiting there are good runners and punters, and heavy and promising line men are Averill, Lunger, Hunter and Atkinson. Another promising candidate is Leventry, a backfield man, who is fast and heavy. The Cornell freshman will play their first game today. As equally glowing accounts have been heard of the Pennsylvania freshmen, the annual battle between the two bids fair to be anything but somnolent. On the Princeton freshmen team is Bard, a brother of the former Princeton player but nothing like the latter's equal in avoirdupois. The new Bard is a small chap but very speedy. In the game against Newark High School last Wednesday the intuitive judgment he showed in keeping just within the boundary line in running back a kick was as pretty a piece of work as could be wished for.

Considerable satisfaction was expressed in Princeton yesterday over the outcome with the game with Wesleyan, but at that a whole lot are puzzled more than over as to the Tiger's real worth. It is generally conceded that Yale bucked up against a much stronger outfit than Princeton did, and the quantity of points secured belied the Orange and Black's numerical superiority. Still the Tigers have reached the century mark in two games. The outlook might be much darker, considering all.

The Hudson River Academy football eleven will be the opponents of P. H. S. on Hope Common this afternoon at 3.30 o'clock. A good game is expected.

TENNIS.

The play for the boy's championship in tennis tennis singles at the Plainfield High School, Thursday, resulted in the defeat of Harry Earl by Victor Todd, 6-2, 6-0; James Mauger by Clyde Doane, 6-0, 6-2, and Carl Strong by William Gano, 6-2, 6-1.

KNOW IT WELL.

Familiar Features Well Known to Hundreds of Plainfield Citizens.

A familiar burden in every home,
The burden of a "bad back."
A lame, a weak or an aching back
Tells you of kidney ills.
Doan's Kidney Pills will cure you.
Here is Plainfield testimony to prove it:—

Rhoda A. Martin, of 24 Jackson avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I had pains in my back and loins for about a year or more, no doubt caused by my kidneys being out of order. I felt it more in the morning, just after getting up or if I did any stooping or lifting. Notwithstanding the fact that I took all kinds of medicines I never found anything which helped me until I got Doan's Kidney Pills at L. W. Randolph's drug store. They not only removed the pain, but they strengthened me in others ways." (Statement made in January, 1901.)

Statement Confirmed.

On July 22, 1905, Mrs. Martin's daughter said: "The testimonial given for publication for years ago was true in regard to the benefit my mother derived from Doan's Kidney Pills, and today she is as ready and willing to repeat what she therein said as she was after using your medicine."

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

C. H. Kerr presents his latest musical and dramatic success, "Little Dollie Dimples," now in its second successful season, with the Broadway favorite, Grace Cameron, in the title role, at the New Plainfield theatre this afternoon and tonight.

Henry W. Savage's "Woodland" will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre next Tuesday night. "Woodland" is a comic opera, or more properly speaking perhaps, an idyllic opera since all the characters are birds of the forest. Mr. Savage calls it a "musical fantasy of the woods," and it has also been referred to as an "Audubonesque musical frolic." Both are correct. "Woodland"—by Pixley and Luders, the authors of "The Prince of Pilsen" and "King Dodo"—was originally produced in Boston, where it ran for upwards of four months. Then followed a run of two months at the Studebaker theatre, Chicago, a successful engagement of ten weeks in New York, followed by a successful tour of the principal cities of the country. Some novel features in costume effects will be seen when this dainty, birdlike opera is presented here, as, though every member of the company is supposed to represent some feathered denizen of the forest, not a feather is to be found in the costumes and but few beaks or claws.

"The Walls of Jericho," which will be represented at the New Plainfield theatre next Thursday night, made a striking success, both in London and in New York, and held the attention of theatre-goers of these two cities for over two years. Dramatic writers of both countries were loud in their praise of this work and without exception pronounced it one of the most powerful dramas ever written. Its author is Alfred Sutro, an Englishman, whose rise to distinction was made in the last two years. For twelve years Mr. Sutro worked unceasingly, but received no recognition until two years ago, when "The Walls of Jericho" was produced and made a sensation in London. "The Walls of Jericho" is in four acts and its story deals with the failings of a certain phase of fashionable life.

Senator Colby wanted the act applied to all municipalities, and said that in Newark both political parties were pledged to it, but the referendum clause remained untouched.

Senator Silzer wanted the appropriation for the commission out from $30,000 to $15,000, but he was the only man supporting that proposition.

Governor Stokes sent to the Senate a message to the effect that there existed no money for putting into effect the law requiring that persons condemned to death in this state for murder should be electrocuted. The executive asked that the Legislature immediately provide cash for carrying out court sentences.

In the morning the Hahn house committee met and arranged for a continuance of the investigation of Morris Plains Asylum next Monday. The Senate investigating committee, Senator Bradley said, would go out again as soon as a surveyor made surveys of the Paterson plank road.

Direct Primaries Act Wins.

The House passed the direct primaries act after first eliminating the office of Governor and members of Congress.

Vice Chancellor Bergen was confirmed a justice of the Supreme Court.

O'Connor, bishop of the Catholic Diocese of Newark, has selected from last year's graduates of Seton Hall College for the courses and scholarships established abroad for American students Harry Joseph Moore, of Newark; Earle Pange, of Passaic; Francis Joseph Plattler, of Utica, N. JR. O. U. A. M. MEMBERS PRESENT "OAK FARM"

Under the auspices of the Dramatic Club of Plainfield Council, No. 293, Jr. O. U. A. M., "Oak Farm," a rural comedy, was presented at the Casino last night before an audience that filled the large hall. Considerable time and pains were spent in preparation for the play and it was given in a way that reflected credit on every member of the cast. The costuming and scenic effects were true to the lines and nothing was wanted to make the evening's entertainment all to be desired.

Charles Mumford played a dual role, "Joel Weatherby," and "Wellington Troy," a traveling salesman; Miss Margaret Bird, as "Sallie Smart," and Miss Tryphena Mattox, as "Cynthia Warner," the village old maid, scored the hits of the evening. The other parts were exceptionally well taken.

The feature of the entertainment was the singing by the village choir, Elmer Cutting, first tenor; Dr. R. Waldo Emerson, second tenor; Dr. W. Kempton Browning, first bass, and Fred S. Cutter, second bass. They were recalled many times.

ANOTHER HOLD-UP AT SCOTCH PLAINS

For the second time within three weeks, Park avene, between Scotch Plains and Fanwood, was the scene of a daring hold-up last night at about 7 o'clock. Edwin Van Hoesen, the son of S. G. Van Hoesen, of Fanwood borough, was attacked by a man near the Episcopal church, while on his way home. The lad, who is a husky fellow, eighteen year of age, is an agent for a magazine for which he had been making collections. He had between two and three dollars in his pockets.

On his way home, he was surprised by a man who jumped out from behind a tree near the church and demanded his money. Entirely surprised by the hold-up, Van Hoesen hesitated and was struck several times about the head and shoulders by a blackjack. The boy was stunned by the blows, and the robber, thinking the thing was easy, threw away the club and drawing a heavy sheath knife, brandished it in Van Hoesen's face, again demanding money. Van Hoesen started to run, but his assailant grappled with him. In the struggle, Van Hoesen was severely cut about the hands and arms by the knife which the man held. Van Hoesen finally threw the fellow to the ground, and made his escape.

Marshal Logan was at once notified and started with Van Hoesen and a party of boroughites for the scene of the hold up. No trace could be found of the man. Van Hoesen could give but a meagre discription of the fellow, for the hold up was in the darkest part of the street. He said that the fellow was a young man, medium sized and well built. He had a small mustache.

This discription agrees with that of the highwayman who held up Dora Mitzer, a servant girl employed in the borough, about three weeks ago. The police are on the look-out and the citizens of both village and borough are aroused.

Fort Rode in President's Car.

J. Franklin Fort, Republican candidate for Governor of New Jersey, made his tour of Middlesex county Thursday in a machine which had been used by President Theodore Roosevelt at Oyster Bay. When the season ended a, Oyster Bay, the car was purchased by George Beredine, prosecutor of the Pleas of Middlesex county, and he placed it at Judge Fort's disposal while in Middlesex county.

Auto Causes Lots of Trouble.

An automobile frightened a horse at Prospect and Woodland avenues, yesterday afternoon, upset a buggy to which he was hitched, throwing out two men, also unknown. The occupants of the carriage were cut and bruised, but not seriously. After temporary treatment they were able to proceed. The names of those in the auto or carriage could not be learned.

WOMEN IN MEDIEVAL TIMES.

In Many Ways They Had Easier Lives Than Their Descendants.

The women of the sixteenth century and earlier times had easier lives than those of our generation. To be sure, there are a hundred labor saving devices to-day which were unknown to them. But in at least two important respects they had the advantage over their descendants. They waged no conflict against dirt such as we carry on from morning till night. The Elizabethan had no prejudice against garbage in his front yard, vermin in his bedroom, decaying rushes on the floor of his banquet hall, or soiled lace in his sleeves. The strength of arm and spirit which now goes to keeping clean was left to the medieval lady for other tasks. Moreover, although her clothing was gorgeous—rich with embroidery and lace, and heavy with jewels—it was not subject to rapid changes of fashion. The cut of a sleeve or the hang of a skirt was settled for five years rather than five months. Life was then free from the modern terror of "looking like a last year's rag bag."—Youth's Companion.

NOT LIKE ANY SHE HAD SEEN.

Why Chicken Seemed Peculiar to Small City Girl.

Little Isabel had been so unfortunate as to have lived most of her six years in boarding houses. Now, the boarding house chicken, as every one knows who has had any experience with that curious fowl, seems largely composed of wings and legs. It generally fell to Isabel's lot to draw a leg. Consequently it was with great surprise that on her first visit to the country she contemplated a real live chicken on its native heath. She had been told that it was a chicken, but she had her doubts until reassured by her mother. Even then she was not quite satisfied. Mystified, as though grappling with some problem beyond her power to reason out, she exclaimed: "But, see, mamma, it only has two legs!"

Mother's Cruelty to Child.

A strange story of cruelty comes from Boone Ridge, near Penfield, Pa., where Mrs. Burfielder is charged with having suspended her six-year-old child in mid-air, permitting her to hang for three hours. The child did something that displeased the mother, and, seizing the little one, it is alleged, she tied her hands behind her and then fastened a strap about the child's waist. The little offender was dragged to the barn, where a rope was attached to the belt, thrown over a beam and the child pulled up in the air. This was shortly after supper, and it is said she permitted the child to swing around and around in that painful position until her husband came home at ten o'clock and cut down the child.

Hundreds of Good Irish Here.

"Pat" was a little "beliquored," and was boasting one day in a saloon about his ancestors and his native country, and was remarking that he was Irish and that he was proud of the fact, when a man entered, and, hearing the remark, said: "You are all right, old man. I like the Irish, and up where I live there are hundreds of them, and I wish there were hundreds more there." This pleased "Pat" to such an extent that he spent considerable money on his newly found friend, and after his departure "Pat" inquired of the barkeeper where he lived, remarking that he was a "mum fine man, anyway." "That man," replied the barkeeper, "he lives up near the Catholic cemetery."—Judge's Library.

Football in 1583.

"The gentle game of football is described thus in a work entitled "Anatomie of Abuses," published in 1583: "For I protest unto you it may rather be called a friendly kinde of fight than a play of recreation, a bloody and murthering practice than a sport or pastime, for dooth not every one lye in waight for his adversaries, seeking to overthrow him and to picke him on his nose, though it be on hard stones, so that by this means sometimes their backs, sometimes their legs, sometimes their armes, sometimes one part thrust out of joynt, sometimes another; sometimes the noses gush out with blood; sometimes their eyes start out."

Awful Blunder.

"Yes," remarked Amber Pete, as he took another chew, "he left town rather suddenly." "What was the cause of the sudden departure?" asked the agent for the ore crusher. "Well, you see, he received an announcement from Bad Bill that the latter had married old Pete Bink's fighting widder. An hour later he sent a message in reply." "And was that the way he left town?" "You bet. He scribbled off, 'Accept my congratulation in the hour of glory,' but the chap in the telegraph office was half asleep and he deciphered it to be, 'Accept my condolence in the hour of grief.' Don't you think it was time to make tracks, stranger?"

The Genius of Love.

"Durable love is a sublime drama played by two actors equal in talents, a drama where the sentiments are catastrophes, where desires are events and where the lightest thought causes a change of scene. But how will you find in the flock of bipeds which is called a nation, a man and a woman possessing in the same degree the genius of love, when talented people are already so rare in other sciences?"—Honore de Balzac.

STORIES OF THE SECRET SERVICE

By CAPTAIN PATRICK D. TYRRELL.

STORY No. 5

The Boscobel Koniackers

Being an Account of the Capture and Conviction of the Band of Counterfeiters Operating in Wisconsin in 1876.

By CAPTAIN PATRICK D. TYRRELL

I took some time to satisfy myself as to the exact conditions prevailing in and around the Robinson residence. I had not forgotten Kale Ellis' little pleasantry in regard to the probable fate of any secret service men who attempted to capture him, and I did not intend to take any more chances than necessary when it came to planning for the event. But the time soon came when it seemed certain no mistake could be made in raiding the Robinson house.

Frank W. Oakley, United States marshal at Madison, was told of my plan and his services and those of two of his most competent deputies were secured. Warrants were taken out secretly at Madison. Marshal Oakley said he had frequently heard of Kale Ellis, and that from all he had heard he was a dangerous man to handle. I also sent to Chicago for John McDonald and C. D. Townsend, the latter a secret service operative. The five men were instructed to come to Boscobel on the same day and to register at the hotel without letting it be known that they knew me or knew one another.

It was about 11 o'clock at night when I smuggled them into my room, where I outlined my plan to them. I did not deem it consistent to send any other man into probable danger of which I myself was afraid, so I planned to take the lead in the actual entry of the house. One of the others was to be stationed about 16 feet from each corner of the house in such a way that each could command a view of two sides of the building. I calculated that Ellis and Brown might leap from the second story windows in front when they heard me ascending the stairs. To the man stationed in front I said:

"One of these men who may jump from the second story has sworn to kill the first any secret service men that tried to take him. His record is such that there is no doubt he means what he says. If these men jump from the windows they will be armed and will kill any man in their path. Either you or they will be killed. It will be better for it to be they. Shoot them before they strike the ground if you want to save your own lives."

MALCOLM ROBINSON.

The nearest neighbors of the Robinsons had a child that was not expected to live through the night on which we planned this raid. Mrs. Robinson, although the wife of one criminal and the associate of others, retained the maternal solicitude for any child that was sick and had made herself useful at the house of her neighbors. She had been at the bedside of the little one during the day and returned only in time to prepare supper for her husband and the other "koniackers." I knew of her interest in the condition of the sick child, and decided to turn it to our own advantage. At a quarter to two in the morning of April 16, 1875, we left the hotel and repaired to the Robinson home in such a manner as not to attract attention from any belated townsman in case we met one.

After reaching the premises no word was spoken and none was necessary, as final and detailed instructions had been received by the officers before we left the hotel covering any possible emergency that might arise. The night was very dark and a high wind blew, suiting our purpose well.

With each man at his station, I rapped at the front door softly, one of the deputy marshals who was recommended for his coolness and bravery at my back. There was no answer and I knocked again, lightly, as I wished to avoid waking the men sleeping upstairs. Still there was no response, and the third time I rapped harder. Robinson came to the door. Without opening it he asked:

"Who's there?"

"The child is worse," I answered.

At this he opened the door carefully, but wide enough to enable me to get my foot through the opening and force a quick entrance. The deputy at my back was as dependable as I had been told he was, for he followed instructions to the letter, pressing in behind me and taking Robinson off my hands so that I could be free to go after the others. In a flash he had Robinson under cover of his revolver, and threatened him with death if he made any outcry.

The taking of Robinson had occurred in the little front hallway from which the stairs led to the second floor. Revolver in one hand and dark lantern in the other, I ran softly up the stairs. The door of the room in which the other two counterfeiters slept was ajar. Throwing the flare of the bull's-eye into the room, I saw Ellis and Brown in bed, but each reaching for his revolver, one of the weapons being under the pillow and the other on a small stand at the head of the bed. Coving them with my own weapon before they had time to lay hands on their revolvers, I shouted:

"Lie back, or I'll kill you."

Both lay on the pillows.

"The first that moves will be shot," I commanded.

Cautiously and with my revolver and lantern still trained on the counterfeiters. I backed to the front window and rapped on the pane. This was the signal that had been arranged for two men to come to my assistance. Under the cover of three revolvers Ellis and Brown were doggedly obedient and put on their clothes. The other two men had by this time entered the house and gone to the relief of the deputy who entered with me in caring for Robinson and his wife.

In the room across the hall from the sleeping-room of Ellis and Brown I found the printing press and materials they had been using, $15,000 in 50-cent scrip, together with the same plates Kale Ellis had dropped in the Pecatonica river, in making his daring escape from Operative Drummond long before.

The three cursing counterfeiters, Mrs. Robinson and the "Koniacking" outfit were taken to Madison on the next train. The men pleaded guilty and were sentenced to serve seven years in the penitentiary. Mrs. Robinson was given her liberty.

Well satisfied with the results of the Wisconsin job, I returned to Chicago and dropped into the routine of my work, little thinking that the events immediately to follow would necessitate my return to the Badger state. But no sooner had I returned than a $100 note was brought to my attention which had been sent to the Union national bank from the City bank of Portage, Wis., a correspondent of the Chicago bank. The bill, in my opinion, was unquestionably counterfeit. A few days later a $100 bill of the same issue, but bearing the name of another bank, was offered at the Chicago post office. Then to the Traders' national bank there came a $100 bill from the bank at Shelbyville, Ill. This was also of the same issue, but bore the name of still another bank. My collection was soon further increased by a $100 bill from Parsons, Kan., following which came the information from secret service headquarters that a $100 note had been passed at Louisiana, Mo.

Here was an unexpected shower. The bills were apparently all off the same plate, which had been a skeleton plate, the names of the Revere national bank of Boston, Second national of Wilkesbarre, Pa., and the Merchants' national of New Bedford, Mass., having been filled in by the skeleton process. At the United States subtreasury Fred M. Blount, the cashier, insisted the bills were genuine. The cashiers of five out of eight banks to which they were submitted also held them to be good. Thomas P. Tallman, cashier of the Traders' national, and I insisted they were counterfeit.

I found at the post office that the bill offered there had been sent by the postmaster at Cambridge, Ill., to whom I immediately sent a telegram in the name of J. W. Palmer, the Chicago postmaster. The Cambridge postmaster answered that he had received the bill in question from the Cambridge bank and that no accurate description of the man who had passed it could be obtained. The cashier of the bank at Portage wrote that he had received the bill from a man about 45 years old, nearly six feet tall and with dark, full beard. He looked like a well-to-do farmer, the cashier wrote, but further than this the description was hazy. A somewhat similar general description, except as to the color of the beard and altogether more definite, came from Parsons. I sent Operative Kennoch to St. Louis and Louisiana to pursue the investigation there.

While these things were happening I received word through the United States marshal at Springfield, Ill., to the effect that a deputy sheriff at Vandalia, Ill., had arrested a man for trying to pass a $100 counterfeit bill at the Farmers' and Merchants' national bank in the latter city. This bit of news, considered in connection with the rapidly occurring events of the days previous, was decidedly important, and I lost no time in getting to Vandalia. I found that at all, bearded, farmer looking man of about 50 had tendered a $100 bill to David Palmer, of the local bank, and that Palmer had declined to accept it, reporting the matter to Deputy Sheriff Cluxton, who had arrested the stranger at the railroad station as he was about to leave Vandalia. He gave the name of "Levi Logan," and said he had received the bill from one Charles Scott, of Fond du Lac, Wis., in a horse trade. When arrested he had in his possession another counterfeit bill of the same kind as he tried to pass, and $154 in good money.

I questioned the prisoner, but decided from his manner that he was not "Levi Logan." Who he really was remained to be found out. I asked for permission to take the prisoner into my custody, but Deputy Sheriff Cluxton declined to turn him over to me. I argued that if held and tried in that county he could not possibly be convicted because witnesses could not be brought in from another state, whereas, the government could command the attendance of witnesses from any state. The local authorities also had no facilities for doing the work necessary to secure such evidence as would convict the prisoner. But Cluxton was obdurate. I appealed to a prominent local attorney who had influence with the deputy sheriff, and in this way finally secured custody of the prisoner and took him to Springfield.

I often have thought since that if the deputy who clung so tenaciously to his man had had any idea of the part the prisoner was to play in counterfeiting history he would have relinquished him gladly to the United States authorities. Had he persisted in retaining custody of "Levi Logan" it is likely that one of the most important bands of "koniackers" in the country would have enjoyed their liberty much longer than they did.

The only clews I had to work on in establishing the identity of "Levi Logan" were his story that he had come from Wisconsin, and a description of the man. The first clew was strengthened by the fact that the bills that had found their way into Chicago had been passed by a man traveling from north to south. I was convinced that "Logan" was an adept in the "shoving" of counterfeits, and if this were true and he hailed from Wisconsin there was little probability that he was not affiliated with the Boscobel gang in that state.

In the meantime the bill on the Revere national of Boston had been received at the Chicago post office from George C. King, as told in the beginning of this story. This bill had come from the east, and from this fact I surmised that the man who had passed it had traveled west to Wisconsin, probably from New York city, and thence southward.

I believed that in a region that had harbored for years such a strong band of counterfeiters as the Boscobel crowd there must be information cocerning the identity of a "shover" who said he came from that locality, and who, apparently, was thoroughly familiar with it. Consequently I provided myself with photographs of "Levi Logan" and started for Wisconsin.

On this trip I had not long pursued my investigation when I encountered the name of "Watson"—one with which I was entirely unfamiliar in counterfeiting circles. From the report I got from persons familiar with Kale Ellis, Frank Brown and Malcolm Robinson, the "Watsons" must have visited Wisconsin frequently, always associating with men who bore shady reputations, and who later were found to be counterfeiters. The reputed home of the "Watsons" was at Clear Lake, Ia. Without going to that place I stored away what I heard about them for future reference, continuing my search in Wisconsin.

At last I found my reward through casually showing the photograph of "Levi Logan" to a man who at once recognized him as the father of Mrs. Malcolm Robinson. The true name of the Springfield prisoner I found to be Frank Conway. One of his daughters had married Malcolm Robinson and another had married his brother, Clate, both of the husbands then being in prison for counterfeiting offenses.

The further identification of Conway was a simple matter. I found he had affiliated with counterfeiters for many years, and in 1876 had been arrested for horse stealing and convicted, carrying his case to the supreme court. After securing his freedom on bail he had disappeared from his Wisconsin haunts. He had been an associate of the mysterious "Watson brothers," and had visited them at their farm at Clear lake. Further than this he had been closely connected with a band of "koniackers" that made headquarters in St. Paul. In short, the connection between the "Watsons," Conway, the Boscobel gang and the St. Paul counterfeiters was found to be very close, although the theft of the team of horses in Watseka county, Minnesota, was the only fact discovered that could be used against Conway at the forthcoming trial.

The defense of Conway at the trial was that "Charles Scott," whom he subpoenaed, had given him the bill. Scott testified to this fact. Conway admitted he had been arrested, and said after his arrest he had come to Chicago and then gone to New York, assuming the name of L. C. Lavare. He remained in New York a year, he said, and then returned to Wisconsin.

His defense availed him nothing and he was sentenced to serve five years. In the meantime the case in Parsons, Kan., had been made and he served another five years for that offense. Subsequently he was given another five years for horse stealing.

With Conway "settled" in the penitentiary an investigation was made to determine the identity of the "Watsons." While it had not been proved, there was little doubt that Conway had gone east for the purpose of establishing a connection with one of the bands of counterfeiters which infested the Atlantic seaboard, that he had formed such a connection and that he had undertaken to "shove" some of the "coney" that was being issued by them. To a secret service man it was also clear that such a man as Conway, who had never been east before his arrest for horse stealing, could not have formed such a connection without taking with him first-class references from counterfeiters in the west who were well acquainted with the more prominent men in that line in the east.

From all that I could gather of Conway's record he had not been associated before his eastern trip with men in the west who were on close terms with the eastern counterfeiting aristocrats. The high artistic character of the $100 bills he had "shoved" in the Mississippi valley was indication sufficient that they had come from the hands of artisans of much skill. In establishing the identity of the "Watson" brothers, therefore, we hoped to to be able to determine who had placed Conway in touch with the eastern counterfeiters and eventually to uncover the makers of the $100 plate.

To relate the details of this investigation would consume more time and space than I have at my disposal, and I shall, therefore, state that the "Watsons" were found to have been the Ballard brothers—Thomas, George and John. In all the annals of counterfeiting in the United States the name of Thomas Ballard must stand out most prominent, and I shall take the liberty of telling enough about this remarkable criminal character to give my readers some conception of his importance in "koniacking" history.

First, let not the members of the masonic fraternity be shocked when I say that Thomas Ballard, at the summit of his success as a counterfeiter, was the master of Park lodge, A. F. & A. M., in New York city. He came of good family, never smoked a cigar nor took a drink of intoxicating liquor, was married to an estimable woman, and, like many of his kind, was a model "family man." He was born in New York state in 1840, and learned the trade of fancy carriage painting. When 18 years old he went to work for Henry Hinman, a wealthy carriage builder of New York city, and related by marriage to Joshua D. Miner, a prominent New York politician, and city contractor. Hinman observed the genius of young Ballard and induced him to learn the trade of banknote engraving, at which he served four years.

CAMPAIGNERS INVADE OLD SOMERSET TODAY

North Plainfielders Get Up Early to Greet Gubernatorial Nominee and His Big Party.

HE TOURS THE COUNTY

Senator Frelinghuysen Guides Campaigners Through Somerset—Great Ovations.

Greeted by a crowd of one hundred boroughites, among whom were leading local politicians of both parties across the brook, Judge J. Franklin Fort, the Republican candidate for Governor, spent a half hour in North Plainfield today, meeting the voters and finally speaking from the step of Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen's big automobile, in which he is today making a whirlwind trip through Somerset county in his campaigning. The candidate is to speak at a dozen cities and towns throughout the county today and started out early from his home in East Orange, making a fast auto trip to North Plainfield, where he met Senator Frelinghuysen and the county candidates, J. A. Mets, for surrogate; W. W. Smalley, for assembly, and Robert Kay, for sheriff, who came up later in another auto.

Judge Fort's auto drew up in front of borough fire headquarters at 8 o'clock, when the candidate was scheduled to make his first speech in the day's campaigning trip. There was a good sized crowd there to greet him, including Mayor N. B. Smalley, who introduced him to Councilman M. C. VanArsdale, former Councilman Charles L. Nichols, Borough Clerk Frank Rowley, Chief Howard Woolston, Tax Collector George F. Brown and others prominent in the borough government. Senator Charles A. Reed arrived later in his automobile. Passing commuters stopped to meet Mr. Fort and get a button.

Senator Frelinghuysen introduced the candidate to the crowd at shortly before 8:30 and Mr. Fort made a few remarks, thanking the boroughites for his reception at such an early hour. "In this campaign," he said, "we must all work or we can't win. I believe that the State will go Republican by a large majority, but we must take no chances. Every voter must feel a personal interest in the campaign if we are to succeed. I thank you all for your support."

At the conclusion of the speech, Mayor Smalley led three cheers for the candidate, which were given with a will.

The party immediately got under way for Bound Brook, where Mr. Fort was due to speak at 8:50. In the first automobile were Mr. Fort and the newspapermen and behind him came Senator Frelinghuysen, with the three county candidates. The itinerary of the day's trip follows: From North Plainfield to Bound Brook, 8:50-9:10; Millstone, 9:30-9:50; Harlingen, 10:10-10:30; South Branch, 11:10-11:30; Raritan, 11:50. At Raritan the party will stop for dinner, and in the afternoon Mr. Fort will visit the following places: New Brunswick, 1:30-1:50; Gladstone, 2:20-2:40; Bernardsville, 3:30-3:20; Far Hills, 3:40-4; Pluckemin, 4:20-4:40; arriving at Somerville at 5 o'clock. Senator Frelinghuysen will entertain Judge Fort and the candidates at dinner at his home near Raritan, and with the party will be Congressman Wood and Assemblyman A. N. Barber, minority leader of the house. In the evening, Judge Fort will address a mass meeting at Germania Hall, Somerville, and before the meeting there will be a parade through the principal streets to the hall.

HOSPITAL DEBT $2,000

Annual Report from Muhlenberg Hospital Shows Big Increase in Expenses.

MAKING IMPROVEMENTS

Increase In Donations of All Kinds Over Previous Years But Big Decrease From Pay Patients.

The annual report of Muhlenberg Hospital is completed and it will be ready today for general distribution. There are many interesting facts in the statement of the past year's work, but the report of the finance committee, E. H. Ladd, Jr., chairman; W. L. Saunders, Samuel Townsend and Julins E. Erickson, will give an adequate idea of the cost of running the institution. The report is dated June 1, and in part the statement of the finance committee follows:

"The treasurer's annual report submitted shows that the cost of maintaining the institution during the year just closed, not including improvements, was $29,109.63, an increase over the previous year of $1,500.22, the principal changes being an increase in salaries and wages of about $1,000, an increase in provisions of about $1,800 and a decrease in repairs of about $1,100. The hospital receipts, not including donations, charitable gifts, etc., were $12,089.13, a decrease of $1,826.01 compared with the previous year. The receipts from pay patients decreased $1,698.61. The excess of expenditures (not including donations, charitable gifts, etc.) as shown by the "operating account" this year amounted to $17,020.50 against an excess last year of $13,694.27, an increase of $3,326.23. The amount expended for improvements this year for which there were no special donations amounted to $2,207.36 against $688.62 the previous year, an increase of $1,518.74. The excess of expenditures for both maintenance and improvements, omitting donations, charitable gifts, etc., was $19,277.86 against $14,382.89, an increase of $4,844.97.

"The marked increase in expenditures for maintenance and improvements, the falling off in receipts from pay patients and the fact that no carnival was held this year explain the debt of $2,000 with which the year closes.

"The individual donations, including receipts from the League of Mercy, were $4,618.72, an increase of $1,739.84. The receipts from the Charity Ball were $2,439.48, an increase of $712.48. The Hospital Sunday collections were $896.03, a decrease of $123.49. The sum received from the Freeholders of Union county was the same as in the previous year—$4,800. The receipts from the League of Mercy were $577.93, with further returns to be made.

"During the past year the Permanent Endowment Fund has been increased $2,007.50 by donations of $1,007.50 from Senator and Mrs. Everett Colby and $1,000 from Mrs. George H. Babcock. The Memorial Funds have been increased by the bequest of $100 of Olive S. Lanphear. The Endowment, Memorial and Special Trust Funds now amount to $20,032.50. During the year the old Nurses' Home property was sold for $2,900, $900 in cash and a mortgage taken on the property for $2,000. With the $900 cash received a like amount of Building Fund loans was paid off.

"While it is to be regretted that the year closes with a deficit, the outlook for the coming year is encouraging. The Woman's Auxiliary Board will hold an entertainment during the coming week, the net results of which will undoubtedly be very satisfactory; the appropriation from the Freeholders of Union county will probably be increased; there is a fair prospect that the Common Council will grant the "referendum" asked for, as a result of which it is believed the income of the hospital will be considerably increased, and it is fully expected that the work undertaken by the Muhlenberg Hospital League will be so successful as to insure the receipt by the hospital of a substantial sum of money.

"The fellow members of the Treasurer upon the Finance Committee desire to record their full appreciation of the valuable service which Mr. Erickson has rendered the hospital during the past year by so ably filling the office of Treasurer."

George H. Jones.

George H. Jones, a well known local colored character who has been almost totally blind for several years, dropped dead of heart disease as he was visiting at the home of a friend on East Second street, last night. He was thirty-five years old and was a stepson of the late Rev. Scott Wallace. He had been living recently with Deacon Spencer Conway, of West Fourth street, who befriended him. A wife survives him.

THEIR JUBILEE CONTINUES

First M. E. Flock Hear Sermons Delivered by Two Former Pastors.

AN EPWORTHIAN RALLY

Rev. Dr. Tuttle and Rev. Dr. Mitchell Speak—G. A. Horne Talks to Leaguers.

Two excellent sermons by former pastors and special music at all the services marked the beginning of the second week of the diamond jubilee anniversary of the First M. E. church, the meetings of which are being attended by the largest congregations ever seen in this city. Yesterday there were four services, Rev. Dr. Alexander H. Tuttle, of Summit, being the preacher in the morning and Rev. Charles Bayard Mitchell, of Cleveland, Ohio, occupying the pulpit in the evening. Aside from these services, George Horne, of Hackettstown, Pa., addressed the Epworth League meeting in Vincent chapel in the evening, and Dr. Mitchell spoke to the children of the Sunday-school for a few minutes in connection with the afternoon session.

Rev. A. H. Tuttle, who was pastor of the church between 1883 and 1886, was the speaker at the morning service. He took for his topic "The Three Jerusalems,"—the old one of Jewish history, the new Jerusalem with walls of jasper and streets of gold, and the Jerusalem of the present. In enlarging upon his theme, Dr. Tuttle said that the old Jerusalem was characterized by a deep religious feeling, absence of the all absorbing thought of God. All along the Via Dolorosa, which the Saviour travelled to the cross, there are mosques and synagogues, but no theatres or places of amusement. Through the ages Jerusalem has been the abode of the same deep rooted thought of the omnipresence of God on earth. Jerusalem is typical of the church and the place where God is manifest.

Coming to the lesson in his discourse, Dr. Tuttle said that the church now, as then, is perpetual and eternal in the life of our civilization today. From the first altars of prehistoric times, through the day of Pentecost and down to the present day, the church is the strongest, most athletic power the world has ever known.

Music was a feature of the service, which was attended by a monster congregation. Hymns and anthems were rendered by the full vested choir of twenty-four voices. J. Edmund Skiff was at the organ. Miss Bertha van N. Willis sang "Rejoice Greatly" as the offertory.

At the session of Sunday-school in the afternoon, Rev. Charles B. Mitchell, the evening's speaker, addressed the children. He spoke of character building through religion. Taking the life of Joshua as an example, Dr. Mitchell said that he was chosen Moses' successor because he was the man of the hour. Ready for the work, he was trained from youth up in the church. Concluding his talk, Dr. Mitchell spoke of the little Dauphin, Louis XVII, of France, who, when urged to sin by those opposed to his welfare, drew himself up and said: "I am a king's son." The lesson that all are sons of God was drawn with great force from this example.

George Horne, a former Plainfielder, now living at Hackettstown, Pa., was the leader of the Epworth League services in the evening. Mr. Horne, at one time an officer in the league, conducted a strong meeting in Vincent chapel in the evening—previous to the regular evening service. He spoke on the topic "Membership in the Church," dealing briefly and forcefully with the advantages to be gained by the Christian in membership in the church, and urging that all work for the increase of this membership. The meeting was well attended.

A forceful speaker of great dramatic power, Rev. C. B. Mitchell, pastor of the local church from 1888 to 1892, preached a strong evangelistic sermon at the evening service. The seating capacity of the church was filled to overflowing and many stood to hear the speaker. The occasion was a union service with Grace M. E. church and Monroe Avenue, and a large delegation from the congregations of each church was present. Last night's services at the two churches was omitted. An address of welcome was given by Rev. A. C. McCrea, pastor of the church. He commended the big turnout of Methodists, and spoke of the occasion as a "family reunion." Rev. C. W. Parsons, pastor of Grace M. E. church, was unable to be present because of illness, but Rev. E. E. Roberson, of the Monroe Avenue church, was present, with a big delegation from the congregation.

Dr. Mitchell's topic was "The

MR. AND MRS. SULLIVANT TWENTY-FIVE YEARS WED

Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Sullivant, of Watchung avenue, celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding, Saturday night, by entertaining a small company of relatives and friends at a dinner. Covers were laid for fourteen, and among the guests were Monsignor Garvey, president of St. Charles Seminary, Overbrook, Pa., who married Mr. and Mrs. Sullivant a quarter of a century ago in Philadelphia.

Among the other guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Colahan, brother of Mrs. Sulivant and his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Castner, Jr., of Philadelphia; also Rev. B. M. Bogan, pastor of St. Mary's church, who together with Monsignor Garvey, congratulated Mr. and Mrs. Sullivant upon the completion of the twenty-five years of married life. After the dinner and the speeches, the company enjoyed an informal musical.

Mr. and Mrs. Sullivant were married in Philadelphia, Mrs. Sullivant being Miss Agnes Colohan, a member of a prominent family in the Quaker City. They have been residents of this city for several years. Mr. Sullivant is a celebrated cartoonist whose work on a New York paper has won him fame. The couple received a large collection of valuable gifts from relatives and friends.

CHARLES N. FLANDERS DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Following a long illness from a complication of troubles, Charles Newell Flanders, one of Scotch Plains' oldest residents, died at his home on Front street at 9 o'clock last night. Though the end was rather sudden, it was not unexpected as he had been growing weak for several days.

Mr. Flanders was eighty-three years old and had lived in Scotch Plains practically all his life. He came from Brooklyn when a young man and his home, "Eventide," was for a long time the handsomest in the village. He was engaged in the oil business in New York for many years, being one of the few men in the trade who opposed the Standard Oil Company. Failing health compelled him to retire in 1897 and since then he had remained quietly at home.

Mr. Flanders was married twice, his first wife being Miss Caroline Shotwell, niece of the late Copper Parse. She died in 1894. Later he married Miss Fanny Rowland, who survives. The only other near relative is a niece, Mrs. James Middledith, of Truell Court. In politics Mr. Flanders was a life-long Republican and took an active interest in the affairs of the party. He was also a constant worker in the Scotch Plains Baptist church and served many terms on the Board of Trustees.

HOLY NAME RALLY AT MOUNT ST. MARY'S

Observing the annual custom, St. Joseph's Holy Name Society conducted a rally, yesterday afternoon, in which other societies from the Newark and Trenton dioceses took part. The representation in all numbered 350. Assembling at St. Joseph's church, the societies marched to Mount St. Mary's College, headed by the Raritan band, where the main observance was held.

A gathering of nearly 2,000 persons was in waiting at the college grounds and participated in a service. The Holy Name members were addressed by Rev. Father Leahy, of Princeton, his subject dealing with the use of blasphemy, the object of the society being to discourage it. Following his discourse, solemn benediction was pronounced by Mgr. O'Grady, of New Brunswick, assisted by Rev. Father Zimmer, of Raritan, and Rev. Father Brennan, of Roselle. Music for the service was provided by the choir of St. Joseph's church, assisted by the band.

The societies taking part were from the churches at Somerville, Raritan, Bound Brook, South Plainfield and Stony Hill in addition to North Plainfield. The visiting priests were Mgr. O'Grady, of New Brunswick; Father Schwartz, of Stony Hill; Father Zimmer, of Raritan; Father Bogaard, of Somerville; Father Brennan, of Roselle; Father Dunphy, of Dunellen, and Father Miller, of North Plainfield. DEDICATE THEIR EDIFICE

Warren Chapel Flock Hold First Service in the New Structure.

SOME MINISTERS SPEAK

Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie and Others Give Encouraging Talks to the Congregations.

The dedication service of the new Warren chapel building on Watchung avenue, the borough, was held yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, and was largely attended by the ministers and members of the city and borough churches. It was a time of great rejoicing and thankfulness on the part of the pastor, Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey, and his people, and everyone joined in the congratulations offered pastor and people upon attaining such a well-appointed and attractive place of worship.

Seated on the platform were, beside the pastor, Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church; Rev. L. R. Howard, of Hope chapel; Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church; Rev. Alexander McKelvey, of Boonton, father of the pastor, and Rev. F. D. Tildon, of Bethel chapel, all of whom had some part in the service.

After the organ prelude by Charles D. Wheeler, which marked the first public use of the handsome organ given by Mrs. Emma F. Ege, in memory of her sister, Mrs. Lucy A. Talmage, the congregation joined in singing the doxology. Rev. Alexander McKelvey offered prayer, the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison followed by responsive reading. Rev. L. R. Howard read the Scripture lesson, after which Miss Nora B. Schenck, soprano soloist, of the chapel, sang "The Good Shepherd," by Barri. Prayer by Rev. Dr. Herring, with choral response, preceded the financial statement read by Chas. F. Abbott, president of the Board of Trustees.

This report showed that the entire cost of the new building, including furnishings, etc., was $30,800, of which $20,594 has been subscribed and practically paid in, leaving a debt of $8,206, prior to the taking of the offering at the dedication service, which was expected to reduce it nearly $1,000. Toward the furnishing of the chapel, which work was undertaken by the Missionary and Aid Society and afterward joined in by all the members, $1,100 was raised.

The pulpit furnishings, including chairs and desk, were the gift of Mr. and Mrs. James W. DeGraff, while the carpet for the pulpit platform was given by Miss Adele Kirby's Sunday-school class. The communion table was presented to the chapel by Mr. and Mrs. John F. Harmon.

An offertory selection by the choir, followed with prayer, preceded the dedicatory anthem by the choir and the dedication of the chapel, the words being read by Rev. Mr. McKelvey and congregation responsively. The prayer of consecration was by Rev. Dr. Zelie.

The dedication sermon was delivered by Rev. J. T. Kerr, of Elizabeth, who gave an inspiring discourse on the seed as representing the Word of God. He referred to the parable of the sower, the sowing of the seed of the Word of God in the hearts of the people and the harvest time. Dr. Kerr spoke especially of three aspects of Christian discipleship, the seed, sown and the sowers. "Discipleship," the speaker said, "is life born of God. He has given us Eternal life and he that hath the Son hath Life. The life of God is in him with all the possibilities of development of the Christ life.

"In the second place Christ's disciples are sown. They are placed in the world that they may yield much fruit and that they may be true disciples of Christ. Christ has said 'I have ordained you that ye should go and bring forth fruit.' Under the head of sowers, the disciples must be sowers of the Word. They must plant the seed in fertile ground. The sower helps to propogate the fruit and the two agents unite as one in Christian husbandry. The seed must be the best, the sower must be in earnest and the seed must be sown in the right place."

The service closed with a prayer by Rev. F. D. Tildon, the singing of a hymn and the pronouncing of the benediction by Mr. McKelvey.

An inspection of the new edifice was made after the service and all were greatly pleased with the architecture and general arrangement inside. It is mission in style of architecture, constructed of brick and concrete. The interior plan is especially well adapted for chapel use. There is one large room for preaching service, and on either side are a total of twelve Sunday-school class rooms which can be shut off by sliding doors. Back of the pulpit is a study room for the pastor and in the front of the building is a gallery to be used for overflow audiences. On one side

MISS DRAKE ELOPES WITH A MARRIED MAN

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. N. Drake Disappeared with Thomas P. Davis, Who Has Wife and Children.

GONE FOR TWO WEEKS

Heartbroken Parents Receive Letters from Daughter Who Promises That Her Companion Will Get a Divorce.

Information that Thomas P. Davis, whose wedding to Elise D. Drake was to have taken place within a few weeks, is a married man with a wife and two children in Liverpool, England, together with the fact that Davis and the girl left town Tuesday, October 1, and have not been seen since, have made the girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. Newton Drake, of 165 Somerset street, frantic with grief. Mrs. Drake is today on the verge of a nervous collapse.

The fact that Davis married in Liverpool, when a young man, was known to P. Newton Drake, the father, who gave his consent to the marriage only on the condition that a divorce, which Davis said he was seeking, could be secured.

The couple, who left Miss Drake's home on Somerset street early Tuesday afternoon, two weeks ago, went immediately to Bound Brook and from there Miss Drake wrote a letter to her mother. The letter said: "Tommy and I are here, where he can easily get the divorce and where he can escape the black looks of father."

Last Friday another letter was received, postmarked Washington, D. C. In this, Miss Drake asked forgiveness from her parents and permission to come back with "Tom." Mr. Drake wrote in reply, telling his daughter to come back, but refusing to receive Davis.

Neither of the communications mentioned anything about whether the two were married, but this is what the parents fear. A local clairvoyant, whom Mrs. Drake recently consulted, said that the marriage had taken place. The address of the couple in Washington is not known, Miss Drake writing her father to address his reply "general delivery."

Davis, who is twenty-eight years of age, came to this country three years ago from Liverpool, England. He was employed in the shop at Pond's, during his residence in this city. Eight months ago, Davis met Miss Drake, and five months later, the engagement of the two was announced. Davis was at that time a boarder at Drake's house, in the borough.

Two weeks ago today, Mrs. Drake learned from a friend that Davis was a married man. Davis had been talking about his past life among some of his acquaintances, and it was learned that he married an English girl in Liverpool, when he was nineteen years old. His wife refused to come with him when he came to this country, and he is alleged to be trying to get a divorce on this account, claiming that he was not of age when married. There are two children with Mrs. Davis in Liverpool. On first coming to this country, Davis was employed as engineer on the steamship St. Paul, of the American line.

Crushed by the shock of their daughter's disappearance and the facts they have learned about her fiance, Mr. and Mrs. Drake have as yet determined upon no course of action. Miss Drake is expected to return home this week.

Funeral of Alonzo Titsworth.

A quartette, composed of Dr. Benjamin Whitford, Mrs. D. E. Titsworth, Mrs. W. C. Hubbard and Charles Titsworth, sang "Lead, Kindly Light" and "Abide With Me." Interment was made at Hillside cemetery, the pallbearers being Dudley Miller, Dr. George Boston and W. B. Mosher, of this city, and Fred Nelson, of Bound Brook.

BIG LIONESS TEARS ATTENDANT'S ARM

TRAINER ESCAPES AFTER SAVING YOUNG MAN.

Lawrence Frazer, twenty years old, an attache of an animal show that exhibited on the carnival grounds during Old Home Week, at Elizabeth, is in the hospital there in a serious condition as the result of an attack upon him by a lioness. The young man is badly bruised about the body. Blood poisoning is feared. Captain Cardena, the trainer, saved the young man after a desperate encounter.

Frazer was at work near a small cage in which Sultana, a big lioness, had been placed temporarily, and stepped too near the bars. At the same instant the brute reached out her paw and grabbed the young man by the arm and began to chew his shoulder.

Cardena rushed into the tent, attracted by the cries of the injured man and the other attendants. The trainer grabbed a big whip and a prong and jumped into the cage with the lioness. By using both weapons he succeeded in getting the lioness to relinquish her hold on the attendant, and he had barely time to get out of the cage himself before the animal turned on him.

BAPTIST MISSIONARY SOCIETY'S MEETING.

Semi-Annual Gathering Held in Local Church Friday Afternoon.

The afternoon session of the semi-annual meeting of the Woman's Baptist Foreign Missionary Society of the East Association of New Jersey, held Friday in the lecture room of the First Baptist church, was opened with a Bible reading on the subject of "Prayer," by Mrs. J. A. Chambliss.

A message of getting was sent by telephone to Mrs. Alonzo Petit, of Elizabeth, the former State president, with the Bible reference Ruth 2:12.

The "Study Course" was the theme of a deeply interesting paper by Miss Nora Forster, of Jersey City, in which the study of the text book "Gloria Christi" was outlined and the advantages of such a study shown. Mrs. E. O. Silver, of East Orange, the acting State president, spoke on the "Apportionment," for the State, associations and circles, earnestly urging a determined and united effort of the women of the State to prevent a deficit at the year's end.

Mrs. Heinrichs, of Ramapatan, India, spoke briefly of the inspiration such a meeting was to a missionary. The great revival of India, she said, should silence the comment that the educational work in heathen lands was not evangelistic for this wonderful revival began and spread through the schools.

Mrs. F. C. Foster, of Newark, occupied the last hour with the thought that the depleted ranks of the older societies must be filled from the Junior societies. With a folding map she showed the great need of heathen lands and with a measuring tape she gave an object lesson of showing the great wealth of the Christian world and the small sum comparatively given to missions.

The enrollment committee reported 101 delegates.

TEACHERS WIN OUT.

Get $3,000 for Administration of Retirement Fund.

Senator Robbins opposed the passage of House Bill 316, providing for the appropriation of $1,500 to the account for the administration of the teachers' retirement fund, and its amendment, providing an additional $1,500. He was seconded in some of his arguments by some of his colleagues, but on the vote alone he was against the measure.

Senator Hunchinson was seriously shocked, so he said, at the lack of chivalry that would lead any one to oppose such a bill. He averred, amid applause, that the Senate of New Jersey didn't accomplish as much in a year for good citizenship and the future of the Republic as one "little school ma'am in a little red school house in the hills of New Jersey."

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Two sets of scenery are used in Henry W. Savage's elaborate revival of the Pixly-Luders bird opera, "Woodland." Both are said to excel anything ever before turned out by Walter Burridge, Mr. Savage's celebrated scenic painter. The first scene represents a forest glen at the end of a rocky canon. Huge boulders form a sort of natural ampitheatre, and the scene has the effect of being a "forest primeval." The second scene is somewhat lighter in tone and represents a birchen grove, with a dense chapparel of blossoming trees on the edge of a placid lake. Gentle hillocks run up from both sides, and the lake is seen through the interlacing fringe of tall birches. It forms the sylvan setting for this exquisite musical poem of bird fairyland. "Woodland" will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night, and will be the same in every detail as when presented in Boston, Chicago and New York, in each of which it scored strongly as a most popular success.

Laura Burt and Henry Stanford will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre next Thursday night in the greatest of all society plays, "The Walls of Jericho," by Alfred Sutro. This modern play comes straight from its extended London and New York runs, and is presented by Ernest Shipman, that "Rapid" New York manager, who's companies and productions are acknowledged to be of the best.

Dramatic interest is centered in the coming to the New Plainfield theatre next Friday night of Herbert Kelcey and Effie Shannon, who for many seasons have furnished such delightful entertainment by their combined talents which it is promised will shine to even greater advantage in the new play "Bridge," which has been chosen by Manager pictures bordering on melodramatic lines. The production is announced as being one of infinite splendor while the company employed in support of Mr. Kelcey and Effie Shannon is one of exceptional abilities. Mrs. Sol Smith and Edgar L. Davenport have conspicuous roles.

"The Lady from Lane's," a new three-act comedy with music by Geo. Broadhurst and Gustave Kerker, will be presented at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday night. It has been many seasons since the public has seen a musical offering with as funny a book as has been written by Mr. Broadhurst. It is bristling with comedy from start to finish. The laughs are all obtained by legitimate comedy methods. Thomas Wise has the funniest comedy role he has ever created, and Truly Shattuck, Ida Hawley, Adele Rafter, Walter Percival, and the other competent members of the cast have splendid opportunities. Mrs. E. A. Eberle, who plays an important character role, was in the original cast of Mr. Broadhurst's greatest success, "What Happened to Jones." The usual Saturday matinee will be omitted.

OUR SENATORS.

After holding the longest session on record and staying up all night to complete its arduous duties, New Jersey's State Legislature adjourned at 3.22 Saturday morning when the 415th anniversary of the discovery of America had been ushered in. During the memorable sessions, Union county played an important role in shaping legislation. It fell to the lot of Ernest R. Ackerman, the representative of Union in the Upper House, for instance, to notify Governor Stokes that the Senate of New Jersey had assembled and awaited his pleasure. When all the work mapped out had been finished it again become his duty to inform the chief executive that there was no further business before the Senate and before it adjourned it desired to receive any communications he might wish to meet to transmit.

Probably no single man in the whole body worked harder and accomplished more than our representative. First of all he engineered the message of the bill for the recreation pier for Elizabeth and the measure for the improving of the Elizabeth river, both of which had been put through the Lower House by Assemblyman John R. Moxon, of Elizabeth, an indefatigable member of Union's trio in the Assembly. The law extending the Savings Bank act to cover investments of trustees, executors and the like was also an idea of his that met with the approval of both Houses. The prison parole act, which permits an arrest without warrant of any prisoner who has violated his parole, and the traveling library act, which provides for books to be sent from place to place among the prisons of the State, are also his works. Both are now on the statute books as are those previously enumerated. The act creating anatomical societies, for the purpose of allowing surgeons to procure unclaimed bodies for scientific investigation and experiment, is still another measure for which our admirable senator is responsible.

Last but by no means least, the civil service bill, which was unanimously passed by the Senate yesterday, is largely the work of Mr. Ackerman. As chairman of the committee having it in tow, he put in some hard work in co-operation with Somerset county's splendid representative, Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, father of the pure food and automobile laws.

The record of Senator Ackerman has given him equal rank with Union's past representatives in the Upper House including such men as Former Governor Foster Voorhees, Chancellor Magie and Circuit Court Judge Joseph Cross. As for Senator Frelinghuysen, his work in the Legislature has made him a worthy member of a family whose names grace the pages of the history of New Jersey. Somerset county is indeed fortunate in being able to command the services of so able a son.

Beer for Breakfast.

Sixteenth century children in England ate very different food from that consumed by modern American youngsters. The following dietary is taken from the Northumberland Household Book, showing the nursery breakfasts at the beginning of the sixteenth century: "This is the Ordre of Braikfastis for the Nurcy for my Lady Margaret and Maister Ingeram Percy every day in the week in Lent: Item, a Manchet (a small loaf of white bread), a Quarte of Bere, a Dysch of Butter, a Pece of Saltfisch, a Dysch of Sproitts or iij White Herring. Braikfastis of Flesch dayly thorowte the Yere: Item, a Manchet, a Quarte of Bere and iij Muton Bonys boiled. On Fyschedays throw-owte the Yere: Item, a Manchet, a Quarte Bere, a Dysch of Butter, a pece of Saltfische or a Dysch of Butter'd Eggs." Milk seems to have been an unknown beverage, but the beer of those days was very different from the modern article and much more harmless.

SOCIETY AT WEDDING OF FANWOOD BELLE

MISS LILLIAN FANCHER THE CHARMING BRIDE.

The Scotch Plains Baptist church was the scene of a pretty autumn wedding, Saturday evening at 7 o'clock, when Miss Lillian Fancher, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. F. W. Westcott, of Fanwood, became the bride of Edward F. Howe, of Troy, N. Y. The church was beautifully decorated with autumn boughs and white chrysanthemums.

Dr. Westcott gave the bride in marriage. The ushers were Stillman F. Westbrook, of Ogdensburg, N. Y., John Bright Lord, of Brooklyn; Francis B. Sayre, of Philadelphia, all classmates of the groom at Williams College, and Edwin Fancher, of Fanwood, brother of the bride. The bride's only attendant was Miss Josephine Wright, of Berlin, Wisconsin. The groomsman was Payson Stone Douglass, of West Orange, also a classmate of the groom.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. James Braker, a former pastor of the church, assisted by Rev. T. Moore-Smith, the present pastor.

The bride wore a gown of cream white satin, en train, which was particularly attractive because of its simplicity. The waist was trimmed with chiffon and duchess lace. She wore pear ornaments, a family heirloom, the gift of her aunt, Miss Mollie Fancher, of Brooklyn. Her tulle veil was held in place with orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of bride roses and lillies of the valley.

Mrs. F. W. Westcott, mother of the bride, wore a pale blue messaline gown en train, trimmed with silver lace and carried mauve orchilds. Mrs. Frank E. Howe, mother of the groom, was gowned in violet chiffon trimmed with silk embroidery of the same shade and cloth of gold.

A wedding reception followed at the home of the bride's parents. The groom entertained his best man and ushers at dinner on Friday night and presented them with scarf pins. Dr. and Mrs. Westcott's gift to the bride was a substantial check and the groom's parents gave a chest of solid silver. Mr. Howe gave his bride a ring of saphires and diamonds.

The couple will reside with the groom's parents in Troy. The bride's traveling gown was of bright blue cloth with hat to match. The gifts which numbered over three hundred were rich and varied. There were present many out of town guests, including Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Galbraith and Mr. and Mrs. James Flemming, of Troy; Mr. and Mrs. Tapan, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Gilmore, Mr. and Mrs. Drake, of Newark; Mr. and Mrs. Fabee, of Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. George Strong, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Strong and Miss Strong, of Warwick, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. Heaton, of Monroe, N. Y.; Miss Lillian Fox and Miss Klepeteo, of New York; Dr. and Mrs. Harrison, of Westfield; Dr. and Mrs. Hess, of Newark, and Mrs. Douglass and Miss Douglass, of West Orange.

FAIR ACRES MATINEE DRAWS LARGE CROWD

DONNELLY EXHIBITS "RIFLE" AT THE MEET.

The Fair Acres Riding and Driving Association closed the season Saturday afternoon with one of the best matinees cards. There was a large crowd present, the grandstand being well filled with lovers of trotting races. The card comprised four races, trot and pace, and in each the association offered first, second and third prizes. The first was a $25 set of harness, the second, a $10 blanket and the third a $2.50 whip. The races were all closely contested and furnished good sport for the afternoon.

Richard Donnelly was present with his champion jumper, "Rifle," and the horse gave a fine exhibition. Two jumps of seven feet each were loudly applauded.

The judges for the races were J. Wesley Johnson and Dr. Butler. David G. Smalley was the starter and J. H. Senior and W. H. Grearson were timers. The summary follows:

The Business Instinct.

Ed was a mighty bright negro belonging to a family in Columbia, Tenn. He had been a faithful servant for many years, and by saving and carefully investing his wages he had belied the usual thriftliness attributed with more or less justice to the majority of his race.

His master was an attorney, and one morning before he had arisen the lawyer was called upon by Ed, who said:

"Say, boss, Ah wants yo' ter draw me up a mawkgidge."

"A mortgage?" asked his master. "What do you want a mortgage for?"

"Well, Ah's done lent Unc' Lisha five dollahs, an' Ah wants a mawkgidge on his cow an' caff."

"For how long have you lent the money?"

"Fo' one monf."

"One month! Why, the interest on that amount for that time wouldn't pay for the paper a mortgage is written on."

"Boss," said Ed, scratching his head, "Ah ain't carin' nuffin' fo' dat intrust. Ah jes' wants dat niggah's cow an' caff."—Judge.

DEDICATE THEIR EDIFICE

gallery is a room to be occupied by the Missionary and Aid Society and on the opposite side is a similar room for the use of the Men's Association and Christian Endeavor Society. The interior finishing is of oak, with dark stain, and the chapel pews are of similar material, handsomely cushioned.

A valuable adjunct to the edifice is the well-equipped kitchen in the basement. It is provided with a range, gas stove, dish closets, hot and cold water, a dumb waiter, operating from the basement to the gallery floor, and a system of speaking tubes.

Rev. Mr. McKelvey was the first regularly pastor of Warren chapel, beginning his work there about twelve years ago. Prior to that time the chapel was largely supported by all denominations and was in a general sense a mission. After Mr. McKelvey assumed the pastorate, the Second Avenue Presbyterian church took up the support of the work and has continued to do so ever since. The chapel occupies a peculiar field which is not covered by any other church in the borough and it has grown steadily in membership and influence.

The new chapel has also a bell in the cupola. This bell a great many years ago was used at the North Avenue station to announce the arrival and departure of trains. Afterward it served as a fire alarm for the borough and more recently it was given to the chapel by William Debele, into whose hands it came when replaced by a larger one in the fire tower at the engine house on Somerset street. The contractors who constructed the new chapel are as follows: Wyman & Haberle, carpentry work; Williams Brothers, mason work; Woodson & Buckle, painting and decorating; A. M. Griffen, plumbing and heating; J. W. Gavett, selection of lights; A. B. Laing, electrical work. A. L. C. Marsh was the architect. It is also noteworthy that Mr. McKelvey turned the first spade of earth excavating the cellar.

Rev. Alexander McKelvey, of Boonton, father of Pastor McKelvey, occupied the pulpit at the chapel last night and delivered a strong sermon.

ENGLISH STORIES.

The Striking Way an English Notable Won a Nickname.

Dean Stanley once went late to dinner with his cellar flapping. His hostess ventured to ask him if he knew. "Oh yes!" answered the dean. "Do you mind?" "Not at all," said the lady. "Then I don't mind, either. The button dropped off while I was dressing." And the dean continued his conversation.

Rev. W. H. Tuckwell is responsible for the history of how an Oxford notable in the thirties got his nickname "Presence of Mind" Smith. He went boating with a friend and returned alone and was asked what had become of his companion. He explained that his friend had fallen into the Isis, "and if I had not with great presence of mind hit him on the head with a boat hook the both of us would have been drowned."

The late Joseph Joachim was a great favorite in London and for more than sixty years rarely missed a season there. A certain notable told him that he was going to St. James' hall to hear him, and Joachim later asked him if he had found it tedious. "Not at all," serenely answered the titled personage. "I enjoyed myself immensely. I did not recognize you at first under your disguise as a nigger, but later I laughed all the more." The nobleman had strolled by mistake into a minstrel show instead of the large concert hall.

A Big Production.

In presenting Henry W. Savage's musical production, "Woodland," at the new Plainfield theatre tomorrow night, Manager Counihan is giving one of the theatrical treats of the season. The company is the same which appeared for a whole season in New York, and comes to Plainfield with carloads of scenery and effects. Only a few other productions which have been seen here equal it in point of costuming and mounting.

The display of fruits and vegetables is always the largest and best at Newman Brothers. Consignments reach the store every day.

"Randolph's Egg Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil."

This is a very valuable remedy for coughs, colds and bronchitis.

It is different from many kinds of Cod Liver Oil, in that it is pleasant to the taste and easy to take. Being very nutritious, it soon builds up a run down system.

Shameless Jew." He took his text from Romans 1:16, "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, which is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth." Paul, the speaker of these words, was a Jew of the Pharasee class, highly educated, but with Jewish traits and Jewish prejudices. But he had a Jew's spiritual insight, and a monotheistic idea of the spirituality of God. He was a Roman citizen and a patroit, and one of the best educated Jews of his time. This, the speaker said, is shown by his writings, for his epistle is considered the best example of idiomatic Greek extant. The speaker dwelt on Paul's fearlessness as a Jew in making such a statement as the text. He realized the power of God as he saw it in nature and Dr. Mitchell cited dramatically examples of this power as seen in Niagara Falls, a western tornado and a volcano. Despite this power of God in creation, which the speaker enlarged upon, God's power in redemption is greater and the speaker said that this was the power all Christians need to clean up our lives. The speaker concluded with a strong evangelistic appeal to each individual, in which he showed his great power of pathos. "I will left up mine eyes" (Elliott) was sung as an anthem by the choir, and Miss Suzanne Zimmerman sang "The Lord is my light" for the offertory.

"Ex-Pastors' Night" in the celebration will be Tuesday. All the living former pastors of the church will take part in the observance. James W. Jackson, a former superintendent of the Sunday-school, will preside, and there will be addresses by Rev. Dr. Jesse Hurlbut, Rev. C. R. Barnes, Rev. Dr. G. H. Whitney, Rev. J. B. VanMeter, Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, and Rev. Dr. Tuttle, the morning's preacher. Thursday evening there will be a reception to the pastors and congregations of the Monroe Avenue M. E. and Grace M. E. churches. Rev. Daniel Halleron, of Newark, the presiding elder of the district, will speak, also the pastors of the two local Methodist churches.

Friday, October 18, which is the real anniversary date, will be marked by a special rally. Epworth League branches connected with all the churches of the city, and those from Methodist churches of near-by cities have been invited to attend or send delegates, and Rev. Dr. George Edward Reed, president of Dickinson College, president of the Reed Law School and former State Librarian of Pennsylvania, will be the speaker. Dr. Reed will take for his topic "Qaulities Tlat Win." James R. Joy, associate editor of the Christian Advocate, will lead the meeting.

PAYMENT OF $15 FINE ENDS THE LEMON CASE

ANGLEMAN FAILED TO FIND THE THROWER—OTHER COURT NEWS.

Failing to locate the Scotch Plains youth who he alleged had thrown the lemon at Percy L. Barry at the North Avenue station last Monday night and which led to a three-cornered fight, Clarence Angleman dropped into the city court this morning and paid the $15 conditional fine imposed by Judge Runyon. Angleman said he had searched high and low for the fellow but couldn't find him, although he used to meet him every day and could pick him out among a thousand. The court said "all right" but there were suspicions that Clarence hadn't exerted himself any too much.

George Parker, the local dog fancier who was the complainant against Patrol Driver O'Gorman the time he was before the police board, was arraigned this morning on a drunk charge. He came down town Saturday night with three of his dogs and between them and booze got badly tangled up on Park avenue. Sentence was suspended.

Twenty days straight was given Foster Sprague, arrested Saturday night for drunkenness and disorderly conduct. It was the fourth time he had appeared in court since last May and on the three previous occasions he had gotten off with a small fine. Henry Palmer, colored, was fined $5 for raising a rumpus at the home of Mattie Barber in the West End, one day last week. Mattie specified in her complaint that he had kicked the furniture around and threatened to put all the inmates of the house in their coffins.

25 YEARS MARRIED.

Mr. and Mrs. Vroom Celebrate Silver Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip A. Vroom entertained at their home on Stone street Saturday night in honor of their silver wedding anniversary. The couple were the recipients of many presents of silver money and of silverware.

Among the guests, from Peapack, Bedminster, Pluckemin, Somerville and Brooklyn, was Rev. T. W. Jones. Dr. Jones was formerly pastor of the church Mr. Vroom attended at Bedminster, his home before moving to this city. Dr. Jones is now living in Brooklyn. He made an address at the supper.

USE PAR HANDICAP AT COUNTRY CLUB

NEW SYSTEM IN FORCE SATURDAY FOR FIRST TIME.

The delightful autumn weather on Saturday attracted a large field of players to the Plainfield Country Club, and a number of excellent scores were returned in the competitions scheduled for the day. The course was in fine condition and on the new basis of handicapping there was general satisfaction among the contestants.

In the continuation of play for the Autumn cup, Class A, E. T. Willson, 13, beat C. A. Stover, 13, 2 up and 1 to play, and Dudley H. Barrows, 4, beat Frank O. Reinhart, 4, 1 up in 22 holes. This match was warmly contested from the start and the two crack players were nip and tuck until the last hole was played. In Class B, A. G. Henderson, 19, beat W. F. Merrill, 25, 2 up and 1 to play, and L. H. Gates, 27, beat George S. Clay, 27, 3 up and 1 to play.

Several ties resulted in the weekly competition for the Golf Committee cup, three players being tied for first honors with a net score of 77. The cards returned were as follows:

W. T. Glenney, 86, 9—77; E. T. Willson, 90, 13—77; Arthur Murphy, 88, 11—77; J. A. Lane, 97, 15—78; D. H. Rowland, 98, 20—78; W. Lester Glenney, 83, 4—79. For the Green Committee cup these scores were returned:

C. C. Burke, 95, 14—81; A. G. Henderson, 101, 19—82; Hugh F. Fox, 104, 20—84.

An even six returned cards at the Park Golf Club on Saturday for the President's, Golf Club and October cups, although there were many more contestants on the course. The match which was to have been played between the home club and the Middlebrook Country Club was postponed until next Saturday. In the weekly competition, J. B. Betts took first honors for the President's and October cups, while C. B. Morse and Dr. H. Carroll divided first honors for the Scratch cup. These scores were posted for all three trophies:

J. B. Betts, 116, 29—87; Rev. C. L. Goodrich, 105, 12—93; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 103, 6—98; Charles B. Morse, 103, 4—99; E. A. Lyon, 128, 24—104; W. V. Byard, 113, 6—107.

IN THE FOG

BY

Richard Harding Davis.

COPYRIGHT, 1901, BY ROBERT HOWARD RUSSELL.

The train waited three minutes at Arles, and in that time I supposed I must have rushed up to over twenty women and asked, 'Are you Natalie?' The only reason I wasn't punched with an umbrella and handed over to the police was that they probably thought I was crazy.

"When I jumped back into the compartment the Princess was seated where I had left her, but her eyes were burning with happiness. She placed her hand on my arm almost affectionately, and said in a hysterical way, 'You are very kind to me. I am so sorry to have troubled you.'

"I protested that every woman on the platform was dressed in black.

"'Indeed I am so sorry,' she said, laughing; and she continued to laugh until she began to breathe so quickly that I thought she was going to faint.

"I can see now that the last part of that journey must have been a terrible half hour for her. She had the cigar-case safe enough, but she knew that she herself was not safe. She understood if I were to open my bag, even at the last minute, and miss the case, I would know positively that she had taken it. I had placed the diamonds in the bag at the very moment she entered the compartment, and no one but our two selves had occupied it since. She knew that when we reached Marseilles she would either be twenty thousand pounds richer than when she left Paris, or that she would go to jail. That was the situation as she must have read it, and I don't envy her her state of mind during that last half hour. It must have been hell.

"I saw that something was wrong, and in my innocence I even wondered if possibly my cognac had not been a little too strong. For she suddenly developed into a most brilliant conversationalist, and applauded and laughed at everything I said, and fired off questions at me like a machine gun, so that I had no time to think of anything but of what she was saying. Whenever I stirred she stopped her chattering and leaned toward me, and watched me like a cat over a mouse-hole. I wondered how I could have considered her an agreeable traveling companion. I thought I would have preferred to be locked in with a lunatic. I don't like to think how she would have acted if I had made a move to examine the bag, but as I had it safely strapped around me again, I did not open it, and I reached Marseilles alive. As we drew into the station she shook hands with me and grinned at me like a Cheshire cat.

"'I cannot tell you,' she said, 'how much I have to thank you for.' What do you think of that for impudence?

"I offered to put her in a carriage, but she said she must find Natalie, and that she hoped we would meet again at the hotel. So I drove off by myself, wondering who she was, and whether Natalie was not her keeper.

"I had to wait several hours for the train to Nice, and as I wanted to stroll around the city I thought I had better put the diamonds in the safe of the hotel. As soon as I reached my room I locked the door, placed the hand bag on the table and opened it. I felt among the things at the top of it, but failed to touch the cigar-case. I shoved my hand in deeper, and stirred the things about, but still I did not reach it. A cold wave swept down my spine, and a sort of emptiness came to the pit of my stomach. Then I turned red-hot, and the sweat sprung out all over me. I wet my lips with my tongue, and said to myself, 'Don't be an ass. Pull yourself together, pull yourself together. Take the things out, one at a time. It's there, of course it's there. Don't be an ass.'

"So I put a brake on my nerves and began very carefully to pick out the things one by one, but after another second I could not stand it, and I rushed across the room and threw out everything on the bed. But the diamonds were not among them. I pulled the things about and tore them open and shuffled and rearranged and sorted them, but it was no use. The cigar-case was gone. I threw everything in the dressing-case out on the floor, although I knew it was useless to look for it there. I knew that I had put it in the bag. I sat down and tried to think. I remembered I had put it in the satchel at Paris just as that woman had entered the compartment, and I had been alone with her ever since, so it was she who had robbed me. But how? It had never left my shoulder. And then I remembered that it had—that I had taken it off when I had changed my coat and for the few moments that I was searching for Natalie. I remembered that the woman had sent me on that goose chase, and that at every other station she had tried to get rid of me on some fool errand.

"I gave a roar like a mad bull, and I jumped down the stairs six steps at a time.

"I demanded at the office if a distinguished lady of title, possibly a Russian, had just entered the hotel.

"As I expected, she had not. I sprang into a cab and inquired at two other hotels, and then I saw the folly of trying to catch her without outside help, and I ordered the fellow to gallop to the office of the Chief of Police. I told my story, and the ass in charge asked me to calm myself, and wanted to take notes. I told him this was no time for taking notes, but for doing something. He got wrathy at that, and I demanded to be taken at once to his Chief. The Chief, he said, was very busy, and could not see me. So I showed him my silver greyhound. In eleven years I had never used it but once before. I stated in pretty vigorous language that I was a Queen's Messenger, and that if the Chief of Police did not see me instantly he would lose his official head. At that the fellow jumped off his high horse and ran with me to his chief,—a smart young chap, a colonel in the army, and a very intelligent man.

"I explained that I had been robbed in a French railway carriage of a diamond necklace belonging to the Queen of England, which her Majesty was sending as a present to the Czarina of Russia. I pointed out to him that if he succeeded in capturing the thief he would be made for life, and that he would receive the gratitude of three great powers.

"He wasn't the sort that thinks second thoughts are best. He saw Russian and French decorations sprouting all over his chest, and he hit a bell, and pressed buttons, and yelled out orders like the captain of a penny steamer in a fog. He sent her description to all the city gates, and ordered all cabmen and railway porters to search all trains leaving Marseilles. He ordered all passengers on outgoing vessels to be examined, and telegraphed the proprietors of every hotel and pension to send him a complete list of their guests within the hour. While I was standing there he must have given at least a hundred orders, and sent out enough commissaires, sergeants de ville, gendarmes, bicycle police, and plain-clothes Johnnies to have captured the entire German army. When they had gone he assured me that the woman was as good as arrested already. Indeed, officially she was arrested; for she had no more chance of escape from Marseilles than from the Chateau D'If.

"He told me to return to my hotel and possess my soul in peace. Within an hour he assured me he would acquaint me with her arrest.

"I thanked him, and complimented him on his energy, and left him. But I didn't share in his confidence. I felt that she was a very clever woman, and a match for any and all of us. It was all very well for him to be jubilant. He had not lost the diamonds, and had everything to gain if he found them; while I, even if he did recover the necklace, would only be where I was before I lost them, and if he did not recover it I was a ruined man. It was an awful facer for me. I had always prided myself on my record. In eleven years I had never mislaid an envelope, nor missed taking the first train. And now I had failed in the most important mission that had ever been intrusted to me. And it wasn't a thing that could be hushed up, either. It was too conspicuous, too spectacular. It was sure to invite the widest notoriety. I saw myself ridiculed all over the Continent, and perhaps dismissed, even suspected of having taken the thing myself.

"I was walking in front of a lighted cafe, and I felt so sick and miserable that I stopped for a pick-me-up. Then I considered that if I took one drink I would probably, in my present state of mind, not want to stop under twenty, and I decided I had better leave it alone. But my nerves were jumping, like a frightened rabbit, and I felt I must have something to quiet them, or I would go crazy. I reached for my cigarette-case, but a cigarette seemed hardly adequate, so I put it back again and took out this cigar-case, in which I keep only the strongest and blackest cigars. I opened it and stuck in my fingers, but instead of a cigar they touched on a thin leather envelope. My heart stood perfectly still. I did not dare to look, but I dug my finger nails into the leather and I felt layers of thin paper, then a layer of cotton, and then they scratched on the facets of the Czarina's diamonds!

Do You Realize
that Your Old Square or Upright Piano is Growing Less and Less in Value Every Day.

Naturally you hesitate to spend anything on it for tuning and Repairing; you can use it but very little, if at all, and as time passes on it goes from bad to worse.

Why not put in its place a new, modern instrument that will add to the beauty and happiness of your home?

We will give you a liberal exchange valuation on your old piano. The balance you can pay in payments of from $5 to $10 monthly.

In the purchase price of each instrument we include a stool, scarf or cover, one year's tuning and free delivery to your parlor.

Why not decide to get a new piano now?

HUNT CLUB CHASE THE SEASON'S BEST

TWO SPILLS DURING THE RUN BUT NEITHER WAS SERIOUS.

The weekly chase of the Watchung Hunt Club, Saturday afternoon, was one of the best of the season. There were only two spills and they were so trivial that they did not interfere in the least with the enjoyment of the riders. Daniel Runkle and Harry A. Bourne were thrown near the Lehigh Valley Railroad tracks at Oak Tree while endeavoring to get their mounts over a fence. Neither rider was injured and they proceeded with the hunters.

The riders assembled at the Gentlemen's Driving Park, where prior to the chase there was a pony race, between C. E. S. Bellows on Harry A. Bourne's pony and James Gethin's pony, ridden by Richard Donnelly. Mr. Bellows won the race.

Under the direction of Harvey Fisk, acting master in the place of Lewis E. Waring, who has been judging saddle horses and jumpers at the Richmond Horse Show, the riders started out for the chase, taking a course over the driving park track and the hills beyond to Oak Tree and vicinity. In all about six miles were covered. The new hounds worked out fine.

Among those who took part in the chase were Daniel Runkle, Harry A. Bourne, Richard Kelley, Harvey Fisk, C. E. S. Bellows, Charles Wildey, William Wildey, Charles W. Fisk and Christopher Comins, the whip. Next Saturday the club will meet at 2:45 o'clock in the afternoon at Dog Tavern, and on the following Saturday, October 26, the start will be made at the same hour from the Mt. Pleasant Schoolhouse.

CELEBRATION OF Y. M. C. A.

Elaborate Exercises to Mark 40th Anniversary of a Prosperous Institution.

THREE DAYS' EVENT

Addresses to Be Made from Local Pulpits—Mass Meeting at the Theatre.

In commemoration of the foundation of the Young Men's Christian Association in this city forty years ago, an anniversary celebration will be held at the association for three days, beginning Saturday, October 26. The program as arranged by the committee appointed at the last meeting of the directors includes an anniversary banquet, special association services and special services in the local churches. J. H. Manning, formerly general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in this city, is in charge of the anniversary as chairman of the general committee, and servicing with him are A. B. Beers, W. D. Murray, Curtis M. Thorpe, Dr. Norman H. Probasco and George M. Rittenhouse.

Alexander Gilbert, at whose home the meeting was held October 28, 1867, which resulted in the formation of the local association, will preside as toastmaster at the big banquet which will mark the opening of the celebration Saturday night, October 26, in the association auditorium. Mr. Gilbert was the first president of the Young Men's Christian Association when formed in this city. It is expected that about 150 members of the association prominent in its life and growth will be present on this occasion, among them several of the charter members of the association in this city and a big delegation of former officers and members. Men of prominence in association work in the state will also attend.

The committee in charge is trying to arrange for Y. M. C. A. speakers to occupy local pulpits on Sunday, October 27. These men are to be association officers from the various state associations and from New York. The services, which will be held in the morning, will be a feature of the celebration, but the list of Y. M. C. A. men and the churches at which they are to speak has not yet been completed. Sunday afternoon there is to be a big men's mass meeting at the New Plainfield Theatre. This will be held at 4 o'clock and there will be speakers of prominence in local and state work and special music. The details of this meeting have not yet been completed.

David E. Titsworth, one of the early vice presidents of the local association will be the speaker at the concluding meeting of the anniversary, to be held Monday evening, October 28 in the auditorium. This is the exact anniversary of the foundation of the local association and the life and growth of the work in this city. A historical review of the association will be given at this time.

Among the men of prominence in Y. M. C. A. work of other cities, who will be in this city during the three days' celebration and will take part in the meetings and services are George A. Warburton, of New York, C. W. Deitrich, of Brooklyn, William Knowles Cooper, general secretary of the association at Springfield, Mass., Rev. Dr. Johnston, of Rutgers College, Mr. Tinsdale, of Brooklyn, A. E. Marling, of New York City, and L. E. Hawkins, of Newark.

PAINTERS HOLD A PICNIC.

Baseball Game Feature of the Program Arranged.

The members of Local No. 480, Painters and Paperhangers, held an informal picnic at the home of John E. Mathews, Rockview and West End avenue, Saturday afternoon. A feature of the affair was a baseball game played between teams representing the shops of J. C. Hansen and Charles Conover, the latter winning out after a hot seven inning struggle by the score of 5 to 4. The batteries were H. Hansen and Curtis for the Hansen shop and Trotter and Voorhees for Conover's.

Following the game refreshments were served and an hour was spent in various ways. The committee which arranged the gathering comprised John Mathews, Andrew Love, jr., and Wilbur Voorhees.

The ability displayed by some of the baseball players has resulted in a movement to have a team representing Local 480 in the field next season. The unions at Elizabeth, Rahway, New Brunswick and other places have nines and a series could be arranged with them.

CITY FATHERS TO PAY $500 FOR SOME ADVICE

In its efforts to secure an advantageous contract with the Public Service Corporation for street lighting, the members of the Common Council believe that it should have the services of an expert electrical engineer. With that purpose in view, Mr. Tyler, at the adjourned meting of the Common Council, last night, offered a resolution, which was adopted, calling for an appropriation of $500 or as much of that sum as would be needed to employ an electrical engineer that he might advise the council as it may desire.

Mr. Tyler said that while the Public Service Corporation is fully informed as to its business, the members are not so thoroughly conversant on the subject of street lighting and other features of the electrical business pertaining to this department, especially along the technical lines. For that reason he recommended the employment of an expert engineer.

The trip of J. Franklin Fort yesterday was through Somerset, a truly rural county. Most of the way was past telegraph poles that had vines growing upon them almost to the wires, and nearly all of the horses passed had to be led to the side of the road while the autos went by. Business was scarcely begun when Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen's car, which had been sent to East Orange for the candidate, pulled up in front of the North Plainfield fire house. It was quickly surrounded by children not yet ready to go to school, who stopped to lay in a supply of campaign buttons. Mr. Fort's car was joined there by the other two which were to help carry the party accompanying him throughout the day.

Nearly the whole county ticket made the journey, and every member of it was called on for a few words at almost every stop. Mr. Fort himself spoke no more than five minutes in any one place, until he arrived here tonight. In most cases he confined himself to a statement of the political situation. He only once referred to the Bishops' bill, that time at Millstone, when he said that his audience knew how he stood on the question, as he had declared himself without reserve. At Gladstone, where he arrived in the middle of the afternoon, he again referred to the stand he had taken in various matters. He stated that he did not wish to keep any of his beliefs from the voters.

"I will tell you anything you care to know about how I stand on any question, either in public or in private," he declared.

The trip was one of the most successful since the tour began. Only in Middlesex county have there been such large gatherings. The arrangements for yesterday were carefully planned and carefully carried out, twenty minutes being allowed toeach town. When the twenty minutes were up speech-making was stopped and the caravan got under way again. The county committee was in charge of the itinerary and introduced the speakers.

Hunterdon County, where Mr. Fort goes tomorrow, will have a shorter schedule, with fewer towns on the list. Most of the day will be devoted to visiting the employes of the factories at their work.

Although he had stated in a speech at New Brunswick on Thursday night that the expression of his views there on the excise question would be his last utterance of the kind this year, Mr. Fort tonight opened the subject again in his speech here in Germania Hall. The talk was listened to with marked attention by the big audience, and a storm of applause greeted each point.

The stage was crowded with the county candidates and men of prominence in the district who had followed the candidate in his trip through Somerset county today. They were former Senator Charles A. Reed, Assemblyman W. W. Smalley, up for re-election. James A. Metz, candidate for surrogate; Congressman Ira Wood; Charles Fleischman, who has been with the campaigners for four trips; Assemblyman Alfred N. Barber, and Robert Kay, nominee for sheriff. A. G. Anderson acted as chairman. Mr. Fort, who had dined at the home of Senator Frelinghuysen, at Raritan, entered half an hour after the meeting opened, with former Governor Franklin Murphy, who had come down as a surprise. Mr. Fort was loudly cheered when he came forward after his introduction. The nominee discussed the Bishops' law which he said simply violations of law unseen and makes for civic righteousness.

SLEEPING SEXTETTE BAGGED BY DETECTIVE

Receiving a tip that Vanderbilt Raymond, a Scotch Plains youth who was indicted for burglary last January and has since been a fugitive from justice, was in hiding in a barn at Scotch Plains, County Detective Gelatian went to the place early this morning.

He made his way to a loft, but instead of finding Raymond the lone occupant of the building, he found it occupied by four young men and two young girls, his quarry being one of the former. The sextette was wrapped in slumber and Galatian slipped away in order to secure assistance in getting them all. Their arrest was accomplished without any trouble and they were taken to Westfield.

Arraigned before Justice Toucey at that place later in the day, Raymond's companions described themselves as Frank McNair, Oliver Peel, James Keiderling, Jessie Vail and Mary Howard, all of Plainfield. The three young men were fined $2 each on a charge of vagrancy and the girls were committed to Elizabeth to appear before Judge Atwater. Raymond was also committed.

It appeared later that of the young men, Peel is the only resident of Plainfield, the others residing at Scotch Plains. The Howard and Vail girls live here and are known to the police.

EGENOLF WASN'T WANTED

His Presence at Democratic Conference Here Causes a Stormy Scene.

AT CHILLY MEETING

Democrats Refuse to Sit In Caucus With Egenolf After Wordy War In Which Mr. Staats Scores Him.

Accompanied by a delegation of forty well known county seat Democrats, General Dennis F. Collins and Peter Egenolf, of Elizabeth, came to this city last night for the purpose of conferring with local members of the party over the existing political situation. They were met by the Plainfield leaders, with a few exceptions, and the entire party adjourned to the Hotel Kensington for the confab. While nothing was given out as to what line of action had been adopted, the reporters were informed that it had been definitely decided to hold the city convention tonight. It will be held in the office of Walter L. Hetfield, Sr.

The fact that Peter Egenolf was in the delegation that came from Elizabeth resulted in a chilly feeling coming over several of the Plainfield Democrats. Egenolf, who is a member of the State committee from Union county, is looked upon by them as the man who played James E. Martine false in the gubernatorial convention. They have no hesitancy in declaring they have "no use for him" and they showed it when it became known that the "political assassin" was in the party. They refused absolutely to sit in the hotel parlor with him, although it had been their intention to take an active part in the conference. No amount of argument on the part of their confreres could make them alter their determination and they remained in the office downstairs while the session was on.

As the committeemen were about to enter the parlors of the Hotel Kensington, J. A. Staats, the proprietor, who is a local Democratic leader, spied Egenolf and turning on him sharply shouted: "What are you doing here?"

"You run a hotel, don't you?" retored the Elizabethan.

"Well, I do but not for such men as you," hotly replied Staats.

A big crowd gathered about the two men as Egenolf is alleged to have said: "You better be careful, I'm on the grand jury."

"I've run a straight legitimate house for twenty-seven years and you can't fool with me if the people of Plainfield know it. I have no fear of you even if you are on the grand jury. The rest of the grand jury are not like you. I won't sit in a meeting if you are allowed to go into that room."

"I'll have some more to say," shouted Egenolf.

Egenolf entered the conference and Staats turned on his heels and with others declined to enter the conference room.

Egenolf, it is said, had nothing to say during the discussion, but all the time he got black looks from Plainfielders who were present.

Mr. Martine said today that he was not responsible for Egenolf's presence. "That man is a traitor to his benefactor and to the Democracy of Union county," said Mr. Staats, today, who is a warm admirer of Mr. Martine.

At the convention tonight, the Democats propose to name a candidate for the city judgeship and three for councilmen-at-large. Walter L. Hetfield, Sr., is slated to oppose Judge Runyon's candidacy but no names have been mentioned in connection with the councilmanic nominations.

Doctors' Society to Meet.

The Union County Medical Society will meet at the Y. M. C. A. tomorrow afternoon at 3.30. Dr. T. H. Tomlinson will read a paper on "Food Adulteration" and there will be reports by various local physicians on the study of various diseases. Dr. Livingood, of Elizabeth, as president of the society, will be in charge of the meeting. Dr. B. Van D. Hedges is vice president of the organization, of which many local physicians are members.

Woman to Lecture.

Miss Emily Cramp Taylor, of Philadelphia, will begin her series of lectures on "The Crises of the Christ," at the Young Women's Christian Association rooms, this afternoon. This course was given in July at Silver Bay and consists of four lectures, which Miss Taylor will give in Plainfield on four successive Tuesday afternoons.

MISS DRAKE STILL AWAY; HER MOTHER COLLAPSES

No news of Miss Elsie Drake, who left town two weeks ago with Thomas P. Davis, her fiance, who has a wife and family in Liverpool, England, has been received by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. Newton Drake, of Somerset street, since the letter sent from Washington, D. C., last week. Miss Drake wrote to her father, asking to be forgiven, and Mr. Drake wrote to her to come home again, saying that he would receive her as his daughter and urging her to leave Davis.

Mrs. Davis is in a state of nervous collapse at her home today. The shock of the news of Davis' wife and family in England has proved too much for her, and the suspense of waiting for her daughter's return has brought on the collapse. Neighbors say there will be trouble if Davis returns to North Plainfield.

TALKS ENTERTAININGLY ON TRAVELS ABROAD

Under the auspices of the Men's club of the First Baptist Church, the members and their friends enjoyed a pleasing program at the first fall meeting of the organization, last night. William Holmes sang two baritone selections in his best voice, and Miss Blossom Randolph rendered violin selections in a delightful manner.

The greater part of the evening was occupied with a charming informal talk by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian Church, who related many interesting incidents about his European tour last summer. Dr. Zelie spent several months touring the continent and England. He told of the cathedrals visited on the trip and of the services he attended. His description of a visit to Westminster Abbey was full of interest.

FRELINGHUYSEN'S RETORT.

Tells Colby X-Ray Has Shown a Perfect Condition of Liver.

In the debate in the closing hours of the Legislature on the public utilities bill, when Senator Colby remarked: "I am afraid that some members of this Senate are too white-livered to vote right," Senator Joseph Frelinghuysen, of Somerset county, answered:

"I want to say to the Senator from Essex that my liver has been exposed to the X-ray examination and was found to be healthy and full of good, red corpuscles, and I will make bold to say that, compared with mine, the liver of the Senator from Essex would be like the white frosting on an angel cake."

Senator Frelinghuysen underwent an operation for appendicitis several months ago, and the Senators enjoyed the allusion immensely.

Russo Under $500 Bond.

Leonardo Russo, who slashed Geo. Schuck in the leg and arm with a razor as the result of a fight on West End avenue Friday, was held Justice Snape under $500 bond to await the action of the grand jury at the hearing last night in the borough court. The case was postponed from Saturday afternoon, when Schuck was proved to be too badly hurt to appear in the case. John P. Owens is counsel for the state and Russo retained V. W. Nash, jr. Bond had not been furnished up to noon today.

Green Gets Twenty Days.

The power of the law fell heavily on Maze Green, who was arrested Saturday night by Chief Marshal Weiss of the borough force, in a noisily intoxicated condition on Somerset street. Recorder Dolliver had been faced by Green before, and the man had a bad record. He was sent to jail for twenty days, and Chief Weiss took him to Somerville this afternoon. Green says he lives in Elizabeth, but always gets drunk in the borough.

Men's Club Members Bowl.

The best attended meeting in the history of the Young Men's Club of Grace Church was held at the Casino last night, when the members, got together informally and spent the evening in bowling. There were about forty-five present, many of whom spent the evening on the alleys. Enthusiasm is strong for the formation of a team. Another meeting is being planned to be held at the Casino within a few weeks.

BIG CONSIDERATION FOR 2 TRACK PERMIT

P. S. C. Gives $5,000 and New Double Truck Cars on All Lines for Concession.

CITY FATHERS ACCEPT

Mayor Fisk and Councilmen Mellick Champion P. S. C.'s Cause Declaring Improvement Will Mean Better Service.

Permission was given to the Public Service Corporation to double track its line from West Front and Somerset street, through East Front street and Watchung avenue to Fourth street, at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, last night, in response to a petition presented a week ago. Councilman Buxton, Mellick, Montgomery, Charles C. Randolph, Frank Randolph and Tolles voted to grant the petition and President Daniel, Councilmen Ginna, Gloak and Tyler voted in the negative. Brand new double truck trolley cars on every local line and $5,000 in cash for permanent payments are the consideration given by the P. S. C. for the double track permit.

The request of the Public Service Corporation was not granted until after considerable discussion in which Mayor Charles J. Fisk, Councilmen Tyler, Gloak and Mellick took part. According to the usual form, Mr. Ginna presented the map showing the proposed improvement, together with the proposed contract between the company and the city which states definitely what the company will do in return for the privilege of double tracking its line. The principal feature of this contract is that the company agrees to pay one-half the cost for the brick paving on East Front street and Watchung avenue, which now underway, which makes the company's share about $5,000. The company also agrees to use the groove rail, which with the brick pavement will make an absolutely smooth surface.

The petition of the company was presented at the regular October meeting a week ago, but was laid over until last night, when after offering the map to be filed, Mr. Ginna, chairman of the street committee, offered a resolution providing that the petition be granted after strict compliance with the terms of the contract on the part of the company, as well as the city. This resolution was adopted by the vote stated.

Prior to taking action on the petition, President Daniel gave those present an opportunity to speak for or against the granting of it. There was a lengthy petition presented, signed by ninety per cent. of the property owners on East Front street and Watchung avenue, protesting against the granting of the privileges asked for, and another one from Dr. Albert Pittis, representing the Pittis estate, owning 185 feet, favoring the improvement. In response to the invitation, J. Fred MacDonald stated that the remonstrance signed by himself and a majority of the property-owners expressed his sentiments, while Dr. Pittis spoke in favor of double tracking the line.

At this point Mayor Charles Fisk asked for the privileges of the floor to give, as he expressed it, the essential reasons why the petition should be granted. He said that he was not there to speak for any one individual or faction, but in the interest of the people of Plainfield. "It is well known that the congestion of traffic on Watchung avenue, as well as at Front and Somerset streets, is a matter of serious consideration," said Mr. Fisk. "I have made a close study of the situation and have come to the conclusion that something must be done to relieve this congestion. It cannot be done unless the city is willing to help the Public Service Corporation to some extent. I brought the matter to the attention of the company and told the officials that something must be done to relieve the congestion of traffic. I was informed that the only way this could be done was through the double tracking of the line on East Front street and Watchung avenue.

"After some effort the traffic men of the company investigated the matter and reported to me the result which was substantially as I am telling you now. I am of the opinion that now is the time to make the improvement. There will be less tearing up and blocking of the streets and the double tracking and brick paving can be completed before winter sets

Rev. W. W. Casselberry, pastor of the local Presbyterian church, is a candidate on the Prohibition ticket for assemblyman. His name was put on the ticket at the convention of the party held last week and will be on the ballots election day, Nov. 5. Dr. Casselberry has always been opposed to liquor selling in the borough and it is through him that the camplaints about alleged violations of the license law were brought to the notice of the authorities. He has also taken a decided stand in the matter of Sunday selling of confectionery and soda water in town. It is believed that the local candidate will make a strong run, for several clubs have pledged their support. James L. Manning, of this town, is the candidate for county surrogate on the same ticket.

Start life afresh. Borrow from us to pay the several you owe and make payments in keeping with your income. By so doing you keep your credit good. Ease up the pressure on yourself and have a chance to "turn around" in other things needed for the family.

An Illustration

One of our clients owed $48 between four people. His salary is $14 weekly; rent $12 monthly. To have paid $2 weekly to each creditor, combined with rent, would have left only $3 per week to meet expenses, buy clothing, etc.—an impossibility you will agree. He borrowed $50, paid all his creditors, made his future credit good, if ever needed; pays his rent, the loan payments, and has $9 each week to use as his judgment dictates.

Hallowe'en

Though Hallowe'en has been celebrated by some people for centuries, until recently the only aid to its fun were the Pumpkin Lantern, the apple, the cabbage stock, the smoky candle, and such other homely things, a belief in ghosts and a strong imagination. Then it was celebrated only in the country.

Nowadays it is the occasion for many novel entertainments in the home of all classes—and the earth is drawn on to supply new designs on the old ideas. We have them Domestic, German and Japs. Jack o' Lanterns and Pumpkin boxes from 5c to $5 each.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

The Park Golf Club team will play a match with the Middlebrook Country Club team on the borough course, Saturday afternoon.

There will be a surfeit of golf in the metropolitan district this week. College players are, of course, interested in the annual Intercollegiate Golf Association championship tournament, which is to start at the Nassau Country Club, today, and continue throughout the week. The women are also provided for in the four-day open tournament scheduled to begin today at the Essex County Country Club, near West Orange, while on Friday and Saturday a two-day open competition for men will claim attention at Baltusrol.

In selecting Nassau this year the collegians have departed from their usual custom of going to Garden City but the chances are that they will have no cause to regret the change, as the Nassau Club has arranged for the comfort of the visitors. It will give a smoker tomorrow night.

Syracuse University has made application for membership in the association, and will probably be admitted at a meeting this week, but not in time to compete this year. Entries for the coming tournament have already been received from Yale, Harvard, Princeton and the University of Pennsylvania, while Cornell, Columbia and Williams are yet to be heard from.

Both team and individual honors were won by Yale last fall, and as the Blue has practically the same players to draw upon again its chances on paper look unusually bright. The only prominent player lost by Yale through graduation is W. E. Clow, jr., who won the individual title. On the other hand, there are Robert Abbott, a former intercollegiate champion; Ellis Knowles, Dwight Partridge, runner-up to Clow last year; W. I. Howland and B. Merriman. In addition to these, W. H. Lyon, C. E. Van Vleck, jr., and A. H. Swords from a trio of excellent substitutes.

Harvard has several good men in H. H. Wilder, T. Briggs, W. Hickox and H. McCall, while Princeton can call upon W. T. West, Ralph Peters, jr., F. H. McAdoo, H. J. Van Dyke, D. Roberts and C. Ballin. Some of the collegians are already practicing over the Nassau course, and as the latter is in its usual excellent condition low scoring will undoubtedly prevail. Today and tomorrow will be devoted to team matches, and then the individual part of the program will claim attention for the remainder of the week.

It is expected that some forty-odd women will compete at Essex County this week. Prominent among those who have entered are Miss Fanny Osgood, of Boston, former eastern champion; Miss Kate Harley, of Fall River, and Miss Julia R. Mix, of Englewood. There will be an eighteen hole medal play qualifying round today, contestants to qualify in two eighths. Side attractions in the way of driving, approaching and putting and Scotch foursomes will fill out the program.

There is a possibility of the favorites being brushed aside by some of the entrants from distant parts. For instance, Miss Meeker, of St. Augustine, who has entered, is said to be a strong player, and two others who have greatly improved their game are Miss Ruth Milne, of Albany, and Miss Van Nostrand, of Watertown. Since the women played last at Essex County the course has been changed and lengthened considerably.

TENNIS.

The City High School boys' championship in tennis singles were continued Saturday afternoon, when George Durar beat Winaford, 6-4, 6-0; Ludlow VanDeventer beat Guyon Fountain, 6-4, 7-5, and Howard Runyon won from H. C. Hubbard by default.

The evening class in cooking at the Y. M. C. A. held its first meeting, last night, with seven present. This is a class in instruction in plain cooking, and Miss Francis Bosworth, of Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, is the instructor of the class. The meetings will be held once a week. This morning a class in chafing dish cookery was held at the association. Ten members were present, and Miss Boswick in charge. This class in fancy cookery is popular and will meet weekly.

A class indressmaking, taking up shirtwaist and skirt making at the start, will meet for the first Friday night. The course will continue ten weeks and fifteen have been enrolled already; a second section of seven additional members is to be formed. Ifteen of the young women members of the association have entered the gymnasium class to be held each week in the new association gymnasium Monday, Tuesday and riday evenings of each week. Miss Margaret E. Mosher is the instructor of this class, which met for the first last night. Owing to the fact that the work on the gymnasium has not yet been completed, physical culture could only be discussed at the meeting last night. The gymnasium will be ready for the use of the class next week. Five association members have joined the swimming class, which will meet for the first next Thursday. Arrangements have been completed for the use of the pool at the Y. M. C. A. building for this class, which will meet in the morning.

Special classes in religious work will be held Tuesday afternoons and evenings, beginning today. The afternoon classes will consist of a course of four lectures on "The Crises of Christ." Miss Emily C. Taylor, of Philadelphia, will deliver the lectures. The evening classes will be a series of lessons taken from the gospel of St. Matthew. Miss Colton, of this city, will be in charge of this class.

SOME MORE LIGHTS

The P. S. C. Gets Privilege of Laying Conduits—Sidewalks to Be Laid Shortly.

There was a batch of small business considered at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, last night, most of it being left over from the regular October meeting. The resignation of William Yeager, as a member of the fire department, was accepted. Watson Whittleson asked that a sewer assessment levied on property owned by himself and another party be equitably adjusted. The matter was referred. A copy of the county ratables was presented and ordered filed.

On the recommendation of Councilman Ginna, the petition of Jacob Sachar, of Clinton avenue, asking the city to establish a pipe line across his property to carry off surface water, was refused. Mr. Ginna also filed a map of the Public Service Corporation showing certain streets through which it desires to lay conduits and later he offered a resolution, which was adopted, giving the company permission to do this work on East and West Front streets, East and West Second streets, Park, Madison and Watchung avenues.

The petition of the Central Park Realty Company asking that Evergreen avenue be accepted as a city street, was granted on the motion of Mr. Gina, an ordinance being adopted on two readings and ordered engrossed to conform to the usual custom.

Mr. Montgomery, chairman of the light committee, reported on the matter concerning the absence of a light on West Third street, referred to at the previous meeting. He presented a letter from the P. S. C., which stated that the light mentioned had been moved to West Third street and Madison avenue in 1904 at the request of a member of the Common Council. The matter will be attended to. The company stated that a list of every street light in the city is being compiled and a report will be submitted.

Regarding the petition of Christian Frederickson and others for lights on Leland avenue, between Berkeley avenue and Cushing road, Mr. Montgomery moved that a light be placed on that thoroughfare every 300 feet. Upon investigation he found that there are no lights there and he believed that the citizens to be entitled to them.

In support of the motion Mr. Gloak said that he investigated the section referred to on Sunday and was convinced that the lights should be erected. Mr. Tolles was of the opinion that more definite knowledge as to the number of lights to be erected should be given and Mr. Tyler said that he did not favor the motion, because there are a number of places in the city similarly affected and he thought the whole matter should be considered at one time. When the vote was taken, President Daniel and Councilmen Tolles and Tyler voted against it, but the seven votes in favor granted the petition.

The petition of Clifton Wharton, Jr., and others for a light on Woodland avenue, between Park lane and Ravine road, was also granted on omotion of Mr. Montgomery. Councilmen Tolles and Tyler voted against the motion. Another petition for a light on East Ninth street, between Watchung avenue and First place, was withheld until another meeting.

At the suggestion of Mr. Tolles the city clerk was instructed to notify the owners of the building that they must supply heat for the Common Council rooms, according to the provisions of the lease. There was no heat in the room last night and the members were obliged to adjourn to the Mayor's office.

A resolution which was offered by Mr. Ginna and adopted, provided for the laying of sidewalks in certain streets of the city, where the property-owners have failed to comply with the ordinance. When the Common Council adjourned it did so to meet on Monday night, October 28.

Firemen Drill For Parade.

In preparation for the firemen's parade to be held at Perth Amboy Thursday, the members of Warren Engine Company were out for a drill last night. The borough company turned out more than thirty strong and went through drill maneuvres under the command of Bert Bodine, at one time foreman of the company. It is probable that he will be at the head of the North Plainfielders in the parade Thursday, and at that time there will be nearly forty men in line. The appearance of the men as they drilled on Somerset street called forth much favorable comment.
